

RIVERS CHARGES MILLER, JUDGE SMITH 'CONSPIRING TO HAMSTRING' STODDARD

Warden Sims Is Ousted at Tattnall by Surprise Order

'ECONOMY' GIVEN AS PENAL BOARD'S REASON FOR MOVE

Officials Reported Split Over Authority; Fischer, Former of Executions, Successor Temporarily.

A new and surprising shake-up at the Tattnall prison, featured by the dismissal of Warden Mark Sims in the interest of "economy," was announced yesterday by the State Board of Penal Administration.

Grover C. Byars, of Rome, chairman of the board, said that Sims' services had been discontinued in an effort to cut down expenses at the prison. Byars pointed out that the penal board had to call on Governor Rivers last month for funds because money made available for the prison was not enough to carry on its operations.

Guard Dismissed.

O. P. Carter, a guard, assigned to duty as foreman in the auto tag shop, also has been dismissed to cut down expenses, Byars said. Fisher will direct the shop from his office, the board chairman added.

Byars said that George Fisher, director of industries for the prison, had been named acting warden, but added that Fisher had notified the board that he would serve only a few days as he would not participate in any executions. An execution is scheduled for Friday and the law requires that the electrocutions be carried on under the direction of the "warden."

Up From Ranks.

"We expect to select a warden later in the week," Byars said. "He probably will come from our present personnel in order to keep down expenditures."

The chairman added that he had been advised by the State Department of Law that the execution, that of a negro, would not be legal unless supervised by a duly named warden.

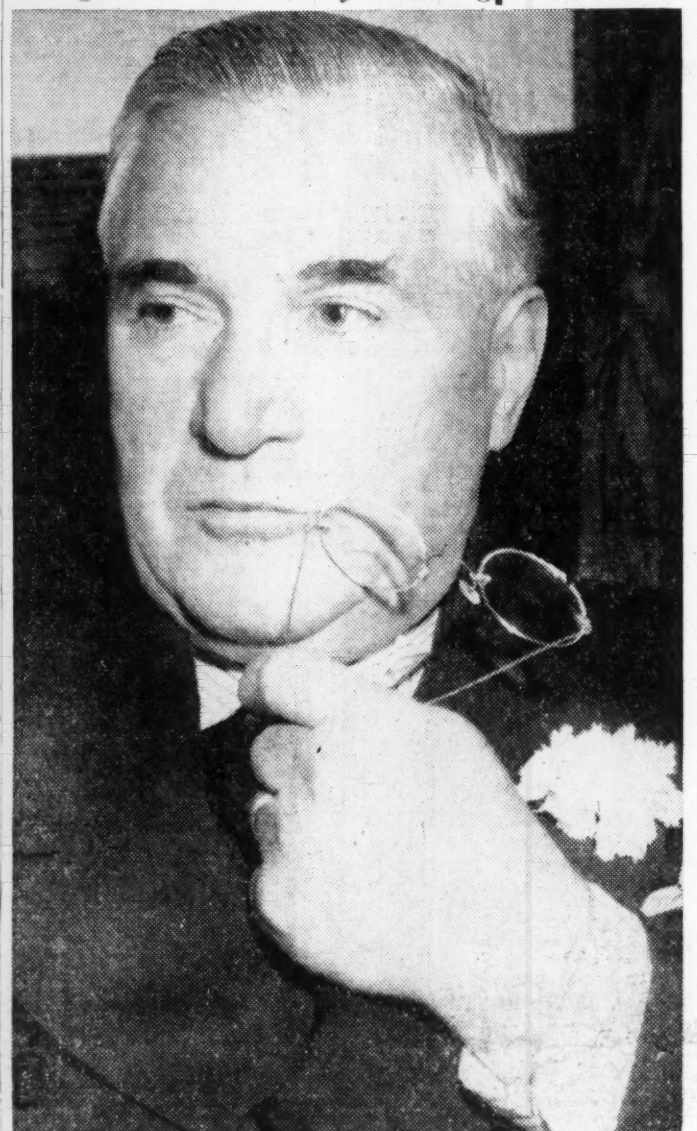

The dismissal of Sims, who had been warden for more than a year, marked the third shakeup at the prison in the last two years. Joe Walton, Sims' predecessor in office, likewise was dismissed by the penal board.

Divided Authority.

Under the penal board program, authority at the prison has been divided between Sims, the warden; Fisher, director of industries, and Luther Bridges, farm superintendent. It was reported yesterday that there have been several clashes between Bridges and Sims over the overlapping authority but these reports could not be confirmed.

At Reidsville, Sims confirmed notice of his dismissal but would

'QUADS' ARE BORN ON ALABAMA FARM

Mother, Tots 'Doing Well'; Girls Are Named Faith, Hope, Charity.

JASPER, Ala., Jan. 15.—(UP)—Quadruplets, three girls and a boy that were delivered by a country doctor in a small, weather-beaten farm home, tonight were "doing all right" on a diet of water and dry milk given them from eye-droppers.

The four babies—their total weight was between 12 and 13 pounds—were born last night to Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Short in their home on a red-clay farm at Nauvoo, a mining community 15 miles from here.

Dr. H. J. Sankey, who had conducted a general medical practice at Nauvoo for 36 years, attended Mrs. Short at birth of the children. He was assisted by the father, a grandmother, and neighboring women who crowded into the rough farmhouse.

County Board Defers Action On Underpass

Project Referred to Three Departments for Study; City Officials Dubious.

By WILLARD COPE.

The old hunting yarn of the two 'possum dogs pulling on the 'possum stretched tautly between them, and the negro boy's comment—"They maybe ain't doin' him no harm but they sho ain't doin' him no good"—was recalled yesterday afternoon as the five Fulton county commissioners took action that further delayed acceptance of the federal offer of a free $485,000 West North avenue underpass which has been laying around for nearly five years hopefully seeking a friendly smile.

Specifically, the commissioners voted to refer the proposal to its planning commission and engineering and legal departments in the face of a declaration by J. T. Marshall, resident engineer for Georgia of the Federal Roads Bureau, that pressure had been applied to the agency to transfer the long-neglected fund of $485,000 to some other project—causing it to be lost to Atlanta and Fulton county.

It also was brought out, both by Mr. Marshall and Chairman Ed L. Almond, of the commissioners

WISCONSIN SEEKS OLEOMARGARINE PEACE WITH DIXIE

'I Don't Think There Should Be Barriers Between States,' Visiting Governor Heil Declares.

By HAROLD MARTIN.

Bearing an olive branch, a dove of peace in a velvet-collared overcoat arrived in Atlanta yesterday to say "howdy" to Governor Rivers and to deprecate any evil effect a little old insignificant Wisconsin tax on oleomargarine might be having on Georgia cottonseed oil processors.

The dove of peace in question is Governor Julius P. Heil, of Wisconsin, sometimes known as "Hon. est Julius," and the first Republican chief executive to guide the destinies of the dairy state in years.

His mission here was solely one of good-will. There has been quite a stir around the cotton-growing south, he admits, about that tax on oleomargarine by which the good dairymen of his state have attempted to protect their butter market from the encroachment of the oleo maker.

Drop in Bucket.

But the thing brings in only $15,800 a year, hardly a drop in the bucket, and he doesn't want anybody to have hard feelings toward him and his state on account of it. And, for goodness sake, don't let's go talking about boycotts in retaliation, or anything of that kind.

Mr. Heil himself is a free-trader. Placing his hand upon his heart, he said to Governor Rivers: "I do not think there should be any barriers between the states at all and I have fought against it and as long as my heart beats I will continue to fight against it. We must not Balkanize these United States by such tax barriers."

Governor Rivers admitted that he felt the same way, and Mr. Heil, who insists that his name be pronounced "Hile," and not "Heel," went on to say further that if there was anything he could do to help his very good friends in this lovely south get adjustment of

THREE MEN KILLED WHEN TRAIN HITS STALLED TRUCK

Two Passengers Die Instantly; Edward Effel, Driver, Succumbs Three Hours Later in Hospital.

Three men were killed shortly before noon yesterday when a northbound Central of Georgia passenger train from Macon crashed into a pickup truck, stalled on the Plunkettown crossing off the Macon highway south of Hapeville.

Driver and owner of the truck was Edward Effel, 51, for the past 20 years operator of an automobile wrecking concern at 28 Georgia avenue. He died in a private hospital just three hours after the accident occurred.

Youth Killed.

Killed instantly were an 18-year-old youth identified as Cary E. Poss Jr., of a Curran street address, and a negro believed to be Henry Howard Smith, 45.

The train dragged the truck, loaded with scrap iron, about 40 feet along the right of way. Witnesses said the truck apparently stalled on the dirt road which leads from Plunkettown, a negro settlement, to Highway 42.

The two white men were taken to an Atlanta hospital, where Poss was pronounced dead on arrival. Blood transfusions failed to save Effel's life.

Effel is survived by his wife; three daughters, Miss Evelyn, Miss Rosa Lee and Miss Frances Effel; two sons, Joe and Nathan Effel; two brothers, Fred and Robert Effel, and a sister, Mrs. Myra Eisenberg.

Funeral Today.

Funeral services will be conducted at 11 o'clock this morning at the chapel of Sam R. Greenberg & Company by Rabbi T. Geffen. Burial will be in Greenwood cemetery.

Young Poss is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Cary E. Poss Sr.; three sisters, Mrs. M. W. Morgan, Mrs. J. H. Wagner and Miss Frances Poss, and grandpar-

NORWAY, SWEDEN PROTEST TO REDS

Nations Charge Russian Warplanes Have Violated Their Neutrality.

By ALVIN STEINKOPF.

COPENHAGEN, Jan. 15.—(AP)—Almost simultaneous protests from Sweden and Norway charging that Soviet Russian warplanes had violated their neutrality tonight increased the growing tension between Russia and the Scandinavian states.

Both Sweden and Norway instructed their ministers in Moscow to protest the alleged violations. These developments followed quickly Russian charges that Norway and Sweden were acting in an unneutral way by aiding their neighbor, Finland, in her struggle with Russia.

The Swedish protest was based on the reported bombing of the Swedish island of Kallaks, on the western side of the Bay of Bothnia, by nine Soviet planes yesterday.

Norway charged that several Russian planes flew over Norway.

Finnish Child For Adoption Sought Here

Atlanta Couple Wants To Do Their Bit for Valiant People.

The tragedy of a courageous people yesterday touched the hearts of an Atlanta couple who, desiring to do more than make a monetary contribution for their relief, made request of the Finnish Relief Fund here for adoption of a Finnish war orphan.

They are E. J. (Sandy) Clower, assistant attorney general of Georgia and his wife, and are "dead serious" about it.

"I would like to adopt a Finnish war orphan," he declared, "preferably a boy, but a girl would be acceptable. I feel if this community had just one member of this noble race in its midst, his or her presence would serve to keep this whole state rid of Russians of the Stalinist variety and Communists for years to come. If just a handful of Finnish troops can keep all of Russia out of Finland, certainly one little Finnish boy could keep them out of Georgia."

Clower explained that he and

Stern British Note Flouts Neutral Belt

American Nations Warned Attempts To Enforce 'Safety Zone' Off Shores 'Will Cause Friction With Allies'; Reply Strikes at Threatened Sanctions.

LONDON, Jan. 15.—(AP)—Great Britain today rejected the American neutrality zone as "ineffective," reserved her belligerent rights in the area and warned that "friction" would result if attempts are made to penalize British warships for exercise of their rights.

In a note to the President of Panama, who acts as the representative of the 21 American nations which proclaimed the 300-mile wide neutrality zone at Panama last October, Britain said her acceptance of the "proposal" would depend upon assurance it would not afford a "vast sanctuary" for German warships.

The note answered a protest of the American republics of December 23 over the battle of Punta del Este off Uruguay, in which three British cruisers drove the German pocket battleship Admiral Graf Spee into refuge at Montevideo.

The answer was delivered as seven representatives of the Americas were meeting at Rio de Janeiro to consider what steps may be made to secure observance of the zone by belligerents. Among proposals which it has

GOVERNOR WIDENS MARTIAL LAW TO COVER MILITARY

Sheriff Says He Will Not Try To Serve Warrants as Long as Guard Rule Is in Existence.

Charging in an executive proclamation that W. L. Miller, deposed highway chairman, and Judge W. R. Smith, of the Alabama circuit, "are, in the opinion of the Governor, conspiring to hamstring and obstruct the adjutant general and the militia of the state in carrying out the orders prescribed by the Governor, as commander in chief," Governor Rivers yesterday extended martial law to cover the state military department.

The new proclamation which Governor Rivers spread on the executive minutes also recites that the judge and Miller "are undertaking to inspire violence and otherwise interfere with the adjutant general and the militia while they are on duty at the military department and offices of the state."

James A. Branch, chief of Miller's counsel, replied almost immediately to the Governor's charges and accused him of "a deliberate effort to deceive the public."

"Facts Brought Out." "All the facts were brought out in open court when the case was first heard," Branch asserted, "and none of the attorneys present raised any objection. I consider the Governor's accusations unworthy of any one who has any regard for the truth."

Judge W. E. Thomas, of the Waycross judicial circuit, who sat with Judge Smith in the case, last night issued a joint statement in which they charged the Governor had created a "false impression."

No effort was made during the day to arrest Adjutant General Stoddard and Lieutenant Colonel James H. Skelton, former commanding officer of the guard detachment at the highway department, on bench warrants issued Saturday by Judge Smith at Nashville after the judge had held them in civil contempt of his court and sentenced each to serve 30 days in jail.

Warrants Not Received.

In compliance with the extended martial law edict, General Stoddard placed a detail of guardsmen about his office at the military department and reinforced the detail at the highway department. For the first time since martial law was proclaimed in the highway row, one of the guards-

Wilson Asks State Officials To Stop 'Petty Bickering'

'Harmony Is More Than a Word—It's a Crying Need,' Says Secretary of State, a Probable Candidate for the Governorship.

Secretary of State John B. Wilson, considered a gubernatorial probability, yesterday issued a new statement calling for an end to "petty bickering" in the state government.

"Harmony is more than a word," the secretary of state said. "It is a crying need."

For several weeks it has been reported that Wilson soon will issue a formal announcement of his candidacy for governor. Yesterday's statement gave no indication as to his definite future plans. The statement follows:

"Georgians everywhere are saying today with increasing emphasis that something must be done. There are certain essential services the state must provide for its citizens and the people have the right to expect them in a calm, businesslike manner without petty bickering and factional strife.

"Courts that are respected; schools that teach our children to be better citizens; roads for the normal flow of traffic; protection for our health and our safety; assistance for our helpless neighbors; these are the things for which to look to the state.

"The people of Georgia are demanding that the state provide these services in an orderly manner.

"This is implicit in the first paragraph of the constitution of Georgia: All government, of right, originates with the people, is founded upon their will, and is instituted solely for the good of the whole. Public officers are the trustees and servants of the people, and, at all times, amenable to them."

"This is no time for political strife. Change is in the air, particularly in the south. It is a period of economic shifts. Georgia is approaching its greatest opportunity, but we must reach out and grasp it.

"There is nothing wrong with the people, nothing lacking in the resources of our state, and our political leadership must not be a house divided against itself.

"Harmony is more than a word. It is a crying need in Georgia. All over our state men and women are meeting and talking together, striving and planning for single-minded action for the good of our state. They do not want the opportunity to slip away. They do not want the state to lose her glorious leadership of the south on account of internal political warfare and strife.

"All Georgians are on the march and they will succeed."

Downey Says F.D.R. Choice 'Obnoxious'

Senator Accuses President of Punishing Him for New Deal Attitude.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—(P)—Senator Downey, Democrat, California, accused President Roosevelt today of using federal patronage to "discipline and chasten" him for defeating William Gibbs McAdoo for the Democratic senatorial nomination in 1938 and for refusing to "rubber stamp" New Deal legislation.

He made the accusation during hearings before a senate finance subcommittee on the President's nomination of Paul R. Leake to be customs collector at San Francisco.

Downey told the committee that in selecting Leake the President "picked almost the only man among California's 6,000,000 people I would say was personally obnoxious to me."

placed are to be under the direct control and subject to call or orders of the commander in chief only; and

It is further ordered: That the adjutant general take such measures and put into effect the same as may be necessary to carry out these orders.

Done in the State Capitol, Atlanta, Georgia, on this 15th day of January, 1940.

The full text of Branch's reply to the Governor follows:

The statement of the Governor and the so-called proclamation to the effect that Judge Smith and Mr. Miller married sisters is totally unworthy of anyone who bears the title of governor. It is a deliberate effort to deceive the public.

The facts are, and the Governor well knows this to be true, that when the first case was called before Judge Smith and the other two judges who were presiding with him, counsel for Mr. Miller, in order to give an opportunity to anyone who wanted to take the question of disqualification of Judge Smith, stated in open court, in the presence of Mr. Patten and the other two judges, that they were present representing the Governor and his appointee, Judge Smith.

Judge Smith's first wife left no children and he had married again before Mr. Miller married. Under the decisions of the supreme court of Georgia there is no relationship between Mr. Miller and Judge Smith, but in order to allow anyone to question his qualification, the facts were presented in open court to afford an opportunity for such a challenge.

The attorneys representing Patten and the Governor said nothing. Judge Smith turned to them and asked them if they had anything to say. Finally, Mr. Copeland, of the firm of Copeland & Duke, representing Patten, got up and said they did not consider Judge Smith disqualified and did not raise any question as to his qualification.

Judge Smith then said that under Georgia law he was not disqualified and that a judge who was not disqualified had no right to refuse to preside in any case in his court. In view of these facts, which the Governor well knew, it is a deliberate effort on his part to deceive the public by stating in his proclamation that Judge Smith is in a conspiracy with Mr. Miller because of the fact that they married sisters. Such an effort is unworthy of anyone who has any regard for the truth.

The joint statement of Judges Thomas and Dickerson follows:

"We have just read a news account of the Governor's last proclamation extending martial law to cover the state Military Department. In this last martial law proclamation the Governor states according to this news item that W. L. Miller and Judge W. R. Smith married sisters and false impression is made that Judge Smith was disqualified from presiding in the case.

"We think it is nothing but fair to Judge Smith and in the interest of the truth that the facts be briefly stated to the public.

"When the case of W. L. Miller against L. L. Patten and others was first called for a hearing on interlocutory injunction men appeared wearing sidearms, but these were removed early in the day.

Meanwhile, Sheriff J. C. (Mott) Aldredge announced that he had not received the warrants from Judge Smith's court and added that he would make no attempt to serve them on General Stoddard and Colonel Skelton as long as martial law is in effect and said the attorney ruled that the civil warrant does not operate under military law.

Sheriff Aldredge said he had conferred with the county authority on his right to arrest guard officers as long as martial law is in effect and said the attorney ruled that the civil warrant does not operate under military law.

"If the warrants come," Sheriff Aldredge said, "I will take them to General Stoddard and Colonel Skelton. All I can do is to ask them if they will accept service. If they say they will not, I can only take the warrants back to my office."

In amending his martial law edict to cover the military department where General Stoddard and Colonel Skelton have been living since his arrest was ordered, Governor Rivers set out that Judge Smith and Miller "married sisters." It was explained that the judge married an older sister of Mrs. Miller, the judge's wife dying nearly 30 years ago. He remarried several years after the death of his first wife.

Judge Smith granted Miller an injunction on December 16 requiring Lawson L. Patten, Herman H. Watson, the highway commissioners, and others not to interfere with him in his conduct as chairman of the highway board, the post from which he was removed by the Governor. The court last week cited Stoddard and Skelton after they had been ordered to duty at the Highway Department by the Governor in his first martial law order.

Asks Extension.

Branch also asked Judge Smith to extend the injunction order to include General Stoddard and Colonel Skelton. This was done before the two guard officers were held in contempt of the original order, a decision which the judge handed down despite contention by counsel for Skelton that he had been relieved of the highway assignment and had made no effort to interfere with Miller after the court had issued a temporary injunction against him.

It was understood yesterday that General Stoddard has called 30 guardsmen to duty at the Highway and Military Departments and has ordered additional details to be ready for a hurried call. However, tension visibly was eased after Sheriff Aldredge made the announcement of his plans.

Miller returned to Atlanta from Lakeland yesterday and is said to have spent the day conferring with several political leaders. He made no effort to return to the Highway Department, saying he had not conferred with his lawyer during the day. Branch appeared before the supreme court in another case during the day.

Text of Order.

The text of the Governor's new martial law order follows:

Whereas: On December 18, 1939, the Governor of the State of Georgia did issue a proclamation of martial law, the same appearing in the executive minutes on page 406 thereof, a reference to which is hereby made as a public document of record for all necessary purposes; and

Whereas: It has subsequently developed that ex-Chairman Miller, of the Highway Department, and Judge W. R. Smith, of the Alapaha judicial circuit, who married sisters, are, in the opinion of the Governor, conspiring to hamstring and obstruct the adjutant general and the militia of the state in carrying out the orders prescribed by the Governor, as commander in chief, and as presiding officer of the state, and as declared on the aforesaid proclamation and order, and are undertaking to inspire violence and otherwise interfere with the adjutant general and the militia while they are on duty at the military department and offices of the state; now, therefore,

It is ordered: That the aforesaid proclamation be, and the same is, hereby amended and martial law is declared in and around the military department and premises of the state located on the grounds known as the Confederate Soldiers' Home property, and that said grounds, buildings and property, except the building and grounds occupied by the Confederate veterans and the State highway patrol, be included as a part of the territory embraced in the executive order aforesaid declaring martial law; and

It is further ordered: That the military department of the state operate under the protection of the military authorities until such time as they can operate unhampered without such protection. It is stipulated that the military department is not acting under the military authority of the state but only under the protection of the military authority of the state; and

It is further ordered: That Brigadier General John E. Stoddard, the adjutant general, shall place the officers and men of the national guard and they are hereby directed and ordered to establish military control over all the property and premises above named and to maintain such military control against all orders whatsoever, until further ordered. Said officers and men of the state military and national guard when so and contempt proceedings for violation of the restraining order, it was stated in substance by one of counsel for Mr. Miller in open court that Judge Smith's first wife had died, that in view of such facts Judge Smith was not disqualified, but that counsel for plaintiff wanted counsel for defendants to know the facts and if they desired to make any objections to Judge Smith's qualification to preside they could then do so. Counsel for Miller was asked to state in open court that they wanted at the beginning of the case in the case at facts just referred to so that there could be no criticism thereafter as to Judge Smith presiding in the case.

Thereupon, Mr. J. B. Copeland, of the firm of Copeland & Duke, who represented L. L. Patten, the Governor's appointee, stated that defendants were not objecting and had made no objection to Judge Smith presiding in the case. Presumably Mr. Copeland was speaking for other counsel representing the other defendants as the latter acquiesced in his statement.

Under the law Judge Smith was not disqualified from presiding in the case and he had no legal right to disqualify on his own advice capacity for plaintiff counsel for plaintiff nor counsel for the defendants objected to his presiding. Certainly under such circumstances it would be a gross injustice to criticize Judge Smith for presiding in the case.

"Thus far on all questions arising out of this case and the other related cases we in our advisory capacity have concurred unanimously with Judge Smith in his decisions."

Reds' Snarl at Scandinavia Puts Germany on Hot Spot

Extension of Russo-Finnish War to Sweden and Norway Would Stop Nazi War Imports Via Baltic; New Developments Forcing Hitler's Hand, Simpson Says.

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON,
Associated Press Staff Writer.

Moscow's bickering with Scandinavian "neutrals" raises a grave issue for Germany. Extension of the Russo-Finnish war to engulf Sweden and Norway, at which Moscow hints would operate automatically to cut Germany off from vitally needed Scandinavian resources, including Swedish iron. Complete war in the Baltic, with Scandinavia aligned formally with Finland against Russia, would confront Berlin with a prospect of being further throttled economically at a time when she can least afford it, due to increasing pressure of the Allied sea siege against her. And all because of the vaulting ambitions of her Soviet Russian associate and "friend."

Russia's fumbled smash at Finland, coupled now with Russian glowering at Sweden and Norway, is putting Nazi Germany on a hot spot. She is being driven, willy-nilly, toward either closer co-operation with Moscow against her own vital interests in the Baltic, or toward a break with Russia. One way out could be a quick and crushing Nazi victory over

Senate Committee Approves Murphy, Jackson and Biddle

Vote on Supreme Court Nominee Unanimous; Expect Final Ballot Today.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—(P)—The senate judiciary committee unanimously approved today the nomination of Attorney General Frank Murphy to be a member of the supreme court.

Murphy would succeed the late Associate Justice Pierce Butler. The committee also approved the nomination of Solicitor General Robert H. Jackson to be attorney general and of Judge Francis Biddle, of Pennsylvania, to be solicitor general.

The senate may act on the nominations tomorrow, and there have been indications that all will be confirmed.

Mrs. Robert H. Jackson, whose deeply beloved will soon shove his feet under the United States attorney's general's desk, said yesterday in Washington that her role in his career was to keep the home fires burning so hubby wouldn't have to worry about affairs domestic. They were wed in 1916 and have two little Jacksons.

BISHOP KERN DENIES SOUTH REACTIONARY

Tennessean Says Dixie Methodists Enter Unified Church With Gladness.

BOSTON, Jan. 15.—(P)—Opening a nation-wide celebration of the Methodist church's unification, Bishop Paul B. Kern, of Nashville, Tenn., said tonight the south brought economic and racial problems to the union, but he denied southerners were "theologically reactionary," or "backward in their social outlook."

At a dinner launching a "Methodist advance" program into 74 population centers from Boston to Los Angeles, and from New Orleans to Duluth, Minn., Bishop Kern explained that "Methodism in the south enters with gladness into the new and unified Methodist church."

Concerning racial difficulties in the area, where "some states have a larger negro population than they do a white population," he added:

"We have made tremendous progress in the last 25 years toward a more Christian solution of our race problem."

Three other bishops participated in the dinner: G. Bropley Oxnam, of Boston; Robert E. Jones, of Columbus, Ohio; and Clare Purcell, of Charlotte, N. C.

ASKS GRAND JURORS TO ATTEND MEETING

Past Members To Discuss Presentment Treatment.

George Winslow, foreman of the September-October, 1938 Fulton grand jury, yesterday sent letters to every member of that group urging their attendance at a meeting at 7:30 o'clock Monday night at the Henry Grady hotel to discuss plans for making presentments more effective.

The letter points out that the meeting has been called "to find out why so few grand jury recommendations have been carried out."

Among the items listed on which no action has been taken were an effective program for the control of venereal disease, establishment of playground facilities, reduction of the number of employees at the county convict camps and the creation of a central office for the serving of court processes.

EAST POINT COUNCIL INDORSES BOND ISSUE

East Point city council last night passed a resolution indorsing the school bond issue, but declined to pass a resolution calling for a spring primary.

The negro, who had but one leg, was identified tentatively by Hanley Co., through a social security card he carried. Identification of all three men was difficult because of the torn condition of the bodies.

Frank Malone, of Macon, engineer of passenger train No. 11, said he blew his whistle and then pulled to a stop as soon as possible, but that the truck failed to move from the tracks. Scrap iron and parts of the vehicle were scattered hundreds of feet by the collision.

The three occupants, who had been south of Plunkettown recovering scrap iron for the wrecking concern, were thrown from the truck to the side of the track.

DR. DAFOE RESIGNS AS QUINT GUARDIAN

TORONTO, Jan. 15.—(P)—The resignation of Dr. Allan R. Dafoe from the board of guardians of the Dionne quintuplets was announced today by Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn.

Dr. Dafoe will remain physician to the five sisters, however. Recently the doctor expressed a desire to devote all his time to the physical well-being of his charges, leaving their business affairs to others.

Premier Hepburn said Dr. Dafoe's resignation as a guardian was "entirely voluntary."

Easy way to "unpack" automobile prices

YOU know what most motor cars sell for, "delivered at the factory." That's advertised.

You know, too, that there's a necessary difference between such prices and the prices you pay for cars delivered to you here at home.

How much should that difference be? What should it cover? How can you tell if there's what the trade calls a "pack" in the price you're finally quoted?

You'll never be puzzled by questions like these if you study the standard GM "plainview" price tag pictured here, and let it be your buying guide.

We General Motors dealers are marking each car on our showroom floors with this tag, to enable you to judge more accurately the values we offer.

It shows you plainly our charge for the car itself. How much for transportation from the factory to you, based on rail rates, how much for any extra equipment or accessories that you may elect to buy.

That's all there is. There isn't any more. There's no hidden or mysterious item to offset a possible "long trade" with you on your used car.

You know exactly what your money goes for, every penny, and we display wall charts and provide itemized invoices giving similar information.

Right now we're showing the ablest and most attractive General Motors cars it has ever been our pride and pleasure to offer—come in and look them over.

Examine their features. Check their quality, point by point. Then consider the price tag. Thus you appraise for yourself their outstanding value. And you see what your good money buys.

This is the standard price tag used by General Motors dealers to show what makes up the prices of new cars delivered to customers. "PRICE OF CAR" means the price we charge for the car itself, including reimbursement for Federal Tax and conditioning — "TRANSPORTATION CHARGE" means a charge for transportation from factory to you, based on rail rates — "OPTIONAL EQUIPMENT AND ACCESSORIES" means the charge for any extra equipment or accessories you elect to buy.

BEWARE NOW OF EPIDEMIC COLDS!

Here's Some Good Time-Tested Advice

With folks all around suffering with contagious colds, be just as careful as you can—and you may avoid a lot of sickness, trouble and worry. Follow these simple rules of health: Live normally. Avoid excesses. Eat simple food. Drink plenty of water. Keep elimination regular. Beware of wet feet and drafts. Take some exercise daily—preferably outdoors. Get plenty of rest and sleep. Then use these two time-tested treatments when needed.

AT THE FIRST SIGN OF A SNIFLE, SNEEZE OR NASAL IRRITATION...put a few drops of Vicks VapoRub on each nostril right away. This helps to prevent many colds from developing, because VapoRub is expressly designed to help Nature's own defenses against colds. (If a head cold causes stuffiness, you'll find that a few drops of VapoRub helps clear the clogging mucus and makes breathing freer and easier.)

IF A CHEST COLD OR COUGHING COLD DEVELOPS (some colds get by all precautions) depend on Vicks VapoRub to relieve miseries. Rub VapoRub on throat, chest and back and cover with a warm cloth. VapoRub acts to bring relief 2 ways at once. It stimulates surface of chest and back like a warming poultice. At the same time it releases helpful medicinal vapors that are breathed direct into the irritated air passages.

Both VapoRub and VapoRub have been tested through years of use in millions of homes. When you use these two medicines you are not experimenting, you are not taking needless chances. Remember: If the condition of the cold fails to respond quickly to treatment—or if more serious trouble is indicated—call your family physician right away. In the meantime be prepared! Get a bottle of Vicks VapoRub and a jar of Vicks VapoRub today.

Jilted Suitor Has U.S. Jail Woman, Charges She Defrauded Him of $50

Widow Says Blasted Love Prevented Her From Paying Him Back.

OMAHA, Neb., June 15.—(P)—Pretty Mrs. Ethel Rouse, 21-year-old widow, was in jail tonight because she allegedly jilted an Arizona highway worker and took his $50.

She faces mail fraud charges before a federal district court jury Wednesday.

A principal witness will be Morris Holloway, of Glendale, Ariz., who took his accusations to federal authorities after, he said, he twice sent $25 to Mrs. Rouse so she could come west to marry him. Mrs. Rouse avers she intended to marry another man and go to Arizona on her honeymoon so she could repay Holloway, but the marriage fell through.

HOME IS OFFERED FINNISH ORPHAN

Mrs. Clower had first become interested in the Finnish people when they read stories about them written by Ralph McGill, executive editor of The Constitution, when he was in Scandinavia. Their admiration for them had never found a practical application, however, until the undeclared war between that country and Russia broke out.

It was then, he said, that he and his wife began to think that they might ask for a Finnish child. They had been thinking of adopting a little boy for some time, he explained. "With the formation of the Finnish Relief Fund in Georgia," he declared, "we saw an opportunity to get a child of a race where democratic principles are so strongly embedded."

Clower made his request to the fund in a letter to Preston S. Arkwright, who with Ryburn G. Clay, heads the state-wide organization. His letter was accompanied by a donation to the fund.

Want Four-Year-Old.

Mrs. Clower, enthusiastic about the idea, said that they were interested in a child about four years old. "If we take a child we will have to move from our present small home, but I think it would be worth it. I am already looking at larger houses." The Clowers live at 2472 Boulevard drive, N. E.

Clower, a graduate of the Emory University law school, always has been deeply interested in the problems of children and before coming to Atlanta he was judge of juvenile court in Floyd county and a scoutmaster at Rome. He is a native of Brooks county. Mrs. Clower, the former Frances Stinson, hails from Banner Elk, N. C. Officials at Finnish Relief Fund headquarters in the Henry Grady hotel were rather startled by the request for adoption, but none the less pleased. They expressed belief that arrangements for such a step would have to be taken through their organization since they are the only body in the United States authorized to do relief work in Finland. The Red Cross, of course, is making contributions of medical supplies and clothing, but all other relief to Finland must come from the special organization created for that purpose, it was said.

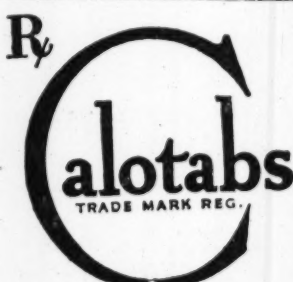

First Contribution.

Honor for being the first contributor to the fund after its organization in Georgia went to Armand May, Atlanta business man, who made his donation as he accepted a place on the state advisory committee of the fund.

Prior to the organization within the state, it was estimated that over $2,000 had been sent to national headquarters from Georgia. At present the fund is not fully organized, hence a complete report of donations to date has not yet been compiled by the state headquarters.

DISPUTED WAGES PAID AFTER 46-YEAR LAPSE

Forty-six years ago William Seitz, farm hand of Muskegon, Mich., walked out on a job in an argument over wages. He had been digging potatoes for four days and wanted $6 more than his fellow workers were getting. An argument with his employer followed. "I'll take it out of your hide," Seitz said, forgetting the farmer and the quarrel with the passage of years.

The farmer, however, did not forget. Seitz, now 72, received a letter from him saying:

"I am going to live my life for God, and I can't live it without getting you paid up."

This summer Seitz shook hands with his ex-employer, and settled for $5 and a talk about old times.

ROSSIGNOL, CROCY GET PRISON TERMS ON FRAUD CHARGES

Former Brokers' Counsel Announce Appeals Will Be Filed With Circuit Court; Bonds Posted.

J. R. Rossignol and A. J. Crocy, convicted on 10 counts charging use of the mails to defraud in connection with allegedly illegal stock transactions, yesterday were sentenced to federal prison by Judge E. Marvin Underwood.

Rossignol received a four-year sentence on each count while Crocy received a two and a half-year-term for each charge. The sentences will run concurrently.

Appeals Planned. Immediately after sentence was passed, attorneys for the two former brokers announced that an appeal will be filed with United States circuit court.

Appeal bond for Rossignol was set at $4,000 and $2,500 for Crocy. Both made bond a few minutes after leaving the court.

Ends Long Litigation. Passing of sentence concluded the lengthy mail fraud legal proceedings against the former partners in a brokerage house. Charges of violating the bankruptcy laws now are pending against the pair, but if the court approves, will be not pressed, according to United States Attorney Lawrence Camp.

A perjury indictment against Crocy also will be not pressed, if permission is given, Camp said.

Sixteen 'Conspirators'—They Sing a Song of Innocence and March Off to Their Cells

This is how they lined up for arraignment yesterday in New York—16 of those accused in a plot to overthrow the government of the United States and install a "fuehrer" type of rule. Seated are (left to right) Michael Vill, Francis Malone, Edward and W. G. Bishop. All entered pleas of innocent to charges of seditious conspiracy and trumped off to their cells singing "Reign, glory, we are here to see it so," borrowing the melody of "Battle Hymn of the Republic" for their theme.

BOND ISSUE DETAILS WILL BE DISCUSSED

College Park To Hold Public Hearing at City Hall Tonight.

Final detail work on College Park's $65,000 bond issue sale will be discussed at 7:30 o'clock tonight in the city hall at a public hearing, it was announced yesterday by Mayor George W. Harris, chairman of the bond commission.

Three features of the bond issue will be presented for consideration, Mr. Harris said, the most important of which will be the type of auditorium wanted by College Park citizens.

"Some think we should have an elevated floor with permanent seats while others want a gymnasium floor that can be converted into an auditorium by the addition of movable seats," Mayor Harris said. "We'll decide it tonight."

Also to be discussed is the date of sale for the bonds and whether or not the city will advertise its program. The issue was passed in November elections and calls for $35,000 to purchase the Cox College property and $30,000 for the erection of a city auditorium.

The Fulton county Board of Education expects to erect a county high school on the Cox College property and public contributions will establish a community park project.

YANKEE RETURNS GOLD CUFF LINKS

Historical Society Gets Pair Sent 'G.W.T.W.' Author.

A pair of worn gold cuff links have been presented to the Atlanta Historical Society by Margaret Mitchell, who had them from a Michigan man whose grandfather, a Union soldier, took them from the sleeves of a dead Confederate.

The man, whose name was withheld, read "Gone With the Wind" and then sent the links to Miss Mitchell, with a note saying he had "long wanted to find some gracious way of returning them to the south."

She accepted with the stipulation that she be permitted to pass the links on to the Historical Society as "symbols of the renewed friendship and understanding between north and south."

ROXY'S HAL KEMP PLEASURES BAND FANS

Capitol Vaudeville, 'America Swings,' Offers Ten Interesting Acts.

By LEE ROGERS. Hal Kemp's band, playing music and not trying to be stage stars, now featured at the Roxy, and a strictly vaudeville attraction, "America Swings," at the Capitol, complete the Atlanta theater week's offerings. Both will continue through Saturday.

"MUSICIANS, NOT STAGE STUNT MEN."

It has been found. A famous dance band which doesn't think its members are great vaudevillians.

The sweet, smooth music that has distinguished Hal Kemp's orchestra through jazz and swing has not been sacrificed in an attempt to present a great stage show. Kemp, featured currently at the Roxy theater, offers his band and its members for what it is—a good orchestra which knows how to play music for entertainment.

Hal offers three exceptional novelty numbers: Jack Maire's baby blue-eyed rendition of his newest baby-talk composition, "If You Want Me"; a musical madhouse featuring the drumming of Johnny Cyr, appropriately called "Tantrum"; and the Smoothies' "Little Red Fox." Bob Allen is the featured baritone. Kemp has a new songstress since last he visited Atlanta. Janet Blair is the name and she has enough to put over any song.

Kemp offers a pleasant hour of music played in Hal Kemp style, something slightly different for most stage bands, and something that is pleasing.

Marie Wilson in "Cowboy Quarterback" is the movie feature.

CAPITOL OFFERING BALANCED PROGRAM.

"America Swings" is the vaudeville attraction at the Capitol theater this week featuring the Gale Sisters, husky voiced song birds who starred on the National Barn Dance program.

All the vaudeville standby acts, including the human horse, are included in the 10 acts which the woman producer, Gertrude Avery, has put together. And as for laugh getters yesterday, Tiller the Horse was tops at the Capitol.

Other acts include, James McNally juggling hats; Pauline Rudnick, who bends her body backward into circles; the Avery Trio, knockabout comedians, and Gates and Claire.

Featured on the screen is Cowboy Star Roy Rogers and the Weaver Brothers and Elvira in a home-spun story called "Jeepers Creepers."

COMPANY BARRED FROM USING 'COKE'

Coca-Cola Wins Permanent Injunction Against California Firm.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 15.—(UP) A federal court held today the expression "coke" in reference to a soft drink is an abbreviation of "Coca-Cola" and that trademark is infringed by any other manufacturer using "Coke" as part of the title of a beverage.

District Judge Paul J. McCormick made this ruling in granting the Coca-Cola Company a permanent injunction prohibiting the Los Angeles Brewing Company from using "in connection with the advertisement of any beverage the word 'coke,' whether spelled 'coke' or otherwise."

The brewing company had been offering a soft drink called "East-side Cherry Coke." The Coca-Cola Company now has pending in Delaware a suit seeking to restrain a competitor from using the "Coke" portion of its name. In 1920 the United States supreme court barred the use of the term "Coke" by another manufacturer, Coca-Cola counsel recalled.

Singing 17 Deny Revolt Plot; Held in $50,000 Bail Each 'Reign Glory,' They Chant, Drowning Lamentations of Relatives; LaGuardia Doesn't Think They'd Have Got Far With City's 18,000 Police.

By ROGER GREENE. NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—(AP)—Seventeen handcuffed and closely guarded members of an alleged terrorist ring plotting to overthrow the United States government and set up a "fuehrer type" dictator chanted their theme song today as they were held in $50,000 bail each—a total of $850,000—on hearing on February 5.

All pleaded innocent to charges of seditious conspiracy. "Reign, glory, we are here to see it so," they sang to the tune of "The Battle Hymn of the Republic," drowning out the lamentations of relatives who wept as they were marched off to detention cells.

Ramifications Grow. Serious ramifications of the 17-man band's machinations grew up as federal, state and national guard authorities pushed separate investigations and FBI agents began a nation-wide search for catches of "revolutionary" arms.

MOTORISTS URGED TO WATCH FOR AGED

Safety Committeeman Asks Co-operation in Reducing Accidents.

Citing that four people have been killed by automobiles in the first 15 days of 1940, all of them aged or elderly, William J. Cordes, of the citizens' traffic safety committee, yesterday urged drivers to watch out for pedestrians whose advanced years make them less quick to see danger and less able to avoid it when it is close upon them.

Pointing out that city intersections are dangerous enough for anybody, Mr. Cordes stressed the extra danger to those whose eyesight and hearing is failing, and whose agility is lessened by age.

"Even the child," said Mr. Cordes, "whom we ordinarily regard as merrily unprotected, can jump out of the path of a car with greater speed than an aged man or woman."

Warning against crossing between intersections, and against the lights, Mr. Cordes said: "The alert and able-bodied person should be constantly on his guard to cross at the right time and place. But for the older person, who sometimes grows absent-minded and steps from the curb where there is no intersection, or from behind a parked car, the motorist bears an added responsibility."

"The citizens' committee is committed to be a better education of pedestrians. With the co-operation of all motorists, relatives of elderly persons, and above all the aged, pedestrians themselves—many lives will be saved."

FARMHAND SOUGHT IN ARSON-SLAYING

BAINBRIDGE, N. Y., Jan. 15.—(AP)—A farmhand whom state police described as "slightly demented" was sought tonight as the aftermath of the finding of the body of his employer, employer's wife and their daughter in their burned farmhouse.

Inspector E. A. Maynard, of the state police, said an alarm had been broadcast for James Fink, 21, the farmhand. Maynard asserted he was "positive" the family was murdered and their bodies burned in the farmhouse.

He identified the dead as Frank Teed, 68; his wife, Helen, 66, and their daughter, Ruth, 25.

POLIO COMMITTEE SIGNS THREE BANDS

Well-Known Orchestras Are Obtained for Dances January 30.

Three outstanding bands have been obtained for Fulton county's celebration of the President's birthday on January 30, and negotiations are under way for a fourth orchestra, Juddy Johnson, chairman of music, announced yesterday.

"Atlantians will be well pleased with the music we have been fortunate to obtain," Johnson said. "This year, instead of throwing together a celebration dance on a hit-or-miss basis, we are going to give the folks a real treat for their money."

For the price of $1, dancers will have their privilege of dancing to four of the finest orchestras in the country. Why, the price of admission for a dance for any one of the orchestras usually is more than that.

Contracts Signed.

The bands already contracted for include: Coleman Zachs and his famous CBS orchestra, featuring a floor show with five acts, who will play in the Dixie Ball Room of the Henry Grady hotel; Eddie Holtz and his famous NBC orchestra, at the Ansley hotel; and Lawrence Walker, (colored king of swing) and his Top Hatters, from New York, at the Shrine Mosque.

Arrangements for a top-notch orchestra at the Biltmore hotel dance are under way. In addition, private dances will be held at several clubs for the benefit of the polio drive, and admission prices will be separate from those for the public dances.

Chairman Pleased.

Ivan Allen Sr., chairman of the Fulton county committee for the celebration of the President's birthday, expressed pleasure over the hearty manner in which Fulton

WHEN KIDNEY TROUBLE CAUSES YOU TO GET UP NIGHTS

When Bladder Is Irritated When Passage Is Difficult When Backache Results

Flush Poisonous Waste and Acid From Kidneys

GAIN IN HEALTH

If you aren't feeling just right—nervous—have dizzy spells and occasional backache—study your kidneys and learn more about yourself.

Through the delicate filters of the kidneys, acid and poisonous waste are drawn from the blood and discharged from the body thru the bladder—sometimes these filters are less active than they should be because of excess poisonous waste and kidneys do not function properly—they need harmless stimulation.

One reliable medicine, highly efficient and inexpensive is GOLD MEDAL HAARLEM OIL Capsules. This grand medicine has been helping people for 50 years—to relieve their aches and pains by helping conditions caused or aggravated by excess uric acid or other circulating poisons—such as is so often the case with sciatica, neuritis, neuralgia, lumbago and rheumatism.

So if you have such symptoms of kidney trouble as backache, nervousness, getting up two or three times during the night—scanty, burning or smarting passage—leg cramps—morning pains or puffy eyes get a 35 cent package of this grand and harmless diuretic at any modern drugstore—it starts the first day on its errand of helpfulness.

Don't be an EASY MARK and accept a substitute—Ask for Gold Medal Haarlem Oil Capsules—right from Haarlem in Holland. GET GOLD MEDAL—the original—the genuine. Look for the Gold Medal on the box—35 cents.

ATLANTA, GA., JANUARY 16, 1940.

Stubborn as the G. O. P.

When informed historians of the future analyze the forces and factors which brought the world to so parlous a condition in the era from the early 1920's to 1940, there will be a heavy burden of blame placed upon the economic policies fostered in the United States by the Republican party.

For no intelligent observer of world affairs can fail to see that a large proportion of the economic woe which fell upon the world during this period—and which was the fundamental cause for the rise of dictatorships, the return to a gospel of force and the revival of war—was the result of the Smoot-Hawley tariff, enacted in the United States senate by the G. O. P., then in power.

The tragic picture is plain. Yet, it seems, not yet, even, has the Republican party opened its eyes to that picture. It is still following the course of the proverbial ostrich and, by burying its head in the sands of selfishness, refuses to see the typhoon of retribution that has wrecked so much of world commerce.

Until the World War of two decades ago, the United States had been a debtor nation to the world. Under that circumstance it was possible, and logical, to operate industry in this country under a high tariff policy. It served to uphold the standards of living here, while it opened markets for agricultural and other natural products from our fields and mines and rivers that served to pay the instalments and interest on the international debts we owed.

But, after the World War, this nation occupied a new position in international finance. It became, for the first time, the great creditor nation of the world. The financial center moved across the Atlantic to New York and the nations of Europe, impoverished by war, were in their turn faced by great debts, due the United States.

The only way these nations could pay was by shipment of their products to America. They are, however, producers of a different type of goods than us. They own no great empire like our west, where oceans of wheat fields can ripen in the summer sun. They have no great cotton areas, where the fleecy staple can come to maturity and be picked for market.

They are industrial nations and the goods they have to offer us, in return for our agricultural and raw products, are the manufactured goods from their factories. The only goods they have to offer in payment of their debts are manufactured goods.

And the Republican party, deaf to the predicament of a world, raised an insurmountable wall, in the Smoot-Hawley tariff, effectually banning those goods of the debtor nations from our shores.

The result of the Smoot-Hawley tariff, however, did not end with the debt delinquency to us. It crippled international trade. It reduced American exports and closed foreign ports to our shippers. It disrupted world commerce and it placed the fearful fingers of poverty upon the peoples of other nations.

Then the Democrats came into power in the United States. Even they did not, directly, seek removal of that tariff wall. Perhaps they were afraid of unpopularity among the uninformed. Perhaps they had listened, too long, to Republican propaganda and absorbed too much of its fallacious argument. But the Democrats did, through another approach, set about to undo some of the international evil of the Smoot-Hawley tariff.

Through Secretary of State Cordell Hull and his associates in the department, a series of treaties, opening the way to a renewal of international trade, were concluded with more than a score of nations. Those treaties, it is declared by informed students of world trends, are the most powerful of modern day factors for increased international trade and for the ultimate security of world peace.

Yet the same forces which were responsible for the iniquitous Smoot-Hawley tariff, the leaders of the G. O. P., are now at work in the halls of congress seeking to block any further trade treaties, to hamstring the efforts of Secretary Hull on behalf of world commerce and world peace, and to rebuild that isolationist tariff wall which has already brought the civilization of a world too close to eclipse.

Sufficient Dust

Members of the last dozen grand juries which have served Fulton county have been invited to attend a meeting, next Monday night, to formulate some plan under which their recommendations for changes in the county government setup may be taken from the dusty shelves of the county archives.

It is believed, by officers of all 12 of the juries involved, that those recommendations have gathered sufficient dust and it is time they were restudied and something, if possible, done about them.

Under the grand jury system recommendations such as these carry with them no power for enforcement nor, even, any legal compulsion for systematic, serious consideration. All the county commission need do is acknowledge receipt and promptly delegate them to the innocuous obscurity of the archives.

There is, however, one force upon which the grand juries may call, if they feel their work has been too long ignored. That is the force to which they expect to appeal next Monday night, the force of public opinion.

It is chiefly the recommendations of the famous Reed survey into local county and city government in which the grand juries are interested. Particularly one change advocated by that survey, a change to a one-government form of administration for both city and county. A combining, in other words, of the two governments into one. It is the belief of those who advocate this change it will result in greater efficiency and in large saving to the taxpayers of county and city alike.

Whether these claims would be borne out in practice is not, at the present time, the question. The point at issue is that the change has been advocated by 12 successive grand juries and has as consistently been ignored when the recommendations of those grand juries have been formally presented.

It is believed such a reiterated proposal deserves open, public attention, discussion and decision. It is felt it is a useless waste of effort if sincere and difficult work by successive grand juries is to be automatically ignored.

The grand juries seek some means of forcing these recommendations out of the archival dust and into the light of public consideration. If, then, some properly democratic means of discovering the wishes of the voters on the recommendations could be worked out, and applied, the grand juries would be entirely satisfied, whichever way that decision went.

For, under the American system, the voters are, in the final analysis, the bosses of county commissions, city councils and grand juries, alike.

Business Plays Fair

The recent statement by Secretary Morgenthau that the nation's business corporations generally have been playing fair with the government since repeal of the undistributed profits tax comes as welcome reassurance. It is encouraging to leaders of business, who have consistently maintained they would play fair, and it is a reaffirmation of business's sense of responsibility. It also should do much to confound critics of business and industry, especially the chronic "graspers" who believe anything business does is bad.

Morgenthau recalled that when congress eliminated the controversial levy last session, it assumed corporations could be prevented from withholding dividends for the purpose of tax evasion through application of another section of the revenue law, which fixes penalties of 25 to 35 per cent on net incomes of corporations failing to distribute reasonable portions of their profits to stockholders.

The record speaks well for business. For, since repeal of the tax, penalties have been assessed against only two corporations, and they consented to the action before the Treasury had completed its investigation. In only 11 other cases have internal revenue agents recommended penalties, and these have not been acted upon. This record was made on the basis of 62,000 corporations whose income tax returns were scrutinized.

The navy is ready for anything, the admirals say. But the army is only 25 per cent prepared. Let us hope then it will be two lanterns in the old North church.

"Goering, the new czar of German industry, is easily the most popular figure in the Reich." Come on, boys—three cheers for the boss, or three chairs.

"Census Takers Will Ask 7,000,000,000 Questions"—headline. After the first two or three billion, the suspect should weaken.

Editorial of the Day

ALL ARE MURDERERS
(From the Asheville Citizen.)

The lyncher is a murderer. The simple fact that his crime is usually committed in the security of numbers does not alter the fact that he is a murderer.

There are other murders committed each year in this fair land of ours. In all too many of such cases the guilty person is never brought to justice. For instance, gangsters have a way of killing those who incur their displeasure. The justice meted out to the person who squeals to the police or to the courts is usually swift and quite often barbaric. It rarely happens that the guilty persons are apprehended and punished.

Furthermore, industrial strife produces its homicides each year in this country. Occasionally such murders are committed by members of one or the other of the warring factions. In other instances they are perpetrated by union racketeers who are trying to protect their extortionate activities.

The person murdered by a gangster or an industrial racketeer is just as dead as an unfortunate negro lynched by a bloodthirsty mob.

Congressman Gavanagh hopes to prevent lynchings through the punitive machinery which he provides in his bill. If this machinery will be effective in preventing lynchings it will be equally as effective in preventing gang and labor war murders.

Such being the case, it stands to reason that the law should be amended to include gang and labor war murderers. While congress is about the business of preventing murders, it might as well do a thorough job of it.

The only defect in this argument lies in the pertinent fact that Mr. Gavanagh hails from New York. His state does not have any lynchings but it does furnish more than its proportionate share of murders committed by gangsters and labor toughs.

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

THEY SAY THEY'RE THROUGH WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—Incredible as it may seem to their numerous enemies, Thomas G. Corcoran and Benjamin V. Cohen are now telling their friends that they will leave the government on January 1, 1941, come hell or high water. The New Deal team are leading promoters of the third-term movement, and still confidently expect the President to run again and to be re-elected. But for themselves, they say they are through.

Their protestations will be loudly mocked, of course, by those who regard the third-term movement solely as an effort by such men as Corcoran and Cohen to save their New Deal jobs. Even for the team's associates it is a little difficult to conceive of their departure, should their expectations be fulfilled and a re-elected President press them to stay on. But the fact remains that they are extremely specific and positive about their plans to go.

FIRM OF CORCORAN AND COHEN Their plans, which they have been discussing off and on for a couple of years, are not very startling. They want to return to law practice in New York, whence both of them came to the government. They expect either to start a law firm of their own, or to join Corcoran's former firm, Wright, Gordon, Zachary & Parlin, with which he has maintained a close connection. On the whole, they are much more strongly inclined to start their own firm. In this Corcoran has before him the example of a man whom he greatly admired, Joseph Cotton.

As a member of the Interallied Maritime Council, Cotton was one of the young men of the Wilson administration. With William Gibbs McAdoo, McAdoo's assistant, George Franklin, and Wright and Gordon, also Wilson young men, Cotton founded the firm which now bears the name of Wright, Gordon, Zachary & Parlin. It was independent and somewhat irreverent of the established financial authorities. Yet among the great Wall Street law offices, few were more successful or profitable. Corcoran and Cohen are both convinced that young men from the Roosevelt administration can imitate Cotton and his confederates.

The team is known to have adequate financing ready if they choose to go into the law business on their own. Even the firm name has been decided on. It will be simply Corcoran and Cohen, unless Attorney General-Designate Robert H. Jackson is by then out of politics, in which case he will become senior partner, and the firm will be Jackson, Corcoran and Cohen. Eight or nine of the young men brought into the government by Corcoran and Cohen have also been asked to join the firm. If established, it will be a virtual transplantation of the New Deal group from Washington to Wall Street.

"MOST EXCITING JOB" Corcoran's and Cohen's reasons are fairly obvious for saying they want to go next January 1. In the first place, although each of them has a moderate competence, neither is well off. They frankly want to make enough money to be independent for the rest of their lives. As the men who wrote a large part of the New Deal legislation with which businessmen are now struggling, they have reason to expect they will not lack for clients.

In the second place, seven years have passed since they began to build their reputation as the youthful activists of the administration. The reputation is no longer wholly accurate, for Corcoran is approaching and Cohen is now in the early thirties. They think they have stayed in the government too long already. At times they feel a little stale, so their friends say, and they want a change. Both are lawyers at heart, and both feel, as Corcoran once put it, that "next to working for the government, running a big New York law firm is the most exciting job around."

If their firm is established, it will probably go further than Cotton and Franklin did in rejecting the common point of view of powerful corporate law offices. Nor will it be wholly lacking in active political flavor. The team are close to Mayor F. H. La Guardia; the New York labor leader, Sidney Hillman; the Fay faction in Tammany Hall and the bigwigs of the American Labor party. They will certainly maintain these contacts. If they can resist the temptation of occasional political ventures, it will vastly surprise the men who have worked with them.

Finally, although they say they now want to return to law practice, they do not expect to stay in it forever. Corcoran is deeply interested in government personnel administration, Cohen in administrative procedure. Both express the hope that in ten years or so, when their reputations have grown slightly less sulphurous, they will be able to come back to Washington to indulge these interests.

Hush! Someone Is On Our Porch!

It was early in a winter evening, just after dark had descended upon the quiet, unostentatious little residence street. In one of the small frame houses the father, mother and three children were enjoying that half hour of relaxation following the evening meal, when the family always seems closer knit, more of a happy unit, than at any other time of day.

There was a ring of the front door bell and the father, grunting, heaved up out of his easy chair and opened the door. There was no one there, the porch was empty. Scarcely had he resettled himself in the comfortable upholstery than the bell rang again. This time the mother answered the ring. Again there was no one, outside.

The mother, with a look of irritation, remarked, "Someone's playing a game. Think they're funny."

But the father looked thoughtful and, slightly, worried. He shifted from the big chair into a smaller, straight-backed chair near the door.

A third time the bell rang. The man jumped from his chair and quickly flung the door open. He was in time to see a figure leaping off the end of the porch but, by the time he had stepped outside, whoever it was had gone.

He caught a glimpse of trousers and legs and an old, gray felt hat, pulled low over the stranger's head, and he frowned.

"What is it?" the mother asked, anxiously, as she glimpsed the expression of his eyes.

"Nothing," he replied, "pay no attention." But he left the room and went to the bedroom, to the drawer where he kept, always, a loaded revolver. And the woman's face whitened and she held her youngest child close in her arms.

To Trap An Intruder.

Quietly, gun in hand, the father opened the back door and slipped out into the back yard. He carefully moved the safety catch on his gun and, weapon clutched in his right hand, finger around the hair-trigger, crept around to the side of the house and, in the shadowed dark, edged near the front.

"Some fellow," he thought, "is out to get me. Expects me to chase him when he jumps off the porch. Then, when he's lured me outside, he'll probably slug me, or something. Maybe it's—"

Just then he heard a stealthy footstep on the porch. He waited. In a second or two he heard the door bell ring, for the fourth time. Immediately afterward, the figure leaped, once again, off the end of the porch.

The man in the shadow raised

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Why Must NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—We get down to cases when it is argued that only rich men can afford to accept important American diplomatic posts because there must be champagne and caviar, shining linen and sparkling glassware for which the government makes no appropriation, and which cannot be paid for out of the salaries provided by law.

Says who? That American ambassadors and ministers do spend much more than they receive in pay and allowances is not denied, but that they must do so in order to perform their duties is not so readily conceded. A diplomatic representative is sent abroad to act as agent, with limited powers, of the United States government and to engage, politely, in espionage of one kind and another. It is supposed that he will make friends in the capital in which he is posted who will invite him to dine or play a round of golf now and again, and that, in order to hold up his end, he will invite them back. However, it seems unnecessary for him to explode a banquet for them and the local aristocracy and official set every so often or to run a hotel for visiting Americans.

Might Be The fact that the Nice Hint ministers in town live extravagantly on money appropriated for that purpose by their respective governments should not oblige the American to do likewise. On the contrary, simplicity and frugality would constitute a fairly readable hint to the representatives of those nations which owe this one money, that collections are very slow and that our men, too, would be able to swank if certain others didn't live beyond their means and did pay their debts.

If the Russian embassy in Washington could manage to get along with a little less champagne and fewer of those chair-leg Havanas that the diplomats serve with coffee, a certain number, and perhaps only a few, but anyway, some Russian soldiers in the war to confer the boon of Stalinism on the Russians might be sent into the field with warm underwear and leather boots instead of paper shoes. The good impression that is made on a corps of other diplomats, also living on expense accounts paid out of the wage and denial of their respective people, by serving them champagne and cigars is of negligible benefit to Soviet Russia by comparison with the bad impression which the dumb, bovine, faceless lumps in the cheese-cloth uniforms of the Soviet army are giving the Finns. Seeing that the Finns are equipped thus for Arctic service, and observing the spiritual dejection of the Russian soldiers after almost a quarter century of Communism, the Finns are bound to reflect that, in even less time, they have done much better under their own system.

Cent Waste Diplomats never 90 Per impress one another, anyway, and the money which they spend to entertain is 90 per cent waste, which is another way of saying that they could get along on about 10 per cent of their allowance for entertainment. They all know that all their colleagues, with the exception of the American, are expense-account sports and too stingy or too poor to buy a bowl of chicken for anyone else on their own money; and that every time a diplomat pops a bead of caviar into his whiskers the family of some poor, raggedy dope back in the home country of the one who is giving the party is going without a bit of American sausage, a yard of spaghetti or something with which to grease a piece of sawdust bread.

As for the local aristocracy, they are the fancy-pancs of the capital and not at all representative of the people; and, taking Washington as an example, it isn't worth the cab fare for any foreign diplomat to attend any party of their giving. If he does go he will stagger home groggy from the fantastic babble of misinformation, worthless small talk and malicious little lies, and he will give a return party and bills it to his foreign office as the expense of keeping post he ought, by rights, to be called home and prosecuted like any other embezzler.

Having thus demolished the case for garishness in the social life of American diplomats on foreign station, I will now sweep up the debris and dump it out of the window of those who offer this argument by asking why, if rich men must be had, the selections are always limited to a list of the who have big checks in the campaign fund of the president in office? I have heard it argued by nobody more passionately than by New Dealers that rich men should not be allowed to use their vast fortunes to influence our solemn referenda, but find the New Deal rewarding millionaires of doubtful competence with important diplomatic posts for doing just that.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL.

MR. NEELY GOES TO RICE Jess Neely, the tall Tennessee who has turned out such excellent football teams at Clemson College, has been signed by Rice Institute in Texas.

Neely was one of the greatest ends football ever saw. He had few peers at covering kicks and was a good, all-around man for sixty minutes in each game.

It was his brother, Bill Neely, who also was a star end at Vanderbilt where Jess later came to play, who left one of the best stories to come out of intersectional football.

The Neelys came from Smyrna, Tennessee, which is the home of Sam Davis, the boy hero of the Confederacy. Davis, who was just 19, was hanged by the Federal soldiers after they had found on him some information supplied him by a spy. When he refused to reveal the name of the spy he hanged Davis. His farewell letter to his parents is a moving, human document.

Well, anyhow, the Neelys and all the folks around Smyrna still don't care much for Yankees.

Bill Neely went to Vanderbilt shortly after a young fellow named Dan McGugin came south from Michigan, where he had been an all-American guard, and took over the job of coaching the Vanderbilts at football.

He also introduced intersectional football. His teams tied the Navy and Yale as early as 1910. They went to Ann Arbor, Mich., to play Michigan, coached by "Hurry Up" Yost. Bill Neely was along on the first team to travel up north.

HIS FRATERNITY BROTHERS Bill Neely was the only member of a certain college fraternity on the Vanderbilt team. When the team arrived at Ann Arbor, the brothers at Michigan met Bill Neely and arranged to have him around to dinner.

The Neelys all are quiet and talk but little. But Bill Neely, away from home for the first time, seemed very, very reserved indeed.

The fraternity brothers put themselves out for Brother Neely. As much as was possible they dined him and showed him around. He took it all with no comment at all.

The day of the game arrived. That morning "Hurry Up" Yost sent another some hacks to take the Vanderbilt team out for a ride. Dan McGugin always insisted this was a diabolical plot as the drivers took the team far out into the snowy countryside and the boys almost froze to death. They were late getting back and really never did thaw out.

The game was played and Michigan had a difficult time winning. They won by a point or so and the Vanderbilts, defeated and sorrowful, awaited the train of the next morning.

ONE MORE TRY The "brothers" made another try on the silent gentlemen from the South. They took him out to the house for dinner. They took him to a play.

He took it in silence. The next morning the Vanderbilts dressed and packed and went down to the train.

Bill Neely's brothers came along too. They shook his hand and urged him to return. It was something, having a brother from the far south come on a visit.

But they wondered at his silence. Bill Neely seemed to be struggling with himself. As far as he knew those Michigan persons might be the grandsons of the men who had hanged Sam Davis. Still, he had to say something.

He mounted the step. The brothers stood waiting. Bill Neely turned.

"Well," he said slowly, "Good bye, you damn Yankees."

A REAL GOAL POST STAND Jess Neely played against Michigan in 1922. He was captain of the team which played Michigan to a 9-and-0 tie in Nashville.

All who were on the inside of that game know that it produced one of the greatest goal-line stands of all time. In the closing minutes of the game Michigan drove to the Vanderbilt two-yard line. They had been driving through big Tot McCullough, who was terribly tired.

It was first down at the two. They sent four plays at McCullough who suddenly seemed to have the strength of ten. The plays broke against him. One goal post, which posts then were on the goal line, was just back of McCullough. That's how close it was.

"Tot," said Jess, "how did you do it?" "Shucks, Cap," said McCullough, "I had my foot braced against that goal post. The only way to get through me was to push down the post."

Rice got a great coach and a great person.

Gratitude Is Most Bitter When Owed to Somebody Who Seems Inferior

By ROBERT QUILLLEN.

Nothing else humiliates a proud man like being accepted by somebody because his wife is famous.

The humble man who rejoices in his relationship to the great; but relatives of a rich or famous man who consider themselves respectable in their own right are shamed and infuriated when shown respect solely because of their relationship.

This quirk of human nature is found in whole races as in individuals, and often explains the attitude of one people to another. Great America, in a sentimental mood, might say with considerable truth: "All that I am I owe to my mother, England." Our debt is not to living Englishmen, but to the England that was.

Our language, our literature, our common law, our love of freedom, our religion, our traditions—all that makes us a distinctive people came from England. And so far from making us grateful the debt we owe serves rather to make us resentful. It explains why many people dislike England.

When a young man of good family settles in another land, he may boast of his connection and rejoice in the prestige it gives him. He is thankful for any circumstance that helps him to be somebody.

But if he grows great and rich and proud, and by his own efforts surpasses day after day all the credit himself, he resents being reminded that he owes much to his family. His relatives now seem poor and unimportant, and he wants nobody to think they "made him."

This explains the Japanese attitude toward China. Japan's civilization is new. The elder statesman who replaced the army's bows and arrows with guns is still living. And while America did much to modernize the Japs, it was the Chinese who gave them civilization.

The Chinese gave them their language and religion, the art of writing, paper, printing, painting, silk, pottery, lacquer, lanterns, tea, coins, and goodness knows what else.

The Japs hate being indebted. They even teach their school children that Japanese invented the machines imported from America. And since they have forged ahead of China in the use of modern equipment, they bitterly resent the fact that Chinese culture made them what they are.

At present they are imitating the unwashed rustic who says to the city slicker: "I'm as good as you are, and I'm going to lick you to prove it."

PEOPLE

WHEN the 1939 story of industrial development in Georgia is written, it will embrace a great compilation of records and statistics, telling the story of growth and material accomplishment. Yet of themselves they mean little.

The huge industrial structure is but an organized mass of brick and stone and wood and steel. The complex machinery with which it is equipped represents merely man's conversion of the resources of the earth into a scientific plan. The raw materials or products which issue from that plant are primarily a transformation of nature's mineral or vegetable wealth for definite use or purpose.

The important question is—What do these accomplishments mean to people? Were they constructive and helpful? Did they open up channels of employment, use for dormant wealth, creation of serviceable commodities? Did they put money in circulation, did they help to raise the standards of living, did they mean new opportunities for the application of ability, industry and intelligence?

To us as the great banking institution of the Southeast, these are the real yardsticks by which we measure. Ours is a banking institution for people. Their progress, their welfare, their joys and happiness are continuously linked with the material transactions of each banking day. Our basic test is simple—Were people benefited?

Measured in this fashion, the accomplishments, the developments of our Empire State take on a new significance. They do meet the challenge of these yardsticks. They have meant much to our people. In that sense we rejoice that it has been our privilege to have a constructive part in the developments of the past year. As we have for more than half a century, so likewise do we pledge our continued cooperation in every form of social, industrial and agricultural activity which will contribute to the common good.

Perhaps our philosophy is better understood when we say that averagely every twenty-fourth man, woman or child passing you on the streets of the State of Georgia is a customer of our bank.

SANFORD LAMENTS YOUTH MIGRATION AWAY FROM STATE

Once Educated, They Move North for Bigger Salaries, He Says, Citing System's Growth.

More Georgia boys and girls are going to college today than ever before, but once educated, they are leaving the state for the north, where bigger salaries are available, Chancellor S. V. Sanford, of the University System, declared yesterday.

The chancellor made this statement simultaneously with the release of University System enrollment figures which show a 40 per cent increase in total enrollment in the various units during the past five years.

During 1939, 13,653 students were enrolled in the University System, as compared with 9,695 in 1935.

Alarmed at Migration.

Dr. Sanford said he was alarmed at the number of Georgia young men and women who are leaving the state to seek employment in other sections where more money is offered them. He is at present having prepared figures which will show exactly how many Georgia college graduates are now employed out of the state.

"We are at the point now where we have too many students and not enough money for the University System," Dr. Sanford said. "With more students in the system it means we must have more money with which to provide even higher education—masters' degrees and doctors' degrees."

"Intellectual Suicide."

Dr. Sanford said the state was committing "intellectual suicide" in not providing sufficient educational facilities.

"After we educate our boys and girls, they are no longer going into the learned professions—teaching, medicine and the like—but are availing themselves of jobs in business which offer more money."

Dr. Sanford said the increased enrollment in the University System shows the youth of today feel the need a college education to survive in the business world and that they have confidence in the University System.

Comparative enrollment figures at the various institutions follow:

New Talent Uncovered and Prize Winners Selected At Tri-County Art Exhibit on Display in High Museum

Prize-winning painting in oils in the three-county art exhibit, now on display at the High Museum of Art, is Marjorie Conant Bush-Brown's "Negro Study," which won first prize last night for oil paintings. Her work was praised for its transparent quality. Mrs. Bush-Brown has been widely acclaimed for her notable works in oil.

VARIED EMOTIONS FOUND IN AIRPLANE

United States," said one American. "South America is the only place. It's coming and coming fast."

"You're right," echoed the other American.

The Canadian agreed, and added that a young man had even less chance in Canada than in the United States.

Seamy-Faced Chap.

"Listen, boys," snapped the seamy-faced chap in the purple shirt, "that's what I thought, and that's what they told me when I went south 15 years ago."

"I'm still there," he said, "a little more gently. And I've been there so long I can't find a job at home, much as I want to come back. They don't want me. And to tell the truth, I haven't got the snap and pep I need to make a living in the States. I stayed down too long."

"Guess I'll die in South America, but I'll haunt anybody that buries me there," he mumbled, more or less pleased with the effects of his short speech.

There was a nervous young Swede aboard. He didn't say much, and for the first hour out of Miami kept twisting a newspaper in his hands.

Front Page Story.

There had been a front page story that morning telling how three had drowned when a small steamer overturned at its dock in southern Panama.

"One who died, the very young one," he said later, "was my son. The ship was mine, too. I am flying to be with my wife."

There were four women and two children on the plane. Two of the women were married to American engineers who helped open the sensational new Barco oil field in eastern Colombia. With a few personal effects to remind them of home, they were on their way to make a new home in a strange land. Their husbands thought the future brighter there.

The third woman was flying to Barranquilla to meet her fiancé. He was an American engineer with a job at the oil refinery on the bare Dutch island of Aruba, off the coast of Venezuela. They are to be married this week.

"Two or three years and we'll be back in the States," she explained after the man in the purple shirt told her that Aruba was a very dreary spot.

Catches His Eye.

The fourth woman, who had been living in Aruba for the last nine years, caught the eye of the

F. D. R. 'Will Not Choose To Run,' U. S. News Says

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—(P)—The United States News said today that President Roosevelt would not announce that he "does not choose to seek a third term."

The announcement will be made on January 20—one year before the next President takes office, the News said.

The paper is an independent weekly published by David Lawrence.

man in the purple shirt and smiled.

"We know better," their smiles said.

And so we flew across the warm seas between the two continents of the New World. That morning we left North America and its problems behind. Ahead lay the unknown continent, South America, rich in legends of undeveloped wealth.

Most of the passengers were on their way to begin a new life in countries whose people, history, customs and language were unfamiliar to them.

"More future," they had said.

Feeling Fine.

A few were returning to pick up where they left off when vacation time came.

A capacity load of us flew from Miami yesterday morning on the Barranquilla Clipper.

It was one of those mornings that aren't supposed to happen there. A cold wave had brought frost almost to the city's northern suburbs, and sent heavy clouds south to shut out the sun.

As we rose from the green waters of the bay the sun broke through for a moment to gild the top of the city's skyline. Seen from the air Miami looks more like a stage set than ever, lying in a thin north and south line between the desert of water to the east and the desolation of the Everglades to the west.

Plane Wheels.

The plane wheeled, flew south over shallow Biscayne bay, headed across the city to the sea, began to climb, and in a moment we were above a thick blanket of brilliantly white clouds.

For a monotonous hour and a half we flew above the clouds, the curtains drawn against the glare. Occasionally there would be a gap and we could see the deep blue waters of the Gulf Stream, carrying western Europe's climate.

Then the clouds fell behind. The dark ocean was speckled with light green areas, where coral reefs pushed upward almost to the surface. There were a few low islands covered with scrubby mangrove and pitted with green ponds. In a few moments there was a line of surf, a narrow white beach, and we were over Cuba.

Low Is Sea.

The section of Cuba we crossed lies low in the sea, and is heavily cultivated. The only things approaching a tropical forest we saw were groves of white-trunked royal palms lining the courses of the streams.

We passed over neat rectangular fields of pale green sugar cane, and several sugar centrals, the refineries with their tall smokestacks surrounded by rows of red-roofed, barracks for the laborers. Occasionally there would be a two-story house, set in the midst of a walled garden.

"For the manager," said the man in the purple shirt. "He's the big shot."

There were thousands of acres of pasture, spotted with brown and white cattle, and then suddenly we were over Cienfuegos' landlocked bay, with a mountain range climbing steeply to the east, and gentle hills rolling to the west.

Cienfuegos, a small pink and buff city, lies in a compact huddle on a low peninsula in the bay. We circled its domed church and tiled-roofed buildings, out the waters of the harbor into white spray, and slowly moved in to the dock to refuel.

Passengers Can't Leave.

Passengers were not allowed to leave the terminal. All we saw of Cienfuegos at close range in the few moments we were there was a small pink church with a large blue and white sign bearing the legend:

"Viva Jesus Cristo."

Leaving Cienfuegos, we flew east along the southern coast of Cuba, now mountainous and heavily forested. Soon we cut out

JEHOVAH'S WITNESS LOSES $1,000 SUIT

Victor Vlass Twice Has Sought Sum for Alleged False Arrest.

Victor Vlass, a Jehovah's Witness, yesterday lost another round in his four-year-old battle to force two Atlanta police officers—Lieutenant C. E. McCrary and H. C. Newton, to pay him $1,000 for alleged false arrest.

A Fulton superior court jury, deliberating less than 15 minutes, returned a verdict in favor of the two officers. It was the second time a Fulton superior court had taken this same action. The previous verdict, handed down November 16, 1938, was upset by the court of appeals which charged Vlass a new trial.

Vlass filed suit against the police officers after they had arrested him near Georgia Tech in June, 1936, with a suitcase full of Jehovah's Witness literature. The arrest followed receipt of several complaints alleging that Vlass had been annoying residents of that section while selling the tracts.

The sculpture prize was awarded to Julian H. Harris' "Written Education." Mr. Harris, graduate of Georgia Tech, studied sculpturing in Philadelphia. His "Written Education" is a plaster figure depicting a gold mine figure holding a large volume and is shown against a black background. The figure will be done in cut stone and placed in a panel on the front of the new state office building on Mitchell street.

The jury who chose the prize-winning works was composed of Jean Flanigan, painter, of Athens; Lamar Dodd, head of the fine arts department of the University of Georgia; and Edward S. Short, Columbus, vice president of the Southern States Art League.

The three-county art exhibit will continue through January 31, and is open to the public without charge.

WOMAN SUES HOSPITAL ON BABY MIXUP CHARGE

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 15.—(P)—Mrs. Frances Mahoney, 20, testified today that she has cared for a red-haired baby 16 months but is not certain he is her son.

Mrs. Anna Boaz, who gave birth to a son in the Lutheran hospital on the same day, September 12, 1923, also sued the institution but settled out of court.

Mrs. Mahoney said in her deposition today she was shown a red-haired baby boy and told it was her son, but five hours later was given a black-haired boy to nurse. When she prepared to leave the hospital, she testified, she was given the red-haired baby again.

across the Caribbean. The steward served bouillon, sandwiches and fruit, and we slept the two hours to Jamaica.

Jamaica, about as far removed from any theater of war as it is possible to be, is nevertheless taking it all very seriously, and is "muddling through" in her own little way.

Flares are only allowed to cross the island in one narrow lane, far removed from the forts the Spaniards built three centuries ago, and anything the English might have added since.

"Nuts," said the purple-shirted gentleman as he bumped across the mountains through rain and storm. This is stupid. The Germans wouldn't have Jamaica anyhow. It's the rottenest outpost of a decadent empire, and not much good for anything.

Weather Clears.

The weather soon cleared, and we could see the twisting red roads and the little clay fields of the island's valleys, in woeful contrast to the broad highways and planations of Cuba. In a minute we were drifting down over Kingston, slipped past some oil tanks camouflaged with orange, brown and green paint, and landed at Harbour Head, just as the north-bound Clipper took off for Cienfuegos and Miami.

In the distance, at the harbor mouth, we saw a British warship steaming out to sea.

For 20 minutes we sat on the pier and let the hot sun take the chill of the high altitudes out of our bones. Half an hour later we had a five-course dinner, 11,000 feet above sea level. In less than four hours we saw the snow-capped Sierra Nevada rising perpendicularly from the tropical sea. Half an hour more and we were over the swampy delta of the muddy Magdalena, skimming the tall twin-smokestacks of the river steamers that bring Colombia's produce from the highlands to deep water. The sleep Clipper landed, was hauled into a slip, and nosed into the dock by the side of native dugouts. Somebody grabbed our passport, and somebody else our baggage. There was a lot of confusion and politeness. We had arrived.

Mrs. Bush-Brown's 'Negro Study' Awarded First in Oil Paintings.

New talent was unearthed and the interest of local artists was quickened yesterday with the announcement of prizes awarded at the Tri-County Art Exhibit held at High Museum of Art for artists of Fulton, DeKalb and Cobb counties. The exhibit was sponsored by the Studio Club of Atlanta and the Artists' Guild of Atlanta.

Prize-winning oil paintings, water colors, graphics, which include all works done in dry mediums such as lead pencil, pastel, charcoal and chalk, and sculpturing were selected and given recognition last night.

Marjorie Conant Bush-Brown's "Negro Study" was awarded first prize for oil paintings. The picture is the bust of a negro woman.

Studied in Europe.

Mrs. Bush-Brown is the wife of Harold Bush-Brown, of Georgia Tech. Although a native of Massachusetts, she has made her home in Atlanta for 15 years. She has studied extensively in Europe and America, and has produced many works in oil.

"Georgia Landscape," by Robert Neal, native known southern negro painter, who is in charge of the art work at Morehouse College and Atlanta University. He is also affiliated with Spelman College. His subject is "Rain and Fog in the Rockies."

"Fulton Bag and Cotton Mills," by LeRoy Jackson, was awarded the second prize for water colors. Jackson is art supervisor at William A. Bass Junior High school. "Moscow," by Paul M. Hefferman, done in lead pencil, won first prize for graphics. Mr. Hefferman is an associate professor of architecture at Georgia Tech.

HEARINGS TO START ON PRIMARY TODAY

Subcommittee Will Meet To Plan for Date of Election.

A special subcommittee of the Fulton County Democratic Executive Committee, under the leadership of Hughes Spalding, county attorney, will begin a series of public hearings at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon to decide the date for holding the Fulton county primary.

The hearing today will be held at the courthouse in Judge Jesse Wood's courtroom on the second floor.

Mr. Spalding said the public is invited to give hearing and he emphasized sufficient sessions would be held to give all interested parties a chance to be heard.

The committee's recommendation will be filed with the full committee for final action.

Sentiment was developing yesterday for a primary in April or May. A large part of sentiment was coming from school minded citizens who are anxious to have their proposed bond issue voted on at the same time as the primary because of the necessity of getting out a big vote.

Other members of the special committee are C. M. "Mac" Bolen, D. B. Gullatt, Jesse F. Monroe, W. Hugh Barnett, W. W. Warren and F. F. Allen.

Nearly 1,000,000 pounds of canned cheese were marketed in 1939.

Louisiana Election Today Ends Torrid Political Race

Four Candidates Seeking To Overthrow 'Longism'; 600,000 Voters Eligible.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 15.—(P)—Louisiana's crucial Democratic primary campaign came to an end tonight with no letup in activities of four anti-administration candidates seeking to defeat Governor Earl K. Long and break the dictatorial power his brother established as governor 12 years ago.

Long carried his campaign almost into election day proper with a rally at Baton Rouge, not far from where the slain "Kingfish" lies buried on the capital grounds. His grave a shrine for the hero worshippers Governor Long has impromptu to vote for him tomorrow and carry on the memory of Huey.

Long said he would carry New Orleans by a big majority and lead in all but ten of the state's 64 parishes (counties).

WATKINS, WELLS, M'DOUGALL PLEAD FOR BOND ISSUE

Leaders Tell Grand Jury $750,000 Will Help To Relieve Serious Local Unemployment Problem

Robert MacDougall, state WPA administrator, Robert C. Watkins, regional WPA engineer, and Jere Wells, Fulton county school superintendent, yesterday urged the Fulton county grand jury to recommend the school department's proposed $750,000 bond issue as a means of relieving a serious local unemployment problem.

Watkins and Wells appeared personally before the grand jury, while MacDougall sent a letter, which was presented by Watkins. The jury met in special session called to hear the school and unemployment situation discussed.

Appearing with Wells and Watkins was J. D. Smith, chairman of a subcommittee of the September-October grand jury which unanimously endorsed the bond issue.

Dorsey Explains.

Before delving into the school matter, the jury was called before Judge Hugh M. Dorsey, who gave them a special charge relating to the fixing of the county's relief rate.

At the request of the county legal department, Judge Dorsey explained that under the 1939 act the county commissioners can fix a relief rate of only 1-4 mills but if two succeeding grand juries fix a higher rate—not to exceed 3 mills—then the commissioners may use this figure.

He also explained that under terms of the new budget law, the county's 1940 budget must be approved by March 15 and this budget must be based on the amount which the county will set aside for relief.

At present the county's relief rate is 2-4 mills. However, the welfare board and the commissioners have insisted that this amount is not sufficient to meet the county's needs.

Yesterday's action in requesting Judge Dorsey to explain the law is the initial set-up in a campaign to have the present and the succeeding grand jury to approve a rate of not less than 3 mills.

Aid to Employment.

While no comment was forthcoming from the grand jury, it was understood both Wells and Watkins emphasized the result of the bond issue and its attendant building program would have on the unemployment situation here.

Last week, Mr. MacDougall issued a statement saying that approval of the bond issue would not only release a large amount of WPA funds in this vicinity but would give jobs to at least 60 percent of the more than 5,000 persons who have been certified for WPA jobs but cannot work because they have no projects.

Mr. Wells said it was learned, told the jury that more than 25 percent of the registered voters in the county have petitioned for the election.

So far no date has been selected for the voting.

85 INDICTMENTS IN BUILDING TRADES

U. S. Campaign To Reduce Construction Costs Hits New Peak.

CHICAGO, Jan. 15.—(P)—The government's coast-to-coast campaign to reduce construction costs by attacking suspected trade restraints in the building industry reached a new peak today with the indictment of 85 labor leaders, contractors, manufacturers, unions and other organizations.

A federal grand jury here indicted 25 individuals, 14 companies, a contractors' association and a union on charges of violating the anti-trust law. The 41 defendants were accused of conspiring to suppress competition in the tile business in the Chicago area.

A federal grand jury in New Orleans indicted the building and construction trades council of New Orleans, most of the American Federation of Labor building trades unions there and their manager on similar charges. The defendants—44 in all—were accused of refusing to receive material delivered by truck drivers who are members of the United Transport Workers' Union, a CIO affiliate.

A federal judge in New Orleans fined 15 defendants on charges of diverting PWA funds in connection with bidding on the new Charity hospital foundation there.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 15.—(P)—The brick that pretty Patricia Winfrey tossed through a drugstore window—so police would arrest her and take her to a nice, warm jail—will cost her $178.21.

Municipal Judge Newcomb Condee, before whom she was arraigned, found her guilty to a charge of malicious mischief, ordered her to pay $15 a month until she had paid for the window.

Miss Winfrey, unemployed New York dancer, has been given shelter until she finds steady work, by the Rev. Anderson Jarline, the minister who married the Duke and Duchess of Windsor, and Mrs. Jardine.

300 ARE INJURED AS FLAMES SWEEP TEA CENTER'S RESIDENTIAL DISTRICT.

TOKYO, Jan. 15.—(P)—Approximately 300 persons were injured and 50,000 were made homeless today by fire which ravaged the city of Shizuoka, Japan's tea-shipping center.

Despite the ferocity of the flames, which were partially controlled in the western section of the city, only two firemen were known to be dead. Earlier Japanese reports had said 300 persons were believed dead.

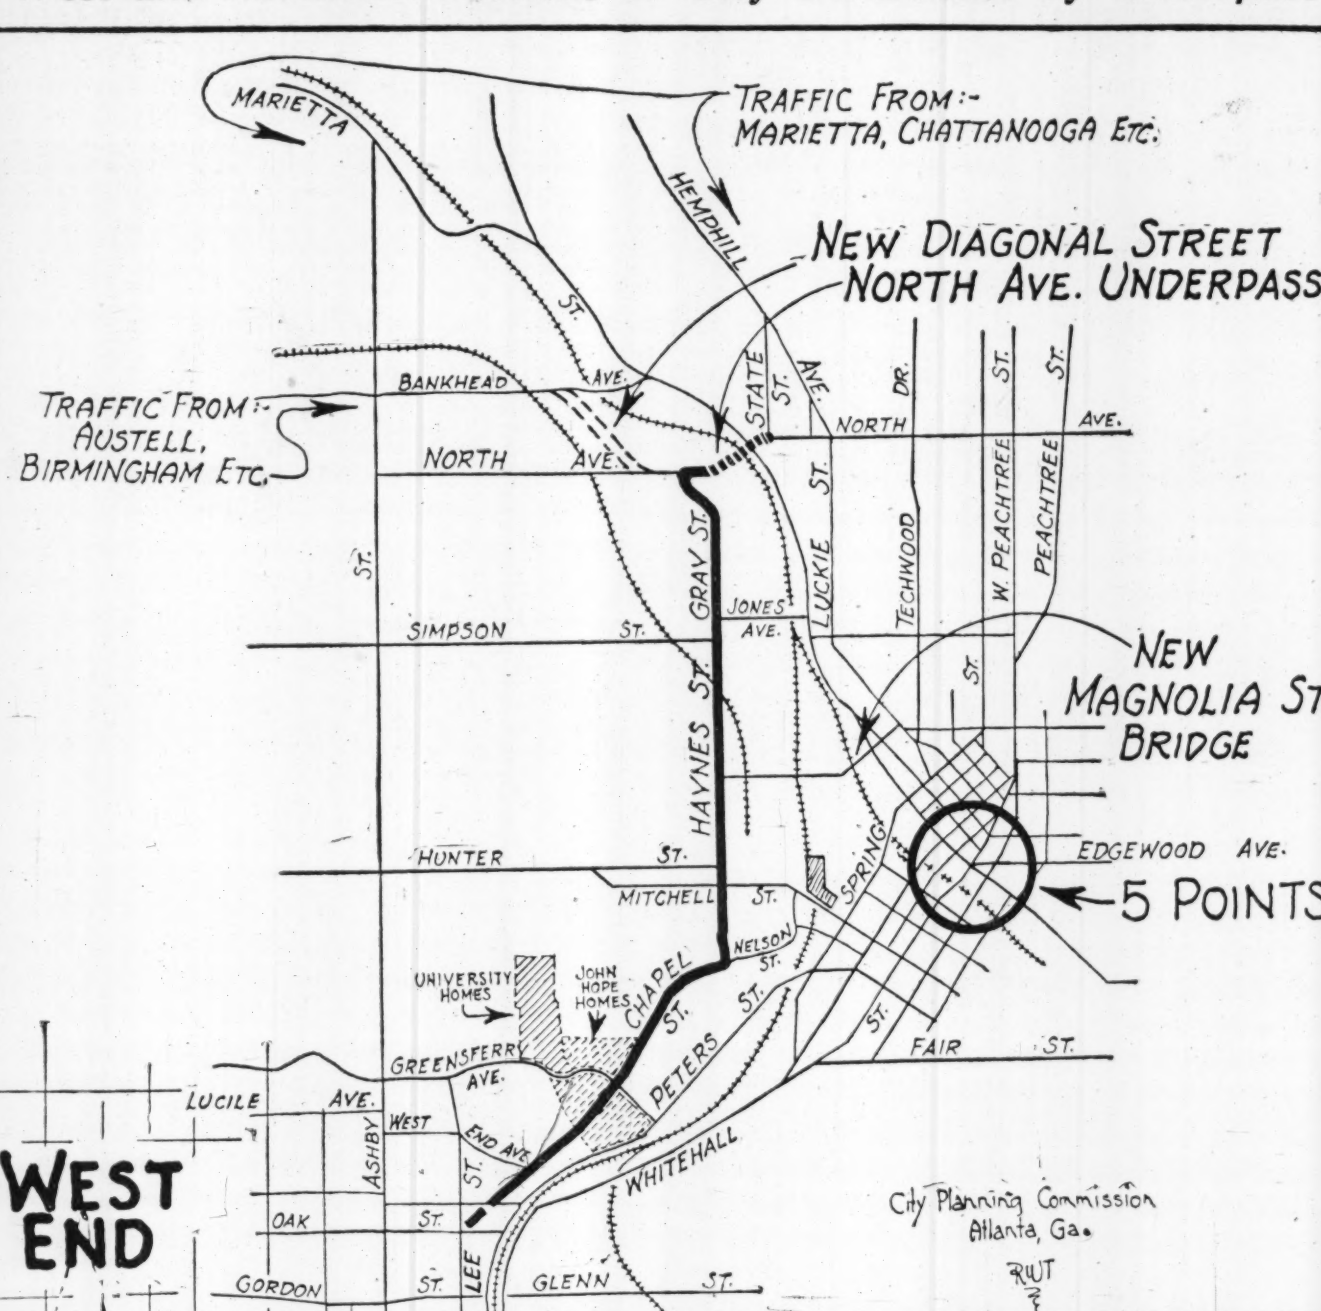

The homeless were fed and housed in tents set up by relief workers rushed here from nearby cities.

The business district of the city of 200,000 was destroyed and the flames swept on through a residential district in the eastern section tonight.

West and Northwest Sections of City To Benefit by Underpass

A comprehensive study of the effect which the proposed west North avenue underpass will have on traffic congestion. West End will derive direct benefit, as indicated, as well as the whole northwest section. In addition to long-distance traffic referred to on the map, vehicles from Palmetto, Fairburn, Union City, College Park and East Point also will be provided, via Lee street and the John Hope Homes project, with a route by-passing downtown Atlanta. County commissioners yesterday deferred final action which would accept the federal government's proffer of the $485,000 underpass.

of an oil lamp as he had done in attending birth of more than 3,000 other children—including 50 sets of twins, Sankey delivered the four tiny babes.

The Alabama Health Department in Montgomery said it was the first birth of quadruplets on record in the state's history.

The three girls were born first, starting at 8 p. m. The boy was born at 9:15 p. m.

Babes in Incubator.

Sankey today had the babies and their mother brought to the Walker county hospital here. The quadruplets were put in a baby incubator where they remained tonight.

The parents had no trouble deciding on names for the three girls—Faith, Hope and Charity—but had not agreed upon one for the boy.

Short accompanied the quadruplets to the hospital and tonight sat in overalls and rough work shirt and shoes beside the bed of his wife.

Both Were Surprised.

"I expected twins, but no more," the father smiled. "I'd heard of this, but I didn't think it would ever happen to us."

Sankey left the children in care of Dr. A. C. Jackson, and returned to his other cases at Nauvoo, Jackson said the babies and the mother were "doing all right." Their condition within the next 24 hours would determine the diet he would give them.

Short and Mrs. Short are both 34 years old. They had five children previously. The oldest is now 10 and none was a multiple birth. Short is a tenant farmer, but also works in mines and sometimes for Works Projects Administration to make enough to give his family the bare necessities.

County Board Asked To Set Aside $87,690 for Variety of Projects

New Buckhead Library and Addition to Rural Service Urged at Budget Hearing; Capitol View-Sylvan Hills Park Fund Approved.

Approximation requests totaling $87,690 for expansion of library and parks facilities and the construction of the West North avenue underpass were submitted to the Fulton county commissioners yesterday as the board began a series of public hearings on the county's 1940 budget of $4,918,992.

Hearings will be resumed at 10 o'clock this morning.

Specific requests, received at yesterday's session follow:

$2,690 for personnel and book additions to the county library service.

$15,000 for the construction of a new library at Buckhead.

$57,500 for right-of-way purchases in connection with the construction of the West North avenue underpass.

$10,000 for development of a park in the Capitol View-Sylvan Hills section.

$2,500 to the Atlanta Freight Bureau.

All requests but one—the park proposal—were taken under consideration by the commission.

Willing to Share.

In approving the park proposal, the commissioners agreed that if the city would spend its $10,000 for the purchase of land, the county would supply lumber, rock and equipment amounting to $10,000 or more for development of the area.

This action resulted from a proposal submitted by Commissioner Troy Chastain to George I. Simons, general manager of the city's parks department just as it appeared that the commission was all set to take the matter under advisement.

Appearing in behalf of the park proposal was a delegation of more than 100 fourth ward residents which included Councilmen C. M. "Mac" Bolen and John Marler, Ernest Brewer, president of the Fourth Ward Civic Forum, and Frank Etheridge, president of the West End Businessmen's Association.

The park will be developed as a city-county recreational area and will not include a golf course, Simons told the commissioners.

Property under consideration for the park is a portion of the old Perkerson estate, just off Sylvan road.

Library Increase Sought.

Delegations from Fairburn, Alpharetta, Buckhead and Peachtree Hills, headed by Miss Fannie Hinton, librarian at Carnegie library, asked the board to increase its annual appropriation for library services from $7,650 to $10,340 so the county program could be expanded.

After taking the request under advisement, the commission agreed to increase the appropriation to $10,340 to meet with library officials in the near future for a full discussion of county library needs with the expressed hope of establishing traveling libraries that would reach every section of the rural areas.

J. Clayton Burke, secretary of the Atlanta Elks Club, presented a proposal whereby the county should divert $12,000 of its $36,000 monthly allocation for relief to finance a county vocational rehabilitation program for relief clients.

He said the program—mainly agricultural—could be developed on county owned property by allocating an acre of ground to each family.

The matter was referred to the county board of public welfare after Commissioner J. C. Hailey pointed out that the county is without authority to say how the relief money shall be spent.

Mr. Burke indicated he would take the matter up with county welfare officials.

UNDERPASS ACTION DELAYED BY COUNTY

—who, incidentally, made the motion to refer—that the county long ago had approved the project even to the extent of trying to prevail on the city to match appropriations for the necessary rights-of-way.

County Traffic Plan.

Yesterday, however, the commissioners wanted to know if the underpass fitted into a plan of traffic control on which the county planning commission was declared to be at work, and it was presumptively to settle this point that the matter was sent to the various county authorities enumerated—with whom, it was suggested, the city planning commission and state and federal authorities involved also might consult.

Meantime, it remained that if the required $57,500 requested of the county as its share of the rights-of-way fund were not placed in the county budget in some form by March 15, the somewhat dusty and faded paper project could crawl back into its pigeon-hole for at least another year—if not forever—despite its potential beneficial effects upon unemployment, upon traffic control of Atlanta and upon the development of the northwest area generally.

City Dubious.

Courtland Gilbert, secretary of the county planning commission, said a meeting would be held at 10 o'clock Friday morning.

City officials immediately concerned with the plan, however, including those of the highest rank, viewed the day's development with dubiety and cynicism.

The project originally was urged on the city about four years ago by Commissioner Almand, who was accompanied to a conference in the office of Mayor Hartsfield by George R. Lingino, then a county commissioner, and R. B. Pegram, vice president of the Southern Railway System. The city then hadn't the money,

City council yesterday officially called on members of the Fulton county commission to provide one-half the cost of construction of the West North avenue underpass at Marietta street, and pledged that its half cost—estimated at $57,500—would be made available as soon as the county acts.

In taking action, the council approved a resolution prepared at last Wednesday night's meeting of the city finance committee, which sought to expedite start on the project which engineers say will cost approximately $700,000 when completed.

Mayor Hartsfield will approve the measure as soon as it reaches his desk and will ask City Clerk Joe L. Richardson to forward a certified copy to members of the commission.

MAGAZINE OFFICIALS SENTENCED TO JAIL

Woman President Among Trio Getting Year-and-a-Day for Fraud.

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—(P)—Catherine McNellis, president, and two other officers of the defunct Tower Magazines, Inc., were sentenced today to a year and a day imprisonment for mail fraud. Others sentenced were her brother, John, circulation manager, and Joseph E. Flynn, business manager. The firm was fined $700.

The government charged advertisers were defrauded of $1,000,000 by excessive rates based on false circulation figures. The verdict was returned December 30 by a federal court jury.

Judge Clarence Galston said he would recommend the defendants be considered for parole after they served four months.

He recommended that Miss McNellis, a woman in her early 40s, be confined in the federal reformatory for women at Alderson, W. Va. E. Frederick Low, comptroller, who pleaded guilty, was placed on probation for a year under suspended sentence.

Hartsfield declared, and so the plan lapsed for the time.

It was expected yesterday that the financial question would be the one raised by the county commissioners, but virtually nothing was said of it. The two commissioners to speak on the proposition, Almand and Troy Chastain, raised respectively (1) the question of the county's projected master traffic plan and (2) if the $135,000 estimates of rights-of-way costs weren't too high.

Mr. Marshall, answering on the second point, declared that the virtually worthless land west of Marietta street required for the underpass, western approach and new street was being donated, and that the far more expensive industrial property east of Marietta street needed was what made necessary most of the appropriation.

In other quarters it was pointed out that original estimates of the costs of rights-of-way had exceeded greatly the amount now wanted.

The specific proposition before the commissioners was to match $57,500 from the city treasury to be added to $20,000 from the N. C. & St. L. and Southern Railway roads to complete the total.

Civic Leaders Appear.

Among those to urge favorable action was Hugh C. Couch, former official of the Southern Railway System, who declared all of the commissioners to be so fully familiar with the plan that discussion hardly was necessary, and W. W. Matthews, member of a delegation from the Sixth Ward Board of Trade, who said he felt sure that favorable action by the federal road bureau, on the East North avenue underpass project, would result, as desired by the request.

Mr. Marshall appeared at the request of Commissioner Almand in an informative capacity. Both he and Mr. Couch strongly intimated that federal funds for the East North avenue project, for a widened North avenue, from Peachtree street eastward and for other beneficial projects would follow acceptance of the long-standing offer of the West North avenue underpass.

It was understood that Charles D. Sneed, supervisor of the federal road authority for Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, and Tennessee, regarded the West North avenue underpass as "No. 1" and would consider no "No. 2" until it had been arranged for.

COUNCIL URGES COUNTY TO PROVIDE ITS HALF

Magazine Queen Draws a Year and a Day

Skilled boss of the defunct Tower Magazines, Inc., was Miss Catherine McNellis, shown as she tripped into court at New York yesterday to stand trial for mail fraud. She, with two other officers of the firm, drew concurrent sentences of a year and a day on each of seven counts—for use of excessive ad rates based on false circulation figures. Escorting her to the trial is her lawyer, Archibald Palmer.

Council Refuses Salary Increases, Approves 1940 Finance Sheet

$10,462,619 Provided for Operation and Maintenance of Various Departments; $300,000 Is Included for Improvements, New Equipment.

City council and the aldermanic board yesterday overrode proposals of salary increases for municipal employees and by overwhelming votes approved the 1940 finance sheet providing $10,462,619 for operation and maintenance of various departments and more than $300,000 for public improvements and new equipment. About 500 employees were seeking advances totaling $196,000 annually.

When Alderman Ed A. Gilliam, finance committee chairman, submitted the budget, Councilman John A. White, finance committee, precipitated a storm by offering an amendment providing $1,815 in $5 and $10 monthly salary increases for 14 employees of the Carnegie library.

Amendment Withdrawn.

After considerable maneuvering and debate, White was induced to withdraw his amendment as administration proponents of "improvements instead of salary hikes" gained the upper hand, and the finance sheet was adopted on a roll call vote by the council itself by a vote of ten to one—with Councilman George B. Lyle casting the only negative vote.

Following adjournment of council, the aldermanic board voted to approve the sheet four to one against—with Alderman G. Dan Bridges, first ward, casting the negative.

Passage of the budget by the aldermen automatically sent the measure to Mayor Hartsfield for his sanction, a formality he is expected to exercise probably today.

To Survey Departments.

The actions of the councilmen and aldermen were construed to be "the death of any salary hikes before next June," by Gilliam, who championed a resolution instructing Carl T. Sutherland, personnel director, to survey departments with a view of classifying positions and jobs. The measure was passed without debate.

When the White amendment was offered, Councilman J. Allen Couch, finance committee member, took the floor to inquire whether Gilliam proposed to present any amendments to the finance sheet. He at first objected to any vote on the finance sheet until "members of this council have had opportunity to study it long enough to find out what is in the sheet," he said. Gilliam responded that the completed budget was "handed to us when we came in and we haven't had time to digest it."

After White agreed to withdraw his resolution for raises in the library department, Couch and others, who had championed "raises and salary adjustments for those in the lower brackets" switched and "went along" in adopting the budget.

Postponement Averted.

Half a dozen members of council and the aldermanic board joined in the heated debates over whether or not council should adjourn to meet against next Monday to tackle the problem of adopting the sheet after Couch attempted to force postponement of any immediate action.

In the list besides Couch, Gilliam and White were Aldermen Bridges and Lyle and Councilman J. Frank Beck.

Stephen Early Says He Has No Official Information on Capture.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—(P)—Stephen Early, a presidential secretary, said today he had no official information that fingerprinting of members of the crew of the German liner Columbus had resulted in the catching of a German spy.

In a press conference this morning, Early said the fingerprinting had disclosed that one man was a spy "who otherwise would have escaped." In New York, however, P. E. Foxworth, in charge of the New York office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, denied that a Nazi spy had been arrested, and a similar denial was made by Byron Ulm, deputy commissioner of immigration.

Advised on these statements, Early said his original assertion was based on newspaper reports and was intended as a comment on the fact that although there has been some opposition to compulsory fingerprinting, it had proved helpful on occasion.

Early said he had learned later that the report was erroneous.

County Residents Descend on Board With Many Requests for Money

Fulton county residents from every section crowded into the county commissioners' chambers yesterday as public hearings on the county's 1940 budget were begun. Shown addressing the commissioners are a group of women from Buckhead, Peachtree Hills, Fairburn and Alpharetta. They came to ask for an expansion of the county's library services, which they said can be accomplished with an additional appropriation of $2,690. Most of the others shown in the picture were residents of the fourth ward, who were seeking $10,000 for a park in the Sylvan Hills-Capitol View section.

FASTEST DRIVER WARNS AUTOISTS TO BE CAREFUL

Wilbur Shaw, Winner of Indianapolis Derby Twice, Tells Rotarians Driving Is Full-Time Job.

Wilbur Shaw, the fastest automobile driver in the United States, yesterday told Atlanta Rotarians to "slow down and watch where you're going" if traffic accidents are to be avoided.

Twice winner of the Indianapolis races, he compared an automobile to an army mule—"It's good to you for 20 years just so it can kick you once"—and called operation of any vehicle a "full-time job."

"On the race track," he said, "courtesy and consideration of the other fellow is the principle under which we operate. I'm afraid this cannot be said of the open highway."

Preaches Safety.
Although Shaw has eight times driven the Indianapolis course at better than 100 miles an hour and has won more places than any other driver, he preached safety from every angle but emphasized "paying attention to the job at hand—driving."

"When a car chases it cannot be called an accident," he said, "because an accident is something ever which you have no control. And accidents are caused by a driver here with his mind elsewhere."

"Whenever I see somebody driving a car and looking every way but the right way I put him down as just an accident going somewhere to happen."

Prefacing his talk by a motion picture of the 1939 Indianapolis race which he won at an average of 110 miles per hour, he said race drivers were not "just individuals with an undeveloped sense of self-preservation but men doing a job in the best sport of all."

Loses Weight.
Shaw loses 11 pounds every race. "If you've won it feels no different than if you've come in tenth," he said. "The thing that counts is that the grind is over."

"But if ordinary drivers were as careful as we are during that grind the highways would be as safe as the race track," he said. "If you treat your car with respect, it will do the same for you."

Jim Malone, president of the Rotary Club, announced that the annual ladies' night party would be held February 16, at the Piedmont Driving Club.

Speaks In West End.
Shaw was honor guest and principal speaker at the meeting of the West End Business Men's Association at 887 Gordon street last night.

Frank G. Etheridge, president of the association, presided. The parks and playgrounds committee reported that money had been obtained for a park in the Capitol View-Sylvan Hills section and improving the Howell Park in West End.

It was announced that plans are virtually complete for the annual banquet February 22 at the Park Street Methodist church. Reservations may be made by calling Raymond 3161.

SAVANNAH HARBOR MAY GET $753,000

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—(P)—A $753,000 item for the Savannah harbor today topped a list of expenditures totalling $1,197,300 army engineers reported could be "profitably" made on Georgia rivers and harbors during the year beginning July 1.

The total was a part of $142,778,660 Major General Julian L. Schley, chief of engineers, recommended for work throughout the nation. His figure was more than twice budget estimates of $70,174,090 for rivers and harbors.

A drive already has started to raise the budget figures.

No new work was proposed for Georgia.

Life One Thing After Another, But He Ducked

Life to John L. Harry, auto mechanic, was not just a bowl of cherries, he indicated yesterday while testifying in a contested divorce suit in Fulton superior court.

Instead life was an assortment of milk bottles, kitchen utensils and butcher knives—all of which he said were thrown at him by his wife, Mrs. Jennie M. Harry.

Harry told the jury his wife—on one occasion—nagged and harassed him for five straight hours—midnight to 5 a. m.—during which she tossed about everything she could lay her hands on at him. Mrs. Harry did not appear in court, sending word from her home in Pennsylvania that illness prevented her attendance. However, the trial went on just the same and the jury awarded Harry a divorce decree.

MAYOR REAPPOINTS HOSPITAL TRUSTEES

Planning Commission Members Also Are Renamed by Hartsfield.

Six prominent Atlantans yesterday were reappointed by Mayor Hartsfield for new terms as members of the Grady hospital board of trustees and as members of the city planning commission. City council concurred unanimously in the mayor's action.

Those named for new four-year terms to the Grady board are Thomas K. Glenn, chairman; Kendall Weisiger and Edwin R. Haas. Dr. A. C. Ayers, A. C. Wellborn and T. E. Drake were designated to succeed themselves for two-year terms as members of the planning commission.

Under an act of the Georgia legislature terms of Grady board members will extend for four years in the future.

James L. Wells, board member whose term has not yet expired, will serve with the reappointed members.

In addition to the citizen members of the board, the mayor and the chairman of the hospitals committee, Councilman Frank Wilson, serve.

STARTLING NEW DEVELOPMENT in Motor Fuels

...Two new gasolines to give you an EXTRA MARGIN
OF PERFORMANCE at no increase in price...

NEW SUPER-SHELL

An Advanced Motor Fuel For Exceptional Performance

There's an exciting new experience waiting for you at your neighborhood Shell station—a NEW Super-Shell gasoline with stepped-up performance you can FEEL without using your imagination.

Give this NEW Super-Shell the toughest tests you can think of. Notice how quickly it starts on the coldest mornings. Notice the surging power as you shift from first—to second—to third. Notice the increased anti-knock on the steepest hill you can find. Notice the reserve energy responding to the touch of your foot as you pass other cars.

MOST OF ALL—notice how EVERY quality of the NEW Super-Shell has been improved to increase your savings on Stop-and-Go.

You're right! It DOES cost more to make this NEW gasoline—but it costs you no more to buy it!

This spectacular advance made by the same talent
...the same company that

FIRST SPONSORED ANTI-KNOCK RESEARCH... Under the sponsorship of Shell, Harry Ricardo discovered principles that made modern high-compression engines possible. His experiments in flame propagation and action of aromatic hydro-carbons led to development of Shell's "BALANCING PROCESS" in refining.

FIRST TO RE-FORM GASOLINE... Many of the great advances in gasoline refining have come from Shell laboratories. In these laboratories are more than 1000 skilled scientists—who search tirelessly and unceasingly for new and better ways to make new and better petroleum products at ever lower cost.

AND NOW SHELL'S BALANCING PROCESS SAVES YOU MORE MONEY ON STOP-AND-GO... Basis of both the new Super-Shell and the new Shell Premium is the "BALANCING PROCESS." This means that no one essential quality is emphasized at the sacrifice of another. Thus—when you start—shift gears—accelerate—or travel steadily every drop of motor fuel is completely usable.

Both Super-Shell and Shell Premium are refined by this process.

Because you get full value from every drop—because it responds instantly to all driving conditions—you reduce gasoline waste. You save on Stop-and-Go.

NEW SHELL PREMIUM

The Finest Gasoline Ever to Bear the Shell Name

New Shell Premium comes straight from the same scientific research that produced the first 100 octane gasoline—the gasoline used in today's racing planes.

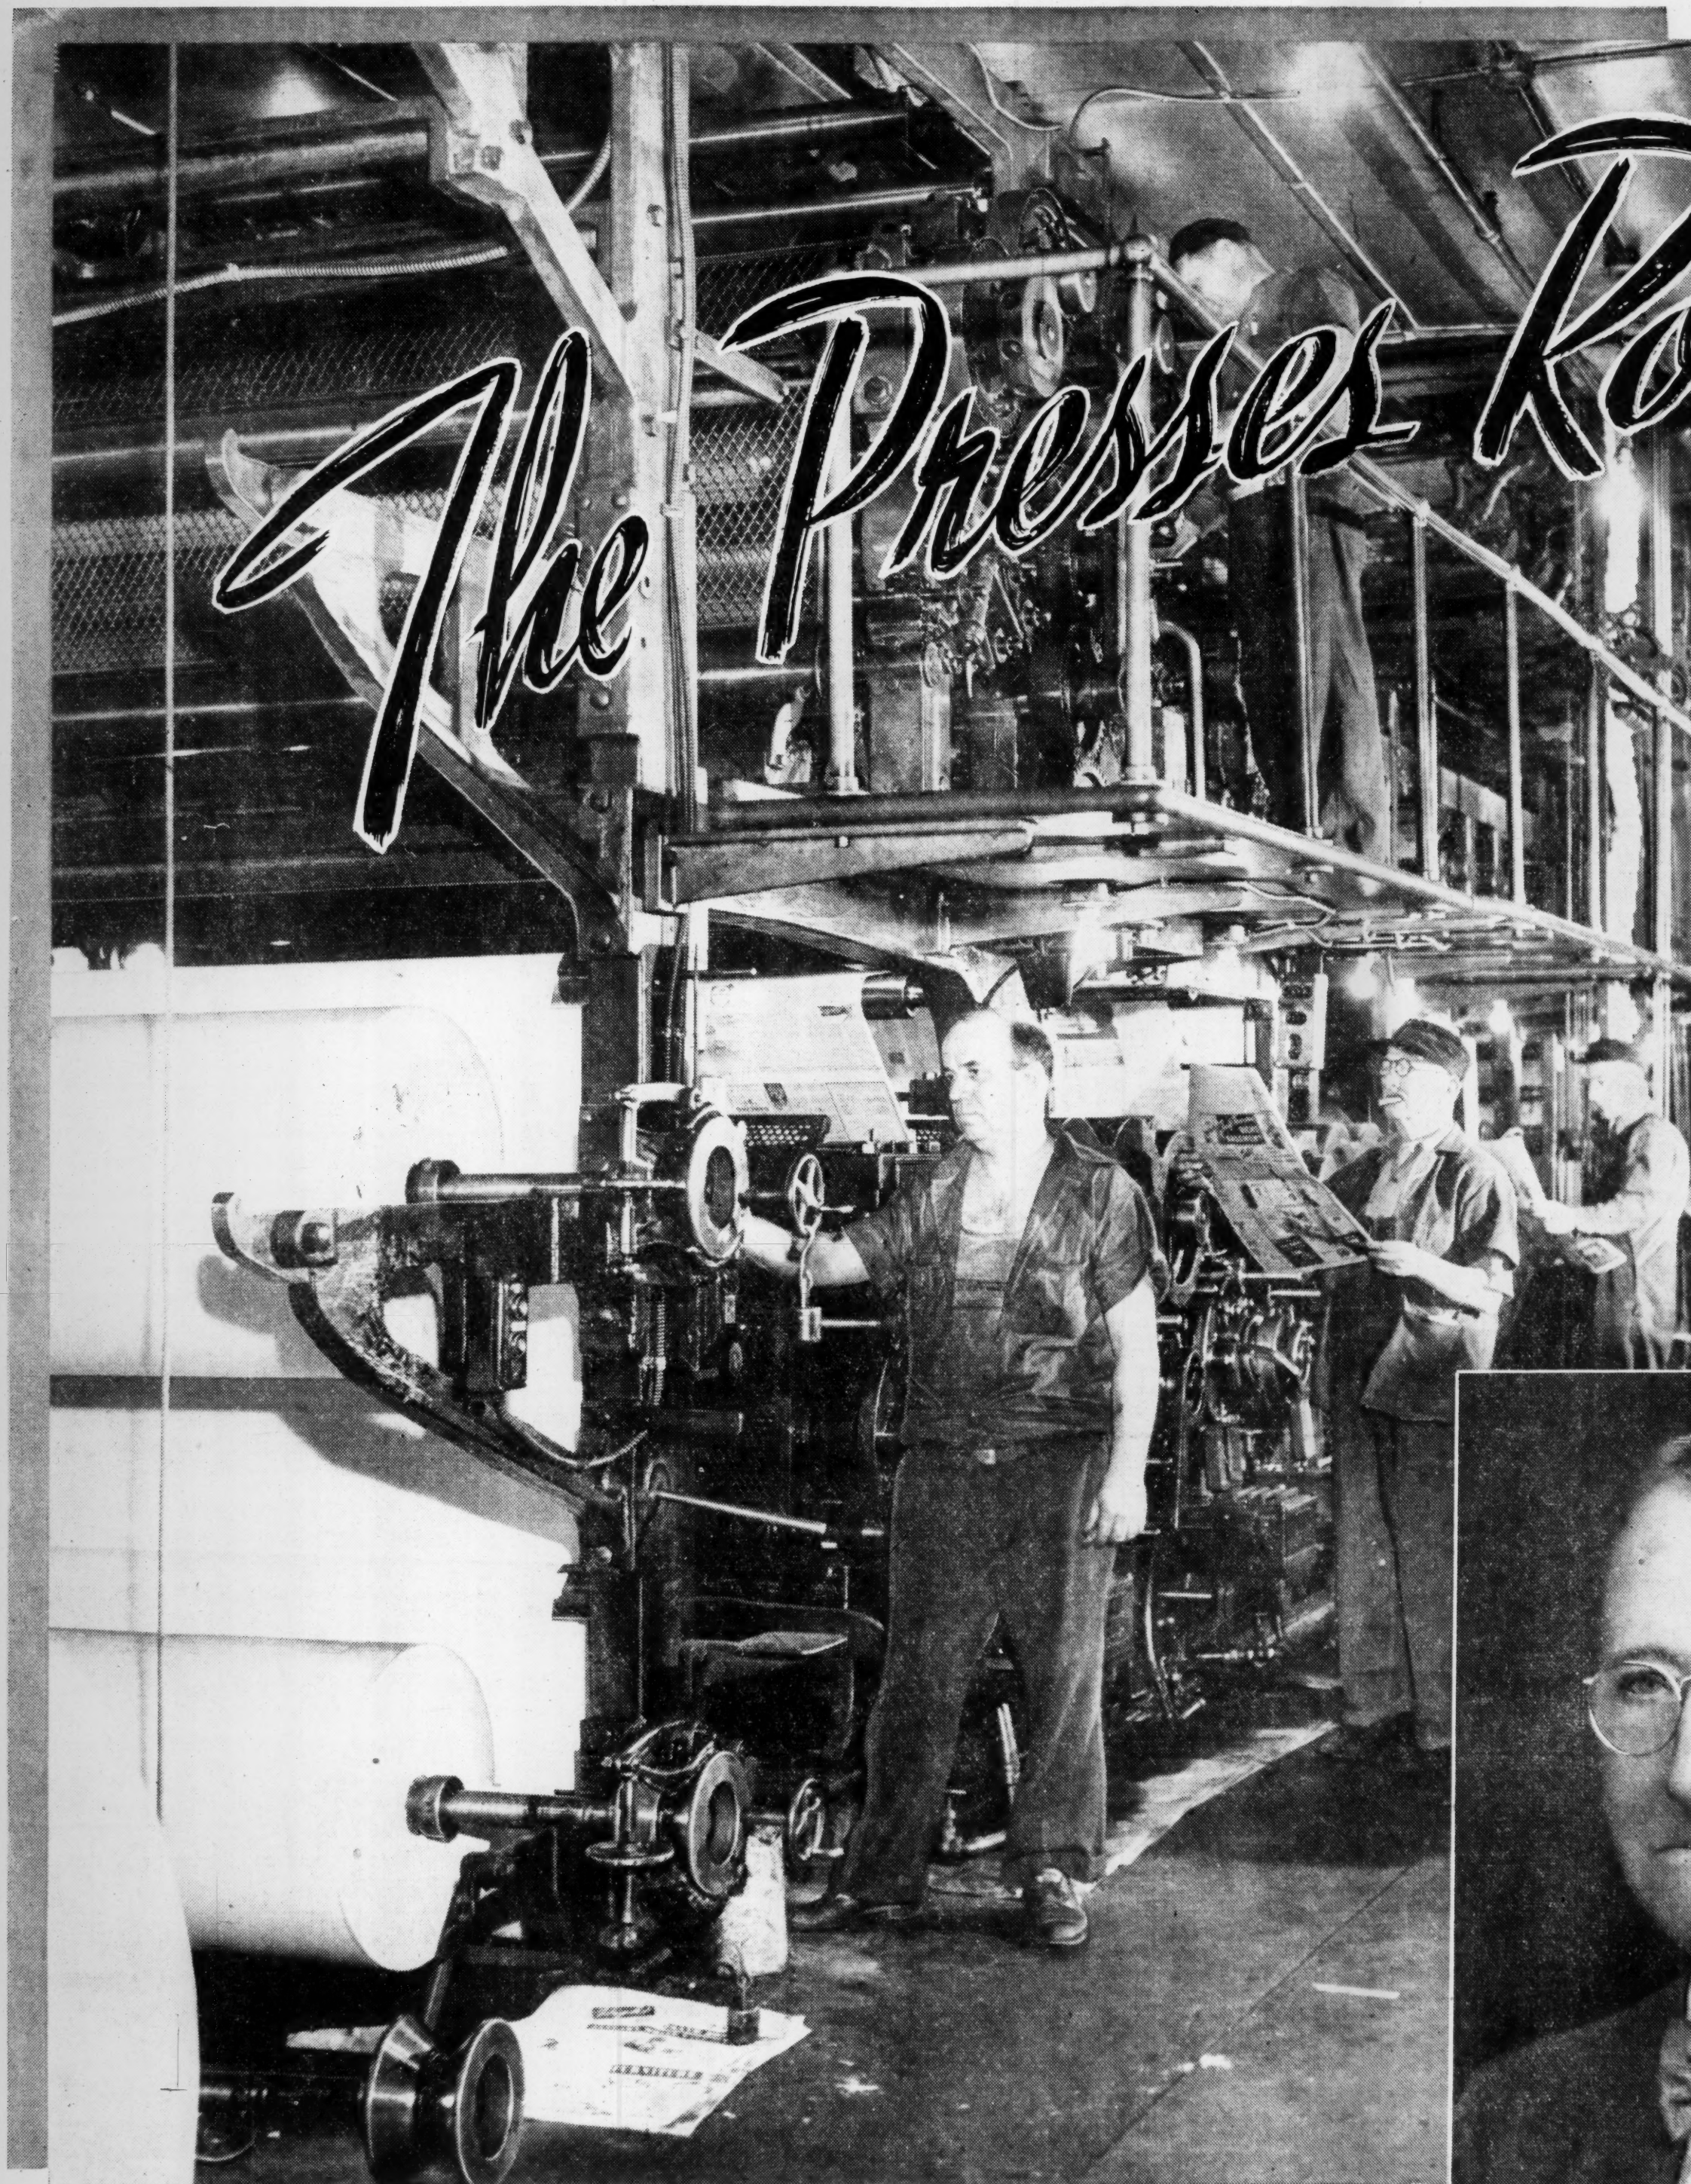

If your car has an anti-knock requirement far above the average—you will appreciate the utmost in performance of New Shell Premium.

Still more costly to make, the New Shell Premium gives you EVEN WIDER MARGIN of performance at slight additional cost.

As you come in the door for this visit, we will assume it is late afternoon.

You would feel in the air a vibration that might be miles away. It is subdued, powerful.

The presses are rolling.

The presses are below the street level, huge, black and decorated with bronze.

Down there men move about in overalls, watching the presses, making an occasional adjustment of some lever.

Bill Turner is down there. You'd want to meet Bill.

He has had the same job—the same one, mind you, for more than 60 years. That's a life-time. Bill is going strong. He has worn out 13 presses, starting years ago with the cylinder presses.

He loves those tremendous tons of metal with their inky-black rollers, tiers of them with the wide ribbon of newsprint flowing through them, their plates whirling.

Bill stands there like the artist he is. Every time I see Bill with his presses I think of some great violinist. Honest, I do. Because, Bill figuratively can tuck those great tons of metal beneath his chin and play on them. Or, you can imagine Bill as the conductor of a symphony—a symphony of machinery which, despite its tonnage, is as delicate as the mechanism of a watch—with his crew as the musicians.

Bill will blush at that—61 years on the job and still blushing at a compliment. We wish you all could know him and his crew. But particularly Bill. You'd know him by his cigar. I figured it up. Three cigars a day for 61 years. It runs into more than 66,000 cigars.

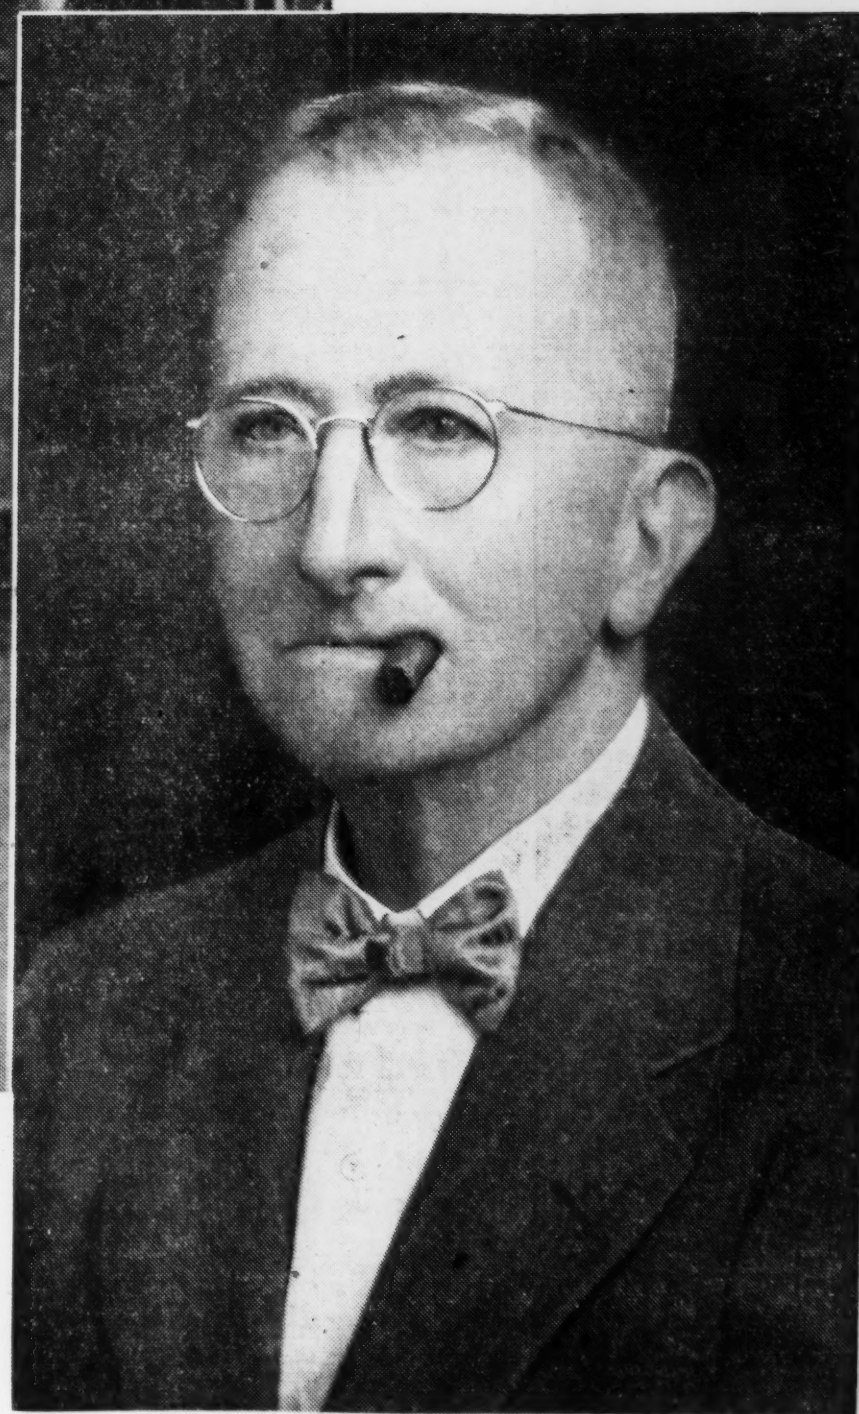

He never yet has lighted one.

Three a day—never lit—for 61 years.

The power of the press is an intangible—yet tangible thing. It depends on the character, the integrity and the closeness of the paper to the people who read it. Bill Turner is the power of the presses.

We wanted The Constitution family of readers to visit the presses—to know Bill—to know the big machines which not only print the papers, but cut them, fold them and count them.

Next week—The Mailing Room.

W. M. (BILL) TURNER

He never yet has lighted one."

Ecuadorian Senorita Arrives in Atlanta To Learn English and See the Sights

Sister of Atlanta Man To Live Here; Hopes To Enter Agnes Scott.

A popular song of the day is "South of the Border," but pretty Clara Mansour, of Quito, Ecuador, came all the way from South America to make her home here.

She arrived at municipal airport yesterday afternoon, just six hours after she saw the United States for the first time. She made the trip with her brother, George A. Mansour Jr.

"Next fall," she explained in Spanish, with her brother acting as interpreter, "I hope to enter Agnes Scott College. Until then, I shall try to learn a little English and see some of America."

So far, her view of America has been limited to what little of Miami is visible from a taxi cab traveling from one airport to another.

She soon intends to remedy that, however, and become a real American. She is 21 years old and, before long, hopes to become an American citizen.

She will make her home in Atlanta with her brother at 1170 Lanier boulevard.

Mansour, who also is from Quito, has been a resident of Atlanta for a number of years. He returned with his sister after a business trip in the tropics where he ran into Jack Spalding, Constitution staff writer now on his way into the South American interior.

"South of the Border" is a fine place to be, but "North of the Border" is even better, in the opinion of pretty Clara Mansour, of Quito, Ecuador. The dark-haired senorita arrived here yesterday to make her home in Atlanta. She is shown with her brother, George A. Mansour Jr., of Atlanta.

NORWAY, SWEDEN PROTEST TO REDS

wegian territory between last Friday and yesterday.

(The protests coincided with disclosure that the two nations have informed Russia that they intend to permit continued shipments of supplies and volunteers to Finland across their territory, according to the United Press.)

The Swedes said ten bombs were dropped on the islet, which is 60 miles from the nearest point in Finland and is near the port of Lulea. One of the planes apparently made a forced landing on Swedish soil but Swedish planes and troops had not been able to find it tonight.

Norway, in her note, said one Soviet plane landed on Norwegian soil. Norwegian anti-aircraft guns fired on Soviet planes Sunday near Kirkenes, on the far northern Norwegian-Finnish border. The exchange of notes capped a day which saw Russia declaring she was not pleased over the Norwegian and Swedish replies to her protests, delivered earlier this month.

Reds Unsatisfied. Russia's statement said Sweden's reply was particularly unsatisfactory and declared the policy of the government of both Norway and Sweden "conceals danger."

Scandinavian newspapers replied that their peoples would continue to help Finland.

British Cancel Air Leaves

By ROBERT E. BUNELLE.
LONDON, Jan. 15.—(P)—British canceled further leaves for the Royal Air Force in France today in a move British said made it plain that any lightning thrust toward Belgium and the Netherlands would be met with the full strength of her land, sea and air forces.

British described the suspension of leaves in the air force and similar action earlier applied to land forces in France as "merely a precaution like moves taken by the Netherlands and Belgium against any situation which might arise." (Authorized sources in Berlin charged that the war scare was "made in Paris" and reiterated that Germany desired to avoid, if possible, any extension of the conflict.)

Announcement of the extraordinary military measures came on the eve of the reopening of parliament where former War Secretary Leslie Hore-Belisha was expected to make a "personal statement" in the house of commons on his resignation from the cabinet.

While officials described the military moves as precautionary, some sources recalled that in a similar situation last November 11, when the Germans were reported ready to invade the Netherlands, Britain simply said the troops were on the alert for any eventuality without imposing special orders.

This, some quarters said, indicated the situation was more serious this time.

High Connections. One British informant with high connections declared the chances of a Nazi blitzkrieg through the Netherlands or Belgium were neither more nor less than ever.

Friends of Hore-Belisha, who was reported to have clashed with Winston Churchill, first lord of the admiralty, and army generals, were said to be urging the former war secretary to "restrain" his utterances before parliament and avoid an open break with Prime Minister Chamberlain.

The authoritative British Press Association said that after Hore-Belisha addressed the house, Chamberlain "then will reply, giving the reasons for the cabinet changes" in which Hore-Belisha and Minister of Information Lord MacMillan were dropped from the government.

Sea Warfare. A dispatch from Amsterdam said the 7,906-ton Netherlands steamer Arendskerck had been torpedoed and sunk in the Bay of Biscay. The crew was rescued.

A Nazi warplane bombed the 538-ton British trawler William Ivey in the North sea but the trawler's crew was landed safely at a Scottish port.

(A British coastal plane is believed to have sunk a German U-boat in the North sea today, it was stated authoritatively tonight by the United Press.)

(After sighting the submarine the plane dropped several bombs and an oil patch appeared. There was no further sign of the U-boat.)

A ministry of transport announcement said blackout restrictions during December to the highest mark on record.

Last December 1,155 persons died in traffic accidents. More than half—896—of the persons killed were involved in accidents during blackouts. This number compared with a total of 633 deaths in December, 1938.

the zone would not permit German merchant ships to participate in inter-American trade, affording the Reich a profitable foreign exchange fund with which to purchase war supplies abroad.

4. Britain must be certain the zone would not be used to deprive the Allies of their fruits of superiority at sea.

5. If Britain foregoes the opportunity of capturing the large number of German merchantmen refueled in American harbors, it will be necessary for the Americans to intern the ships for the duration of the war.

Unless such conditions are worked out, the British note observed, there would be an "accumulation of belligerent ships" in the zone and this in turn would "bring the risk of war" nearer the American states.

Expressing sympathy with the objective of the Americas, Britain denied her navy had imperiled the American continent, but rather had contributed to its security.

U. S. Rejects British Protest.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—(P)—The United States has refused to entertain a British protest that the neutrality act discriminates against British shipping.

The State Department, releasing the substance of the British note and the American reply, revealed today that it had insisted that American shipping received no special treatment over other neutrals and that all belligerents were on an equal basis. Consequently, it said, there was no discrimination.

The United States note added that congress, in enacting the provisions necessary from a standpoint of preventing the involvement of the United States in controversies with belligerent governments.

Initial Study Up To Committee.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—(P)—The American republics will leave to the inter-American neutrality committee which began to meet today at Rio de Janeiro, the initial study of the British rejection of the western hemisphere neutrality zone, it was unofficially predicted tonight.

The United States is represented at the meeting by Charles G. Fenwick, professor of international law at Bryn Mawr College.

Insists on Right To Set Up Zone.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Jan. 15.—(P)—President Getulio Vargas, of Brazil, opening a conference of the inter-American neutrality committee, proclaimed tonight the right of the American nations to establish a "safety zone" around their shores even though such a zone is not recognized by existing international law.

Vargas said international law was subject to revision in the light of modern developments and that the American nations expected belligerents to "respect" the 300-mile safety zone.

$2,800 DIAMOND RING REPORTED MISSING

Police Detain Maid for Questioning in Case.

Loss of a diamond ring valued at $2,800 was reported to police yesterday by J. A. Bennett, of 571 Pryor street, S. W.

Adrift on a Vanishing Raft—And Death Near

Fourteen-year-old Joseph Murphy was inches from death, with the margin of this ice floe melting away rapidly, when this dramatic photo was snapped yesterday about half a mile offshore in Boston harbor. Joe and seven others were rescued by a police boat and a dory, but one youngster slipped off and drowned.

Three Boys Missing, Eight Saved Off Drifting Ice in Boston Harbor

One Youth Drowns; Police Fear School Trio Doomed as Ebbing Tide Carries Floating Cakes Away; Search Continues in Darkness.

BOSTON, Jan. 15.—(P)—Three boys were missing tonight, believed drowned in the icy water of Boston harbor in a tragic aftermath to their perilous play on drifting ice cakes during a school holiday.

Joseph Curry, 15, drowned while playing in a similar manner in a different section of the harbor a short time before police rescued eight companions of the missing trio.

John Whitehouse, 14, one of those rescued, told police he had last seen his younger brothers, Ralph and Wallace, and Charles Kendall, 8, floating out into the harbor on a drifting cake.

As darkness came police continued the search, unwilling to put into words their fear the boys had perished in the waters of Dorchester bay.

Another rescued boy was rushed to Carney hospital in a critical condition. Doctors feared that shock and exposure, coupled with a chronic heart condition, might result in the lad's death.

A similar charge brought against Officer Clonts by Patrolman G. B. Pearson Jr., was dismissed. The case, originally set for January 8, was checked until yesterday's recorder's court.

Dead Men and Chiselers Get Paid—When They Work

Dead men who are very much alive, gunmen who never fired a shot, mashers who never whistled at a cute young thing on the corner and match-makers who never brought two lonely hearts together all can be found listed in the files of the Georgia State Employment Service.

The dead men and the gunmen work in the construction industry, the mashers serve the brewing trade, and the matchmakers are foundrymen.

Likewise the files are full of chiselers, moochers, drifters and spongers, all hard working men—when they can find work. Chiselers work in refineries, drifters in the steel mills, moochers on construction and spongers in tenneries and hosiery mills.

Bookmakers ply a legal trade when they work in a textile mill, and grafters come under no political onus when they confine their grafting to trees.

Pluggers, contrary to the old copy book maxim, don't do so well, being low-paid hands in the lumber industry, but a teaser in the glassworks makes pretty good money, maybe, a little better than the ribbers in the hosiery industry.

Leg-crossers work in the meat-packing industry, with two other colorful job names, scalpers and teeth knockers, in the same trade.

You can even be a chronic striker and find a welcome in the construction business, for that title has nothing to do with the sit-down or the walkout.

BEE EASILY "DESTROYED." Silver street residents notified a wholesale company in Palmer, Mass., they found a barrel of beer that had fallen from a truck. The company requested that the barrel be returned after the beer had been "destroyed"—so the group promptly "destroyed" the beer.

Italians owning automobiles are allowed about seven gallons of gasoline a month.

Enhance Flavor Of Breads With Mince Meat

By Sally Saver.

A coffee ring, pretty as it is good, is this one which uses mince meat for ease of preparation and unusually fine taste appeal. Coffee ring quite appropriately can be served with tea or coffee at teatime, for breakfast or for late snacking when light refreshments are called for. And when you learn how mince meat improves breads and muffins you'll discover many uses for it along this line. Here is the recipe for the coffee cake pictured:

Fruit Coffee Cake.

Sift 1 3/4 cups sifted flour with 2 teaspoons baking powder and 3/4 cup sugar. Then work in 1-3 cup butter or margarine until the particles of butter and flour are about the size of peas. Combine in a separate dish 1 egg, 1-4 cup milk and 3-4 cup mince meat, and mix thoroughly. Make a depression in the center of the dry ingredients and stir in the liquids just enough to mix well. Pat into a buttered ring pan or a square pan, if desired, and bake in moderate oven 25 or 30 minutes. Remove from oven and spread with a thin icing made of confectioners' sugar mixed with milk, sprinkle with chopped nuts and return to oven for two minutes. It is delicious warm or cold.

Don't neglect to make very good coffee or tea to serve with it. To be good, coffee and tea must be properly made, brewed, not too long, but long enough, and made always from freshly drawn, freshly boiled water.

Questions about foods, recipes, cooking and service will be answered personally by Sally Saver. Write or phone The Constitution, or Walnut 6365.

Youthful Design

By Barbara Bell.

Sometimes it's difficult for young women who take a size between 34 and 48 to find the youthful dashing styles they like. And here's a new design (1655-B) that is very crisp and fresh in effect, yet supremely becoming to women's sizes, because it creates the high-busted, slim-hipped effect that they want. High-shouldered and high-necked, it's an excellent basic type that you can wear with various accessories.

And you'll particularly like the side belts that fasten in the back, because they enable you to make the waist as snug as you please, and to keep it perfectly smooth. This dress will be especially smart now in tie silk, faille or flat crepe. A black and white print, small-figured, makes up beautifully this way, and has a clear-cut freshness that you crave at this time of the year. Step-by-step sew chart is included in your pattern, and even inexperienced sewers can make it with no difficulty at all.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1655-B is designed for sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 36 requires 4-1/4 yards of 39-inch material for long or short sleeves.

It's smart to sew your own! It's easy to do! Send for our fascinating pattern book. Choose from more than 100 new designs for all occasions and all sizes. Make your own becoming clothes, with these simple patterns. Step-by-step sew chart with each one.

Price of patterns 15 cents. Price of pattern book 15 cents. Do not send stamps.

Doctor's Readers Comment On His Use of Big Words

By Dr. William Brady.

In a talk about sore mouth recently I cited a report on studies of "electrogalvanic phenomena of the oral cavity caused by dissimilar metallic restorations," which the investigators, Everett S. Lain, M. D., and G. Sherrill Caughron, D. D. S., presented in the Journal of the American Dental Association.

Then later, evidently assuming like Hitler, that the world could take it, I perpetrated another one, namely, bradycardia—but it seemed I was still rather timid about it, for I took pains to explain at once that bradycardia means slow heart.

Nothing happened. Well, well, I decided, I have my readers intimidated at last. Now let's go. And the very next day I hauled off and handed them an article with a title calculated to appeal nearly everybody: "The Ubiquitous Pneumococcus."

But not quite everybody. A "small, harmless, well-meaning grandmother" who, judging from letters I have received from her now and again, is right up on her toes, inquires whether I have ever suffered from "electrogalvanic phenomena of the oral cavity" and fears she would if she even attempted to "mouth" the lengthy and awful diseases and remedies I am expounding these days. Why not, she adds, completely disarming me, why not cut down the jaw breakers to such simple terms as Dr. Brady (O! Doc to you, Grandma) has popularized to express so much to ordinary folks—such as "cari" and "vite"?

A swift uppperut that catches me off balance with my neck out does more good than all the bewildering passes, and I thank Grandma E. E. U. for it and promise to give her letter a preferred place in my scrapbook.

Is my face red? Indeed, if the punishment fitted the crime that wouldn't be all.

In extenuation for the first offense, I was quoting the title of the article (for the benefit of the minority readers who generally want to know the source). But

Gay Handwoven Rug Is Asset To Any Room

What an air of cozy cheer this gay handwoven rug lends to your favorite corner!

You weave it easily from old tan stocking candlewick yarn in leaf green, cherry red and black. You need 85 yards of the green, 30 yards of red, 35 yards of black.

Your "loom" is just four strips of wood, fastened together to make a frame 26 by 20 inches.

For the warp, insert 37 thumb tacks close together along each 20-inch side, beginning 2-1/2 inches from each end. Tie green candlewick yarn to upper left corner. Then loop yarn around each tack, going back and forth across the face of the loom.

Next weave in 23-4 inches of filler at each end. The filler—which may be strips of old cloth or cardboard—gives a firm edge. On being removed at the end of your weaving, it leaves warp for fringe.

To make each border, weave two rows of green candlewick, two black, two red, two green, three black. Use No. 1 tapestry needle.

For the center, you alternate two rows of candlewick with one row of strips cut spirally from stockings. Weave strips with fingers.

Soon your pretty rug is finished, ready to use! And wouldn't you love to weave a colorful plaid scarf of wool, a lampshade of sparkling cellophane, an evening bag a-glitter with silver ribbon?

To weave these—other lovely articles for home and personal use—turn to our 40-page booklet, "Beautiful and Useful Articles You Can Easily Weave." Has easy directions for weaving pillow tops, purses, dollies, tray cloths, afghans, other items—on such inexpensive homemade "looms" as hoops, cardboard, breadboards.

Send 15 cents in coins for our booklet, BEAUTIFUL AND USEFUL ARTICLES YOU CAN EASILY WEAVE, to Home Institute, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga. Write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

At the same time, Bill settled a sizeable sum on his bride. Bill reports back for picture-making the beginning of February. . . . It will be a June wedding for Vivien Leigh and Laurence Olivier, after which they will occupy a house in Brentwood. Vivien is currently domiciled in the Leslie Howard Beverly Hills house (previous tenant, Hedy Lamarr). . . . Lana Turner has been told by her studio to quiet down on her night-clubbing activities and to be a little more dignified in view of the starring buildup she is going to get. I seem to have heard this star-buildup talk for the past six months. What's holding it up?

Talking about night-clubbing, "Omph Girl" Ann Sheridan can be seen any night up to 3 a. m. thumping herself into a coma, but somehow or other contrives to look beautiful and fresh for her 7 a. m. studio call the next morning, or, rather, the same morning.

... Dorothy Lamour is another actress who also makes private life whoopee when making a picture (most working actresses have dinner in bed and stay there). But Dot is not as robust as Miss Sheridan and is currently in a droopy condition. . . . A report on Deanna Durbin's progress—she was kissed once in her last picture; she is kissed twice in the present one. . . . Madeleine Carroll has to starve herself to keep her weight down to a slightly larger than average figure, but the poor girl has one of those healthy English appetites!

John Garfield described his present flicker (now back to its original title, "Saturday's Children") as "Mr. Deeds From Brooklyn." Errol Flynn has sold his plane—which is all right with his studio. Errol's habit of flying while making a picture was not exactly appreciated by the Warner shareholders. . . .

Several still photographs of Joan Crawford and Clark Gable in "Strange Cargo," in which a large portion of the Crawford legs appeared, were "killed" by the Hays office. Not because of Miss Crawford's legs—but because of the too-amorous expression in Gable's eyes. . . . By the way, Gable snagged himself another $25,000 bonus for making "Strange Cargo." He got double for "Gone With the Wind"—in addition to his regular salary, of course.

When Olivia de Havilland wants to create a splash at parties, she rents high-priced jewelry. In private life, Olivia's gem ownership is nil. . . . Robert Benchley is the impenitent writer hired to script "Personal History." All that remains now of the Vincent Sheean best-seller is the title and the fact that the hero is a reporter. Gary Cooper is wanted to portray the leading role, with Joan Fontaine as the girl he married. . . . Thomas Mitchell's picture price today is $5,500 a week, but, if you think this puts a crimp in the demands for his services, you're wrong. At the moment there are five producers begging him to sign on the dotted line. A brief 18 months ago, the Mitchell picture price was $1,000 a week. Some place this, eh? . . . Sight of the week: Brian Aherne standing stiffly at attention when the orchestra rehearses "God Save the King" for the end of a theater scene on the set of "My Son, My Son."

Mae West had to pose for some sexy portraits at the end of her recent acting chore with W. C. Fields. The photographer, thinking to put Mae West at her ease, kept saying, "Mae, I want you to do this," and "Mae, I want you to do that." Mae merely scowled at him. Someone finally took the lens and aside and explained, "She'll explode and crack you one unless you stop calling her Mae." He did—and got his portraits. Afterwards, Miss West did her bit of explaining, "If I let guys call me Mae, the next thing they get familiar with me, and the next thing I have a fight on my hands."

Wife's Freedom Wasn't Worth The Heartache

By Caroline Chatfield.

I got this little story once removed from the source, so there wasn't much room for enlargement and embellishment. Her public said she was making a brilliant marriage. The two families represented were delighted at the match. The groom was a promising young business man and the bride was very proud of him.

A strenuous social life resulted in his regular imbibing and, while he wasn't a drunkard in the strict sense of the word, week ends found him rather the worse, for wear and tear. After five years the missus decided that she'd had enough. So she called it a day and rode to Reno.

Months passed; loneliness was eating her like a canker; she couldn't get going, and the one day she sat down and wrote out her heart to the ex-husband, telling him that she hadn't drawn a happy breath since their separation. His experience matched hers and they were remarried.

"How lovely," I said, "and of course he has quit drinking." "You'd be surprised," came the reply. "He meant to quit, of course, but he hasn't succeeded." Yet they are happy and it's easily explained. He has not changed, but her attitude toward him has. She discovered that she couldn't put out her love as she would put out a light and she realized that she must take her choice: life-long separation from the man she loved, or a complete adjustment to the weakness in his character.

If any reader of this true tale has a reservation for Reno, let her think twice before she takes it up. Yes, freedom is there, release from some worries, riddance of some inconveniences and embarrassments.

But loneliness is also there—there will be a great longing for that sense of backing which even a drinking husband gives his wife (when he's sober), a longing for the presence of that person who had become a part of her. And something worse, perhaps, if anything is worse for a woman than being separated from a man she loves: a sense of being at loose ends with life. Arrive as we may, society is set up for twos and the gal that hasn't a partner is less lucky than the gal who has.

WON SCHOLARSHIP.

Ann Sothen won two scholarships for original musical compositions while she was a student in high school in Minneapolis.

Only recently Laura Hope Crews and Marjorie Rambeau have taken off 50 pounds each. Their health has improved and they look like a million dollars. Yes, they followed the calorie method.

It is good news to me that Hollywood has become so sensible in these matters of diet. Women are very apt to be guided by their favorite stars with regard to diet and beauty measures, and you can't do better than count calories for weight control.

But the film stars have gone a step further—they have gone athletic! Not in a big, brawny way, but in a streamlining fashion that keeps the figure beautifully trim. Most of them swing a mean tennis racket, and all of them, apparently, swim like mermaids. Exercise in the form of outdoor play has become the film colony's favorite recreation. And that's a tip I wish the average woman could take.

In addition to outdoor sports, however, most of the stars have favorite calisthenics on which they can rely to keep their waistslines down to a whisper. And the studios all have their own gymnasiums, just to make exercise easier and more convenient. Nobody out there has the impression that it is possible to keep a lovely figure without exercise.

Now just to make the story complete. . . . Miss Parsons has reduced! She has taken off 12 pounds, is proud of it, and looks marvelously well. And if you think it lowered her vitality—she can sprint through several shows a day, as she did recently while touring the country, and then go home at night and write a column! Anyone who can do that is in tip-top condition!

Woman's Quiz

Q. When was the first baby show held in the United States?

A. The first one was held in Springfield, Ohio, on October 14, 1854.

Q. What are the various shades of hair?

A. The following shades of hair tint are available, and we assume that each indicates a definite color of hair: Light blond, blond, ash blond, dark ash blond, light ash blond, dark brown, darkest brown, black, deep black dark brown, light brown brown, brown, light brown, dark auburn, auburn, golden brown, reddish blond and golden blond.

Q. What is the correct method for laundering silk garments?

A. Use a warm iron, protecting the fabric with cheesecloth. Iron on the wrong side. The fabric should be evenly damp, but not wet. If too wet and ironed with a hot iron, it will be stiff and papery, and if half wet and half dry it may be spotted.

To keep their figures beautifully trim, the stars have gone athletic. Exercise in the form of outdoor play is their favorite recreation. Nan Grey, Universal actress, chooses ice skating at a near-by resort as her favorite sport. It's streamlining, too.

MY DAY U. S. May Play Host to Quintuplets

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

HYDE PARK.—In New York City on Friday it rained most of the day and, when we reached Hyde Park, we were told it had been raining or snowing all day. The sky was gray and heavy, but the snow on the fields and on the evergreen trees was a sight which I always enjoy. The driving was none too good and I was glad that we did not have far to go.

Saturday was filled with all the air and exercise we could get. A long walk in the morning, and then in the afternoon, and then we got out a little cutter. Though the snow was not the kind that makes good sleighing, we did manage by choosing our roads carefully to drive through the woods and even over to the big house to have a look at the library. Many of the partitions are up now, but it still looks a long way from completion on the inside.

Two quiet evenings and late breakfasts seem great luxury. The sky continues to look as though either snow or rain might fall upon us at any moment. I like particularly the feeling of isolation that winter gives one and I think I shall enjoy being snowed in some time in the future. Just now, I couldn't indulge in a changed schedule, when there is an engagement, made months beforehand, always ahead.

I see by the newspaper this morning, that the New York World's Fair has formally invited the quintuplets to set up their nursery in the grounds on the fair next summer. I suppose they will be allowed an occasional peek at the fair, but judging from the past their nurses and guardians will see that they lead normal lives. One-way glass will undoubtedly make it possible for thousands of visitors to the fair to look in on these five attractive youngsters who have been so carefully brought up. One may see them at work and at play without being seen by them. I hope that Canada will let them come, for I think the whole United States will feel pleasure in being their hosts.

In this day of hatreds and wars and rumors of wars, it is good to cement friendships between nations through the affection we all feel for children. The quintuplets, have drawn innumerable visitors from the United States and all of them have been captivated by the charm these children seem to radiate. I feel that it is a very happy gesture to have them come as guests of the fair of the United States. Many people who might never have had a glimpse of them in Canada will be able to see them here.

It has always seemed to me that their care, the simplicity and regularity with which their lives are planned, must serve as an object lesson to many families, both rich and poor. Good luck to you, little quintuplets—if you come to us as our guests, may your visit be a happy one.

Counting Calories, Exercising Are the Rage in Hollywood

By Ida Jean Kain.

An interview with Louella Parsons is like meeting all Hollywood in the same afternoon. She not only knows who is to be given the choice roles in the forthcoming productions, but also who is contemplating marriage—or divorce, and can even tell you the latest diet and who is on it!

In the film colony, every diet has its day. There was the 18-day diet, which, Miss Parsons says, wrecked the health and looks of many a film beauty. Then along came something called the "just a salad for dinner plan." And finally there was the "ad for 'natural foods.' The idea of this last one was to live on fruits, nuts and vegetables—usually raw.

But we have the word of Miss Parsons that the stars will have no more of these ridiculous, freak diets. The entire colony has become calorie conscious, if you please! The stars are keeping their weight down on balanced menus limited to their individual calorie requirements.

Only recently Laura Hope Crews and Marjorie Rambeau have taken

Worry No More About Dried, Flaky Skin

By Lillian Mae.

There is no woman in the world but what looks upon the skin that possesses the glorious dewy beauty of youth . . . with envy. That is particularly true at this time of the year when winter winds have made even the loveliest skin turn dry and papery and old looking.

But no need to worry now, lady. For one of your best-loved beauty specialists has created for your skin a delicate lotion (just the shade of a tea rose) that smoothed on any time, day or night . . . gives you that exquisite texture that you find in the moist velvety petals of a dew-kissed rose.

Grand the year round, too. In winter it banishes that dried look that comes from cold winds. In summer when the thermometer goes zipping up, up, up . . . it acts on your skin like a cool ocean breeze . . . soothing and soothing . . . holding for you . . . youthful, lovely texture.

This is going to be a precious aid to beauty for you . . . and we suggest that right now you find out what it is and where you can get it . . . so that you can be the very first to know it. And you will be beautiful all the day long . . . and all night, too.

Phone me and I'll tell you more about the lotion, the name and where it may be purchased. If you do not live in Atlanta, write me, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

Springtime Frock

By Lillian Mae.

The sugar 'n' spice age is none too early to start to wear in pretty clothes. And what you'll never be pleased to appear in this dainty springtime frock, Lillian Mae pattern 4373. Depending on your fabric, it will be a perfect romping or "best" dress. The entire front skirt is made in panels, which form an amusing scalloped front waistline. Why not have the panels in alternating contrast—say a monotone and print, and let the becoming little collar match the plain-colored sections? Make the sleeves in short puffs or caps and do and do ruffling. You might sew ruffled edging onto the pants too.

Pattern 4373 is available in children's sizes 4, 6, 8, 10 and 12. Size 6, dress, takes 1-7/8 yards 35-inch fabric.

Send fifteen cents (15c) in coins for this Lillian Mae pattern. Do not send stamps. Write plainly size, name, address and style number.

"How do you manage to have so many smart-looking clothes?" people will ask if you use our new brilliant Lillian Mae Pattern Book before planning your spring wardrobe. It's a complete fashion picture, with spring bridal wear, charm for 40-plus, town and country modes. There's a budget wardrobe, spring season for the young set and carnival-gay cottons. Interesting Plans for Knight-Fleming Nuptials Announced Today

Prominent Atlantans To Attend Rites in Chapel Hill on Feb. 3

By Sally Forth.

A NUMBER of prominent Atlantans are planning to be in Chapel Hill, N. C., the afternoon of February 3, when lovely Anne Turner Knight will become the bride of Strother Fleming Jr., a popular young Atlantian, at a brilliant ceremony to take place at 5 o'clock at the Chapel of the Cross. The plans for the marriage are announced today and enlist the interest of fashionable society throughout the south and east.

Among this group to be present at these important nuptials are Mr. and Mrs. Henry D. Morgan, Mrs. Fannie Durand Williams, Mrs. James T. Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Julian Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sprattin, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Daniel, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Knowles, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hoyt, Mrs. Luther Rosser, Mrs. Langdon Quin, Mrs. Charles Shelton, Mrs. Sidney Daniel, Mrs. Charles C. Case and Mr. and Mrs. Philip H. Alston.

Other out-of-towners who also will attend the wedding of this prominent young couple are Mrs. Otis Jones and Mr. and Mrs. Wellborn Hill, of Newnan, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Brooke, of Birmingham, Ala.

Anne will be given in marriage by her father, Edgar Wallace Knight, and Strother's best man will be his cousin, Henry D. Morgan.

Attractive Jane Knight will be her sister's maid of honor and the bevy of pretty bridesmaids includes Suzanne Weeks, of Winston-Salem, N. C.; Mary Green, of Wilmington, N. C.; Mary Henry and Susan Barber, both of Chapel Hill; Mary Leigh Scales, of Greensboro, N. C.; and Frances Borland, of Durham, N. C.

Acting as the usher-groomsman will be William Daniel, Ben Osburn, Charles Shelton, Cam Dorsey Jr., Hughes Spalding, all of Atlanta; Victor Dawson, of Kinston, N. C.; Billy Taylor, of Jacksonville, Fla.; and Bill Coughenour, of Salisbury, N. C. After the ceremony, Anne's parents will entertain at a reception.

Incidentally, it is interesting to note that William Daniel is to be one of the usher-groomsman. It so happens that his grandfather was an attendant in the wedding of Strother's grandfather, the late William Sidney Fleming!

AN ATTRACTIVE picture of Mrs. Edgar Hill Greene appeared in the Sunday issue of the Montgomery Advertiser. She was dressed in the old-fashioned costume made in 1847, in which she won the $50 cash prize for the most authentic costume worn at the Junior League's "Gone With the Wind" ball. The dress was in the trousseau of her grandmother, Mrs. Jesse DeWitt Burkhead, whose husband, Dr. Burkhead, one of the south's most famous divines, was pastor for many years of the First Presbyterian church of Montgomery.

Brown and yellow taffeta fashion the hand-made dress. The taffeta collar is bordered with silk fringe and overlaid with rose-point lace. The tiny wooden buttons are silk covered and inclosed in net balls. The full skirt flares into a circular train. Six stiffly starched petticoats were designed to support the voluminous skirt.

The silk loops used to hang the dress over the wooden pegs in the wardrobe are securely attached to the inner lining at the waist.

Mrs. Greene, formerly Annabel Burkhead, of Opelika, Ala., is the daughter of Mrs. William DeWitt Burkhead and the late Rev. William DeWitt Burkhead. She is the sister of Mrs. M. W. Stuart Jr., of Montgomery, niece of N. J. Bell and the granddaughter of the late N. J. Bell. She is the lovely wife of Dr. Edgar Hill Greene, prominent Atlantian.

SINCE academic studies have a had habit of interfering with the most thrilling plans, school-girl Bungle Fuller will be prevented from being an attendant at the marriage of Virginia Willis and Alvin Cates, Bungle, who attends Finch School in New York city, had thought until recently she would be able to desert her studies to be a bridesmaid in Virginia's and Alvin's wedding, which will be a brilliant event of January 30 at the Cathedral of St. Philip.

Substituting for Bungle will be Ann Harris, the debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Steve Harris, Ann, who is of the brunet type of beauty, returns today from Denver, Col., where she has been the feted guest of Calista Struby. The friendship between the attractive belles began last year at Miss Nixon's School in Florence, Italy, where they roomed together.

Calista will follow Ann here at an early date and no doubt she will arrive in time to enter into the festive belles preceding the marriage of the prominent Atlanta couple.

PROUD homeowners are Suzanne and Bradley Shepherd, who, with their young son, John Bradley Jr., recently moved into their new home on Brookhaven drive.

The house is beautified with attractive colonial furniture which matches with the high-beamed ceilings and pine-paneled walls. The floor in the living room is constructed of wide smooth stones, and centering the ceiling is a handsome wrought-iron chandelier, the circumference of which is fitted with myriad lights. Opposite the broad stone fireplace are deep bay windows, overlooking an inviting woodland area.

The living room is entered through a cool porch, with stone floor in block formation. Near by a badminton court is under construction, where the popular young couple and their friends will gather for frequent and enjoyable entertainment.

Miss Margaret Rogers Marries Jack Williams Jr., of Waycross

MR. AND MRS. JACK WILLIAMS JR., OF WAYCROSS.

Miss Margaret Annette Rogers, daughter of Mrs. Peeples Rogers, became the bride of Jack Williams Jr., of Waycross, yesterday morning at 11 o'clock at the chapel of All Saints Episcopal church. Rev. Mr. James Duncan performed the marriage service in the presence of the relatives and close friends of the two families.

Mrs. William Griffith, harpist, presented a program of music. Cathedral candles in seven-branched candelabra shed a soft glow on Easter lilies filling brass vases, and palms graced the altar corners and windows.

Campbell Vaiden, of Augusta, served as best man and Frank Eugene Peeples, of Chattanooga, uncle of the bride, gave his niece in marriage. The ushers were Jack Jennings and Charles Mayo, of Waycross.

Mrs. Braswell E. Collins, of Waycross, matron of honor, wore a pale green wool tuck trimmed with hand tucks and worn with brown accessories. Her flowers were a shoulder bouquet of talisman roses.

The lovely brunet bride wore a beige wool dress fashioned with many tucks and featuring a full skirt. Her accessories were of brown and she wore a sable jacket, and a shoulder spray of orchids.

Mrs. Peeples Rogers, the bride's mother, wore a model of blue Danube crepe with gold accents, worn with black accessories and a shoulder bouquet of pink roses.

Mrs. Jack Williams, mother of the groom, wore a strawberry rose novelty crepe, finished with gold braid and worn with black accessories. Her flowers were a corsage of talisman roses.

The bride and groom left immediately after the ceremony for a motor trip which will encircle Florida, and upon their return will reside in Waycross, where Mr. Williams is telegraph editor of the Waycross Journal-Herald.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding were: Mr. and Mrs. Jack Williams, Miss Bettie Williams, Miss Eva Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Julian Jones, Dr. and Mrs. Braswell E. Collins, Miss Louise Breen, Jack Jennings and Steve Coleman, of Waycross; Mrs. Annette Peeples Dickey, Mrs. Florence Whitaker, Miss Louise Peeples and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Eugene Peeples, of Chattanooga; Mrs. Oscar Tankersley Peeples and Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Peeples, of Cartersville, Ga.; and Mr. and Mrs. Campbell Vaiden, of Augusta, Ga.

Augusta Marriages Are of Interest To Atlantans

AUGUSTA, Ga., Jan. 15.—The marriage of Miss Mary Lena Foreman and Charles H. Pitts Jr. was solemnized recently at St. Mary's-on-the-Hill. Rev. Father Harold Barr performed the ceremony.

Miss Margie Mulherin presented a program of music.

Miss Philomena Mulherin was maid of honor, and Charles H. Pitts Sr. served his son as best man.

The bride wore a gown of white slipper satin, with which she wore a veil of illusion caught to head by a coronet of lilies of the valley. She carried a prayerbook originally belonging to the bridegroom's grandmother, the late Mrs. Michael Murphy.

Mrs. Pitts is a graduate of Mount St. Joseph and Mr. Pitts is a graduate of Richmond Academy, Junior College and Georgia Tech. He is associated with the Georgia Power Company.

After a short wedding trip the couple will reside at 1529 Craig street, Monte Sano.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. McDonald Jr. announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Jesse Evelyn McDonald, to Benjamin Franklin Barnard, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Barnard. The ceremony was performed in Edgefield, December 26, Mr. and Mrs. Barnard are residing in Augusta, where Mr. Barnard is a student of law.

The marriage of Miss Cora Mae Pryor, of Beach Island, to William Thigpen was solemnized recently at the home of the officiating minister, Rev. S. E. Jones.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Leila Broome Pryor and the late Richard H. Pryor, and the groom is the son of Mrs. Annie Williams Thigpen and the late S. H. Thigpen Sr., of Jefferson county. He is associated in business with Merry Brothers.

Observe Wedding Date in Dalton.

DALTON, Ga., Jan. 15.—An interesting affair of yesterday was the reception and dinner party at which Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Bernard Hurwitz entertained today at their home in Dalton on the occasion of their thirteenth wedding anniversary.

Thirty guests were present at dinner and 75 attended the reception, relatives and friends having motored from neighboring cities to congratulate the couple upon the auspicious occasion.

Mrs. Hurwitz was before her marriage Miss Ella Mae Tennenbaum, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Tennenbaum, of Atlanta. The hosts' marriage took place on January 13, and their only son is Irving Morton Tennenbaum.

Newton, Marice Turner, Julia Block, and Allie Malone.

Sigma Alpha Epsilon Alumni Plans Elaborate Dinner-Dance on March 8

Wide social interest centers in the announcement made today of the date for the formal dinner dance at which the Sigma Alpha Epsilon alumni will be hosts. The elaborate affair will be held at the Piedmont Driving Club on March 8 and will assemble several hundred members of Atlanta society and out-of-towns guests.

Officers of this prominent social organization are S. Russell Bridges, president; Jack Glenn, vice president; Richmond Barge, secretary; and Stewart McGinty, treasurer.

Following the dinner a business meeting will be held and officers for the forthcoming year will be elected from prominent members of the alumni association.

During the evening a large out-of-town band will present a program of dance music, and the club will be elaborately decorated in the colors of blue and gold.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin To Honor Bridal Pair

Among important social events of the week will be the dinner party at which Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Martin entertain tomorrow evening at their home in Garden Hills.

Honor guests will be Mr. and Mrs. William Benedict, popular recent bride couple whose marriage was a social event of December. Mrs. Benedict is the former Miss Mary Bryan.

Invited are Mr. and Mrs. Benedict, Mr. and Mrs. Bonneau Ansley, Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Darby, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Beers Jr., Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Edmondson Jr., Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Chambers, Mr. and Mrs. James Crawford, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Goldsmith, Mr. and Mrs. Bradford McFadden, Mr. and Mrs. Clinton McCord, Miss Lundy Sharp, William Morrow and the hosts.

Dr. and Mrs. Felber Are Feted Guests

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hecht were hosts last evening at an elaborate buffet supper at their home on Peachtree Battle avenue, complimenting their guests, Dr. and Mrs. Ernest Felber, formerly of Vienna.

The hosts were assisted in entertaining by Mrs. Joseph Brennan, Miss Eleanor de Petre, niece of the hosts, and Miss Margaret Hecht, sister to the hosts.

During the evening a delightful program of music was presented by Miss Patsy Mackensen and Miss Georgiana Bannister, of Charlotte, N. C.

The buffet table in the dining room was overlaid with a handsome lace cloth and centered with a porcelain bowl filled with an arrangement of colorful fruit. Complementing the table decorations were porcelain candelabra holding burning white tapers.

Mrs. Clyde Walker Will Entertain

Mrs. Clyde Walker entertains today at a bridge-luncheon at her home in Decatur. Covers will be placed for Mesdames L. A. Scott, Dick Buskirk, Scott Candier, Joe Elder, Homer Howard, Roy G. Jones.

WOMEN IN "40s"

Read This Important Message! Do you dread the "dry" feeling, the "itch" or "burning" of the skin? Do you get "cranky" and "nervous"? Do you fear hot flashes, weakening dizziness? Are you jealous of attention other women get? THEN LISTEN!

These symptoms often result from female functional disorders. So start today and take famous Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. For over 60 years, Pinkham's Compound has helped hundreds of thousands of grateful women to go "smiling thru" difficult days. Pinkham's has helped calm unstrung nerves and lessen annoying female functional "irregularities."

The best known and one of the most effective "women's" tonics. In liquid or handy to carry tablet form (similar formula). Try it!

Personal To Fat Girls

Now you can slim down your face and figure without strict dieting or back-breaking exercises. Just eat sensibly and take Marmola Tablets a day, according to the directions.

Marmola Tablets have been sold to the public for more than thirty years. More than ten million boxes have been distributed during that period.

Marmola is not intended as a cure-all for all ailments. This is a fact. It is intended only for fat persons who are normal and healthy otherwise and whose fatness is caused by a reduction in the secretion from the thyroid gland (hypo-thyroidism) with accompanying abnormal metabolic rates. No other representation is made as to this treatment except under these conditions and according to the dosage directions. We do not make any diagnosis as that is the function of your physician, who must be consulted for that purpose. The formula is included in every package. Start with Marmola today and find the slender lovely figure that is rightfully yours.

WANT TO CHECK A FACT?

When you turn the dial of your radio and get the program on which your favorite radio performer is coming over the air, do you often wonder what he or she looks like, whether the star is married or single, whether he or she uses a "stage name," what the individual did before becoming a star—in other words do you want to look up the facts about the personalities who are only voices over the ether waves?

Our Service Bureau at Washington has ready for you one of its interesting and authoritative booklets, "Popular Radio Stars," that gives brief biographies of outstanding radio performers, orchestra leaders and announcers. Send for your copy by using the coupon below:

Lack of Playing Field Forces Preps To Transfer Grid Games

PONCE DE LEON NOT AVAILABLE FOR 1940 TILTS

Boys' Hi-Tech Hi Play at Grant Field; Others Doubtful.

By ROY WHITE.

Atlanta's prep football activities have been dealt a "knockout" blow and fans face the probability of seeing but two or three games here next fall as a result.

Tech High and Boys' High will definitely play their annual game Friday night, November 1, at Grant field, as announced in The Constitution. Coach W. A. Alexander and the Georgia Tech Athletic Association Monday donated use of the field for the big prep scrap and also the Tech High-Marist and Boys' High-Commercial games early in the season.

Officials of the Atlanta Baseball Company have "closed" the gates of Ponce de Leon park to all prep games since the Tech High-Boys' High game has been moved to Grant field.

Not Unreasonable.

Baseball officials are unwilling to have the smaller games played at Ponce de Leon and have only the real big ones of the season changed to Grant field, not an unreasonable stand by any means.

Earl Mann, president of the Atlanta Baseball Company said Monday that when the prep games have been played in the outfield that no charges were made for its use, despite some damage to the field. During play-offs the Crackers have taken a chance with the outfield being torn up, but was always willing to co-operate with the preps as far as possible. "Considerable damage has been done to the stands, but no extra charges have been made for the repairs," Mann said.

W. O. Cheney, principal of Tech High and Shorty Doyle, coach and director of athletics at Boys' High, stated definitely Monday afternoon that unless some means are provided before fall, that both Tech High and Boys' High will play all their other games away from Atlanta, since there are no other suitable places for spectators to view the games.

Boys' High has Marist, Savannah, Lanier, Monroe and Rome scheduled for home games, but could easily transfer them to some other place.

Transfer Games.

Tech High has Monroe and Commercial, other than Marist, for home games and will move these games, while scheduling the remainder of the card away from home. Inability to adequately take care of the ever-increasing crowds at Boys' High-Tech High games at the ball park, caused school officials to seek Grant field for the game. Last November 15 more than 18,000 persons saw the Tech High-Boys' High game and at least 2,000 were turned away because of lack of seating capacity. Crowds have been inconvenienced during the past three years at the ball park.

"We are at the mercy of Tech and the baseball company, and when the Crackers are in the Southern league playoff the first two or three games have to be played in the outfield or elsewhere. We have been grateful to both Georgia Tech and the Atlanta Baseball Company for their courtesy in the past and always will be appreciative," Cheney and Doyle said Monday.

"It's a shame that Atlanta has no suitable stadium for high school football. Tech High, Boys' High, Commercial, Marist, Hapeville, Richardson and Fulton High have no place for games at all. Only North Fulton, Russell, Decatur, G. M. A. and West Fulton have fields, though their seating capacity is limited," Cheney added.

"A municipal stadium will not only provide suitable sites for big prep games, but will add so much interest that the high school football will be revived. There are some six or eight junior high schools which would be interested in a league, in addition to numerous sandlot teams, having no place at all for games," the prep officials said.

Howard Haire Sr., chairman of a committee recently appointed by Mayor Hartsfield to study plans and means for a municipal stadium, is confined to his home with an attack of flu. He said that a meeting will be held as soon as possible to push work on the movement.

Crackers 'Interested' In Freed Players

The Crackers are interested in several of the 93 ball players made free agents by Judge Landis Sunday. However, the Atlanta club is at a disadvantage because of Southern and Texas league rule which says no bonuses may be offered a man to sign.

Major and AA clubs are allowed to give bonuses and therefore will probably have first choice.

However, the Crackers are not taking anything for granted and are looking into all possibilities.

All in the Game

—by Jack Troy

Oh, you take the paved road—I'll take the dirt,
You take the cities—and then I shall skirt;
And where the sedge waves in the sun
I'll sit tight while the setters run.

Home, sweet home is nice and neat,
A place that's mighty hard to beat,
But "hardship" never was more fun
Sitting it out while the pointers run.

A lounging chair and a fireside chat
Is very fine and all of that;
But give a man a scatter gun—
He'll linger days while the bird dogs run.

For where the creek and woodlands meet,
They call it, yes, idyllic retreat,
And o'er the uplands toward the sun—
That's man's soul, when the bird dogs run.

WAYNESBORO, Ga., Jan. 15.—This is a little piece for the paper about a Christmas gift. And it will be necessary, in this instance, to omit names—both of the dog and the donor. It would be a trifle embarrassing for the Atlanta man who made the gift and for the man who received it.

But it is quite a story, nevertheless. It is a story that goes to show you never can tell in this funny old world. People have spent wads of money and years trying to develop champion bird dogs. Few ever have one deposited in their lap.

It seems that not so long ago, as years ago, this Atlanta man decided he would like to give a good friend in another state a suitable Christmas present. He finally decided upon a bird dog.

So the Atlanta man approached a well-known trainer and asked him if he had any ideas concerning a suitable dog. It seems that he did. He knew a dog which had been a winner under another name at a derby but which had been set back by mishandling. Frequent whippings had taken something out of the dog.

However, the trainer thought the dog still was a prospect, and so it was settled. The Atlanta man bought the dog and presented it to his friend as a Christmas gift. And, as truth so often is stranger than fiction, the dog came along and not so very long ago won an important state championship.

You might think that it injured the feelings of the Atlanta man, but just the opposite happened. He is delighted that the gift proved so useful, so to speak.

SOMETIMES THEY COME BACK.

Monie First, of Atlanta, is here with a beautiful black and white setter named the Georgia Breeze, and the dog is a graceful example of the fact that sometimes they do come back.

More than a year ago, Georgia Breeze was frozen on birds and as the covey flushed one of the birds bopped the dog in the eye and knocked him cold.

This gave Monie First great concern afterwards. It looked as if the dog were ruined as a field trial dog. He would not hold on point. He almost got in the "blinker" class. That is to say, he'd point and then back away.

Experienced bird dog men told Monie First he might as well give up on Georgia Breeze. They said that rare would be the case if he should become a good field dog again.

And so rare is the case. John Gardner, of Red Bank, Miss., has done a great job with Georgia Breeze, who is normal again and a running piece of bird dog.

TALL PINES—AT LUNCH.

When lunch time comes at a field trial, after four hours of riding across fields, gallery and dog handlers are ready for a pause.

And Tall Pines, picturesque home of Lovett Wallace, has become a sort of institution at the Georgia state trial. There is a colonial-style home set back among the pines and luncheon is served under the trees. The Missionary Society of the Methodist church, under the supervision of Mrs. Arthur Evans, has a piping hot luncheon ready.

Real justice is done to a wide variety of comestibles under the pines and afterwards there is just time for a catnap on the pine needle-carpeted ground.

No feather bed was ever so soft, after hours in the saddle. Always the afternoon events begin slowly because it is with reluctance that one leaves Tall Pines.

WELL, YOU NEVER CAN TELL.

Sensation of the opening stake of the Georgia field trial was Tip's Topsy Top, Raymond Hoagland's big-going pointer. The gallery talked of little else than the great ground performance of the Top.

And Topsy is still the top among the galleries, despite the opinion of the two judges who didn't see fit to place him. The Top ran around noon when birds are hard to find—which is one of the breaks of the game.

But there is one thing you can say for the big pointer—he ran a ground race they won't forget for a long time. Just one chance on birds probably would have made him the members' all-age champion.

There was another star which went unplaced. That was Monie First's Georgia Breeze, top dog of the morning run. Many thought The Breeze, with two finds handled in excellent fashion, was a sure place dog, but such was not the case.

No one argues with judges, however. Field trials are their business. They look for things that probably escape the average or the better-than-average field trial devotee.

But when it comes to running big—and when it comes to nailing birds—you can put Tip's Topsy Top and the Georgia Breeze in the top bracket.

Pointers made a clean sweep in the members' all-age stake, which may or may not put the setter people in their place. Only time will tell. There are three other stakes to be run.

Title Fight Cancelled

By Henry Armstrong

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—(UP)—

Charging the Hollywood, Cal., American Legion post with racial America, Henry Armstrong, Los Angeles Negro, today cancelled a title fight with Middleweight

Champion Ceferino Garcia, scheduled for Wrigley field, Los Angeles, on February 22.

The bout was to have been staged under auspices of the Hollywood post.

Armstrong, world welterweight champion and former holder of

crowns, accepted the Garcia match several weeks ago, hoping that he might win his fourth ring title from the Filipino middleweight

king. He had beaten Garcia in a welterweight match in November,

MISSOURI SEEKS TO PLACE TECH ON GRID SLATE

Present Jacket Contracts Forestall Chances of Early Meeting.

A note yesterday from Mark Cox, sports publicity director of Missouri University, indicated the Tigers are anxious to schedule Georgia Tech in a regular season football game.

Athletic relations between the two schools in this year's Orange Bowl game were extremely pleasant and, judging from Cox's letter, Missouri officials don't want to let it die.

Here is what Cox said, in part: "I believe our two clubs want a long way in restoring a little prestige to the Orange Bowl that was lost in the free-swinging battle-royal of a year ago. As a result I think the relations between our two schools were so good it would be a capital idea for us to get together again in a regular schedule game."

Since the Tech-Missouri game was considered by all as the most spectacular and interesting bowl game, the proposed game seems a good idea.

However, Tech may not be able to schedule the game in the next two or three years.

The Jackets have contracts with the schools now being played and it is not likely any of them will be dropped. Then too, it might be a good idea to wait until after Paul Christman has graduated before entering negotiations.

Tech probably has no objections to playing the Tigers. But it may be impossible to do so because of other contracts.

Nevertheless, the Tigers seem to want a game. And maybe it'll come to pass in a couple of years.

KIRBY ENTERED AT PONTA GORDA

PUNTA GORDA, Fla., Jan. 15. (AP)—Jean Bauer, of Providence, R. I., and Dorothy Kirby, of Atlanta, have filed their entries for the annual championship of champions women's golf tournament here, January 25-26.

Miss Bauer was runner-up to Patty Berg last year.

Frank Moreland, manager of the Punta Gorda Country Club, said participants included Helen Hicks Harb, of Long Island; Mr. Jackie Fuller and Mrs. F. H. McFarland, both of Orlando; Mrs. Myron Davy, of Washington, D. C., and Mrs. O. B. Keeler, of Atlanta.

The tribute came during Griffith's testimony before a Federal Communications Commission examiner in support of Engel's application to construct and operate a new 250-watt radio station at Chattanooga on a frequency of 1370 kilocycles.

Griffith testified that Engel spent "more than a million dollars" for him during the years Engel served as a scout for the Griffith club. He added that he had loaned Engel large sums of money and that they were always repaid.

"And if he should need money again?" an attorney asked.

"Why I'd lend it to him," Griffith said, "as much as $15,000 or $20,000."

Griffith said he sold the Chattanooga club to a company headed by Engel in 1937 because "the people there wanted local ownership and wanted Engel to operate the club."

The sale was made for $125,000, of which Engel paid $30,000. Later, Griffith testified, he gave Engel $25,000 in consideration of past services, enabling Engel to hold $55,000 worth of the stock.

He said he didn't want to lose Engel, and that he at times "wished he'd be a flop" in Chattanooga so he could get him back.

However, C. H. Owen, commission engineer, questioned whether the engineering plans submitted made adequate provision for coverage of the Chattanooga metropolitan area.

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 15.—(UP)—A demonstration by Washington University students protesting the resignation of Jim Conzelmann as head football coach disrupted classes on the campus today and resulted in the announcement by Conzelmann that he would resign.

The demonstrators carried signs declaring that Conzelmann, coach and director of athletics at the school for the past eight years, was forced to resign under pressure of alumni. As the parade moved through the campus, leaving many classrooms empty, students shouted:

"Jimmy was fired! We want Conzelmann! Let's have him back!" One parader climbed into a tree and nailed up a sign protesting Conzelmann's resignation.

At the same time it was said that Jock Sutherland, former coach at Pittsburgh, would arrive here tomorrow for talks with persons close to the university.

Conzelmann will come to the university.

NATIONAL LEAGUE BATTING CHAMPION SIGNS

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Jan. 15.—Johnny Mize, the National league's batting and home-run champion in 1939, today signed a 1940 contract at a reported salary hike, after conferring with President Sam Breadon (right). The Cards did not announce what the Demorest, Ga., giant would get, but informed sources believed the figure to be $17,500. His 1939 salary was reported to be $13,000.

High Praise Given Engel By Old Fox

Genial Joe Hopes To Operate Radio Station in Chattanooga.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—(AP)—J. W. Engel, Chattanooga baseball club leader, flushed with pride under an avalanche of compliments paid him today by his old "boss," Clark Griffith, president of the Washington American league club.

The tribute came during Griffith's testimony before a Federal Communications Commission examiner in support of Engel's application to construct and operate a new 250-watt radio station at Chattanooga on a frequency of 1370 kilocycles.

Griffith testified that Engel spent "more than a million dollars" for him during the years Engel served as a scout for the Griffith club. He added that he had loaned Engel large sums of money and that they were always repaid.

"And if he should need money again?" an attorney asked.

"Why I'd lend it to him," Griffith said, "as much as $15,000 or $20,000."

Griffith said he sold the Chattanooga club to a company headed by Engel in 1937 because "the people there wanted local ownership and wanted Engel to operate the club."

The sale was made for $125,000, of which Engel paid $30,000. Later, Griffith testified, he gave Engel $25,000 in consideration of past services, enabling Engel to hold $55,000 worth of the stock.

He said he didn't want to lose Engel, and that he at times "wished he'd be a flop" in Chattanooga so he could get him back.

However, C. H. Owen, commission engineer, questioned whether the engineering plans submitted made adequate provision for coverage of the Chattanooga metropolitan area.

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 15.—(UP)—A demonstration by Washington University students protesting the resignation of Jim Conzelmann as head football coach disrupted classes on the campus today and resulted in the announcement by Conzelmann that he would resign.

The demonstrators carried signs declaring that Conzelmann, coach and director of athletics at the school for the past eight years, was forced to resign under pressure of alumni. As the parade moved through the campus, leaving many classrooms empty, students shouted:

"Jimmy was fired! We want Conzelmann! Let's have him back!" One parader climbed into a tree and nailed up a sign protesting Conzelmann's resignation.

At the same time it was said that Jock Sutherland, former coach at Pittsburgh, would arrive here tomorrow for talks with persons close to the university.

Diz Trout Removed From Landis Purge

"Nothing Illegal in Hurler's Transfer," Warns Officials of Banishment From Game.

CHICAGO, Jan. 15.—(AP)—Organized baseball, jittery from a $500,000 penalty bombshell tossed by Commissioner Kenesaw Mountain Landis, tonight pondered a warning that banishment from the game faced officials for future violations.

Landis, warmed up in his campaign to force baseball to live up to its own laws, issued this warning:

"Notice is hereby given all clubs, club officials and employees that the evils of common control of player dealings of two clubs in the same league, and perversion of working agreements for the wholesale covering up of players, must cease; and that all club officials and employees found to be involved in any such misconduct after this date will be placed on the ineligible list, maximum fines will be imposed on each club concerned and all players misbehaved therein will be declared free agents."

Club owners of the American and National leagues generally refused comment on Landis' sweeping decision in making free agents of 91 players belonging to the Detroit Tigers and 15 farm affiliates; fining the Chicago Cubs $1,000 and the St. Louis Browns $500 for "meddling," assessing Cleveland $2,000 for "covering up" a player, and ordering sums totalling $47,250 paid to 14 players previously held under cover but no longer the property of Detroit or its farms.

The commissioner left Chicago today for his annual winter holiday in Bellair, Fla. He will be absent from his office at least a month, but before he left he prepared another blast at violators of baseball's laws which will be made public tomorrow.

His office declined to reveal the exact nature of the statement, but it was expected to discuss further and more fully the continued fraction of regulations governing the minor league operations of the big league organizations.

Most severe.

The action was Landis' severest punishment since he became "czar" of baseball 20 years ago following the notorious "Black Sox" scandal involving the Chicago White Sox in the World's Series of 1919 with Cincinnati.

The decision ruined the Tigers' farm system, halted consummation of a trade in which Detroit had agreed to send Benny McCoy, rated as a $40,000 infielder, and Pitcher George Coffman to Philadelphia for outfielder Wally Moses, and enabled the players' declared free agents to negotiate after 15 days with any club not included in the penalty citations for new contracts, with cash bonuses in most cases.

Landis today removed the name of Pitcher Paul "Dizzy" Trout from the list of players held secretly by the Toledo club of the American Association for Detroit. Landis discovered that Trout had been turned over to Toledo on a duly filed optional assignment and therefore legally belongs to the Tigers. Trout had expressed a hope to sell his services to some other club for a $20,000 cash bonus.

Connie Mack, manager of the Philadelphia Athletics, expressed disappointment in failing to get McCoy, who, no doubt, will be the most-sought-after of the four Tigers declared free agents.

The Express boys will have Alf Anderson, Doyal Butler and Jack Perkins at forwards, Pittman and Speer at center, and Junior Anderson, Marion, McCabe and Moon at guards.

Games have also been arranged with Nehi, Albany, Carrollton, Porterdale and other strong clubs throughout the state.

FEATURE EVENT ON SLATE TODAY IN FIELD TRIALS

Gallery Is Impressed by Beautiful Work of Tip's Topsy Top.

By TOM McRAE, Staff Correspondent.

WAYNESBORO, Ga., Jan. 15.—Willing's Dr. Sam, white and orange pointer owned and handled by Dr. Sam Orr Black, of Spartanburg, S. C., won the members' all-age stakes in the only event today in the annual meeting of the Georgia Field Trials Association.

Homewood Hillbilly, white and black pointer owned and handled by Edwin Claussen, of Augusta, was second. Tip's Manitoba Jake, white and black pointer, owned and handled by E. H. Vane, of Philadelphia, was third. Vane is the husband of Glenna Collett Vane, many times national women's golf champion.

The open all-age stakes, feature of the meeting, is scheduled to get under way tomorrow afternoon after the completion of the members' Derby.

There were several occasions today when dogs were lost from their handlers, but the only time a handler was lost from his dog came in the last brace, the 14th, when Dr. Willing's Sam strayed from the course and Dr. Black got lost trying to find him. The dog returned to the course and the judges, George Suttle, of Newport News, Va., and G. W. Stanberg, Jefferson City, Tenn., requested R. Z. Cates, whose dog had already run, to handle him to the end of his heat while Dr. Black was missing.

Willing's Dr. Sam was credited with two finds and he ran excellently. Homewood Hillbilly handled his one find well but was guilty of running in the road. Tip's Manitoba Jake had one find and ran fair. A false point was charged against him.

The gallery was much impressed by the beautiful race turned in by Raymond Hoagland's Tip's Topsy Top. Tip's Topsy Top did not find any birds but the gallery thought the Top was a good dog. He was called back to be given another chance on bird work. Monie First's The Georgia Breeze had two finds to tie the leader in that department. This is Willing's Dr. Sam first all-age year and the young dog is as erratic as it is day after day. Great things are expected of it with time. Homewood Hillbilly has won several important stakes and Tip's Manitoba Jake was second in Pointer Club at Pinehurst and third in members all-age.

It was cold today and a stiff wind blew. The horses' hoofs crunched the frozen ground

Shaw Got Big Thrill From Airplane Dive

Indianapolis Winner Will Be Racing Until "I Have Gray Beard, I Hope."

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY.

One would think a fellow who wins the 500-mile Indianapolis Speedway race would have enough thrills to last him at least until the next year. But not Wilbur Shaw, who has captured the automotive classic twice in the last three years.

Shaw, who is in town in the interest of the Firestone Safety Bureau, admitted yesterday he got his biggest kick off the track while attending the Birmingham air races last year.

Step up to all-round "makin's" pleasure with Prince Albert today. (Play a match over a load of P.A. for real pipe pleasure, too.)

"Major Al Williams took me up to do a power dive in a bomber," the stocky speed merchant related yesterday. "Well, after I finally decided the major wasn't committing suicide, it was wonderful. We were traveling at a speed of 425 miles an hour during the dive. It seemed as if I could see every blade of grass individually when we finally started to pull out."

Biggest Thrill. Shaw said the biggest thrill in racing comes just before the start—just before the flag drops. "After that, it's all business."

He won the four-wheel classic in 1937 and again last year. He was second in 1938—less than a minute behind the winner. He has entered every Indianapolis race except one since 1927 and has finished second two other times. In the last six years, Shaw has finished the long grind without a relief driver and has averaged better than 100 miles an hour.

His most spectacular crash came when he hurdled a fence, his car going high enough in the air to break telephone wires strung from near-by poles. The damage: One demolished race car and one scratched chin. Shaw re-entered the same race in the mate to the car he was driving.

Shaw says he got into racing as a result of a bit of hero-worship. When a youngster, he was a great admirer of Ralph de Palma and Jimmy Murphy, two of the great.

"I don't intend to quit for a long time," Shaw smiled, "not until I have a long gray beard. At least, that's what I hope," he added quickly.

Soap Box Starter. Shaw has been the starter of the National Soap Box Derby for four years and gets a big kick out of it. The Georgia race is sponsored by The Constitution.

"I wouldn't take anything for the experience of seeing those kids race," Wilbur said.

Shaw rates de Palma the greatest of all race drivers. "It's hard to pick one," he said, "but personally I think de Palma was greatest. He made driving look easy."

One of the interested listeners to Shaw's conversation asked how he felt during the last 50 miles of an Indianapolis race.

"So weak I couldn't whip Tom Thumb with an ax," he smiled from underneath his neatly trimmed moustache. "That was the trouble with Louise Meyer last year. Your reflexes become almost numb. Louie had three spins and finally crashed on the last one."

Shaw revealed his car is now being prepared for this year's classic.

"It's a year-around job," he said.

TONIGHT'S GAME AT HENRY GRADY TO DECIDE LEAD

North Fulton Plays Athens; Fulton Engages Clarkston Teams.

By ROY WHITE.

Two games in the Big Seven prep basketball race will share the spotlight today in the third round. The first game will be played at 4 o'clock this afternoon on the College Park court when G. M. A. plays Commercial High.

Boys' High and Jordan, from Columbus, the undefeated leaders with two wins each, will battle at 7:30 o'clock tonight on the Henry Grady court in the feature game. A preliminary between Tech High and Boys' High B teams will most likely precede the Boys' High-Jordan scrap.

Tech High and Columbus High will play at 8 o'clock at Columbus in another game of undefeated winners in their only games. Canton drew a bye.

While members of the Big Seven are battling for positions, top and bottom today, members of the North Georgia Interscholastic Conference will play a couple of double-header tonight, in independent games. Clarkston and Fulton High play two games on the Fulton High court and North Fulton plays Athens High a double-header on the Buckhead court.

Both the G. M. A.-Commercial and Jordan-Boys' High games should be well worth the while, with the latter position in doubt in the first and leadership of the league hanging in the balance in the other.

Both G. M. A. and Commercial have been beaten twice, but both teams have shown a decided improvement in their last games. There may not be any large scores run up, due to both teams resorting to working the ball under the baskets rather than long shots.

Jordan beat Commercial and G. M. A. in its first two starts and looked very good in both games. The Columbus entry has the leading scorer of the league in Ray—a crack forward.

Boys' High has been content to win both its games and no effort has been made to "feed" the ball to any one player.

The Purples have used more players than any other two teams, and in one game every candidate in uniform was given a trial.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 15.—(AP)—The veteran Basil James, with 14 winners in 53 months, is well ahead in the race for jockey honors at Santa Anita Park. James' total, after 10 days of racing, is double that of his nearest rival, Apprentice Douglas Dodson. Johnny Longden, the 1938 national champion, George Wallace and Roy Taylor have six apiece.

Crackers Trip Celtics In Sensational Upset

By THAD HOLT.

CANTON, Ga., Jan. 15.—In perhaps the most stunning upset ever recorded on a Georgia basketball court, the sensational Atlanta Crackers tonight defeated the world famous New York Celtics, long the masters of the hardwood, in a fiercely-fought struggle witnessed by an overflow crowd of poptey spectators. The score was 43 to 40.

It was only the fifth defeat suffered in 15 years in the south by the men of magic, who have played more than 1,000 games in Dixie against the best teams in the Cotton Belt.

The Celtics nosed out the Crackers last week in Atlanta, 44-40, but Coach Shep Lauter maintained his lads were jittery and played their worst game of the season.

Tonight, in scoring their 14th victory against one defeat this campaign, the Crackers carried the fight to the professional kings from the start, breaking up their pet plays and springing a few nifties of their own.

The Celtics were ahead only twice, holding one-point margins in each period. At the finish the shocked and enraged pros stormed off the court. Pat Herlihy tore up his jersey. Nat Hickey, scoring ace who was held to nine points by the dogged guarding of Atlanta's Gene Warlick, threw his traveling bag out the window. Tom Humphreys, booking agent of the Celtics who realizes the defeat severely damaged the Champion's drawing power throughout the country, frantically was attempting to arrange a third game in Atlanta for Sunday, in a bid to regain lost prestige.

Bo Johnson got 11 points in the Cracker offensive, but Bob Lieb also bagged 11, in addition to a superb floor game. Virlyn Moore, Fred Bradford and Cherry Foster turned in big-time performances.

The Crackers led at the half, 25-20. In a preliminary, the Crimson Bulldogs, of Atlanta, bested Canton High, 29-23.

CRACKERS (43) Pos. CELTICS (40)
Fred Bradford (7) F. Davey Banks (1)
Virlyn Moore (2) F. Paul Birch (6)
Bo Johnson (11) C. Pat Herlihy (9)
Bob Lieb (11) G. Nat Hickey (9)
Gene Warlick (1) G. Rusty Sanders (4)
Substitutes: Crackers, Cherry Foster (6), Ed Bellamy; Celtics, none.

Heavyweight Wrestling Returns Next Tuesday

Under the promotion of "Silent Bill" Hartman, an Atlanta businessman for 15 years, heavyweight wrestling will return to this city next Tuesday night, after an absence of several months.

In making the announcement, Hartman said he had not decided upon a definite site for the shows, but that he would have an announcement pertaining to that matter and the opening card within a few days.

"I have always believed Atlanta to be a good town for first-class heavyweight wrestling," declared Hartman. "I intend to bring the best men in the game here."

Among the outstanding performers who will grapple in Atlanta during 1940 are Champion Bronko Nagurski, former champion Louis Thesz, the one and only Jimmy Londos, Dorv Roche, Roland Kirchmeyer, Ray Steele, Juan Humberto, Everet Marshall, Gusner Chio, Jimmy Coffield, George and Babe Zaharias, Herb Freeman, Cowboy Luttrell, Dick Raines, Karl Davis and Orville Brown.

ALLEN, MICHAEL DRILL TONIGHT

"Young" Allen, "Pa" Stribling's sensational young heavyweight, and Bob Michael, promising young Atlanta, will work out between 6 and 7 o'clock tonight at Bond's gymnasium, corner Edgewood avenue and Boulevard. Tonight's workout will be free to the public and will be the last before the Thursday fight in the East Point auditorium.

Allen and Michael will fight 10 rounds in the feature of the first of a series of semi-monthly boxing matches in the East Point auditorium. Popular prices will prevail at all the shows.

Thursday's fight card will be the first appearance here in many years of "Pa" Stribling in the role of manager. He has been absent from the fight game since the death of his said son, L. Stribling, but just couldn't stay away any longer and has taken the management of one of the most promising heavyweights in the south.

Supporting the Allen-Michael bout will be a double-header semi-main event, featuring Emory Jackson and Battling Broscio and Benny Johnson and Terry Terry, from Jacksonville. Both the semi-finals will be six-rounders.

Spring Hill Eleven Opens With 'Bama

MOBILE, Ala., Jan. 15.—(AP)—The Crimson Tide of Alabama will open its 1940 football schedule here on the night of September 27 against the Spring Hill College Badgers.

The Badger schedule, announced by Coach Earl Smith, follows: September 27, Alabama here; October 4, Troy State Teachers here; October 11, Mississippi College at Clinton; October 18, Southwestern of Louisiana here; October 25, Mississippi College at Clinton; October 31, Southwestern of Louisiana here; November 7, Hattiesburg; November 14, Southeastern of Louisiana here; November 21, Chattanooga; November 28, Howard at Birmingham.

Bill Taylor Named To Manage Cordele

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Jan. 15.—(AP)—The Cordele (Ga.) baseball club of the Georgia-Florida league, purchased by Jacksonville as a farm, will be managed next season by Bill Taylor.

Dr. John K. Norwood, president of the Jacksonville Tars, of the South Atlantic league, announced Saturday the purchase at an undisclosed price. Manager Taylor was a catcher for Jacksonville last year.

CARLTON LEWIS PACES JACKETS WITH 17 POINTS

Mundorff's Five Never Ahead in Dropping First S.E.C. Game.

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY.

Florida's smooth-working "Gators" won their third straight Southeastern Conference victory last night with a 45-40 victory over a wildly-shooting band of Georgia Tech sophomores.

Before a frantic crowd of 1,500, dominated by Yellow Jacket students, the Gators of Sam McAllister built up a commanding lead in the first half and were never headed. Indeed, the Techs were only able to tie the score once and that was in the opening minutes.

Numerous fouls were called during the game, 19 on the winners and 11 on the Jackets. Four players, two from each side, were ejected, because of four misdeemeanors.

Superior passing and marksmanship spelled victory for the surprising Floridians, who evidently were celebrating two wins over Georgia with another victory.

ZDANSUKAS STARS. Little Vinny Zdzankus, Steve Ellish and Frank Vynishans were the big guns of the Florida attack, getting 12, 11 and 10 points respectively. In addition, Zdzankus was the outstanding floor man on the court.

Tech's offense was mainly handled by Carlton Lewis, who shot 17 points, 11 of them on free throws made good out of 14 attempts.

Boneyard Johnson, who was put out of the game in the first half because of excessive fouling, was next in line for the Yellow Jackets with six points. Afterward Captain Jim Hughes did a good job of guarding Zdzankus, despite the stocky little "Gator's" 13 markers.

The Jackets could never show the form they did against Vanderbilt in the first half and were a doomed team after the first few minutes.

Florida held a 28-19 advantage at the half—the same margin Tech was leading the Commodores Saturday night.

TECH IN RALLY. The Jackets came back after intermission and crept within four points of the pace-setters at 30-34. But that was the closest they ever got.

Florida sank nine out of nine free shots at the baskets in one of the best exhibitions of foul shooting ever seen around here. The Gators missed two shots in the closing minutes, taking the ball out of bounds instead.

One of the shots was particularly sweet to Zdzankus. With only a minute left to play he was fouled and took his position at the foul line. The Tech students let up a howl—boos, whistles, jeers all rolled into one. Vinny asked the referee for quiet. Malcolm Laney held up his hand but the students refused to quit. So, Vinny calmly sank the shot anyhow and turned and ran down the court with a big grin on his face. It must have been one of the few opportunities to have during a lifetime.

STOVE EXPLODES, THEN HOME BURNS

Furniture, Clothing, Other Possessions Destroyed.

Fire started by the explosion of a kitchen gasoline stove yesterday afternoon destroyed the home of Mr. and Mrs. Tex Barrett, on Sandy Springs road, about a mile east of Dunwoody, Ga.

The family's furniture, clothing, silver and other possessions also were destroyed by the flames. The loss was partially covered by insurance.

Mrs. Barrett, the former Miss Virginia Howard, was in the house with her two-year-old daughter at the time of the explosion. Neither was injured.

The blaze took on a warlike aspect when a large quantity of shotgun shells in the attic were exploded. Lack of water facilities made it impossible to fight the flames.

Ann Sothorn 'Orders' Scar In Artistic Crescent Shape

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 15.—(UP) Blond Ann Sothorn today obtained the most beautiful appendectomy scar ever carved. At least she hoped she did.

When she came out from under the anesthetic at Good Samaritan hospital, the crescent-shaped scar she ordered was covered with bandages. Dr. William Branch, who performed the operation, would not say what kind of scar he made. He was, in fact, a little surprised that Miss Sothorn had expressed a public preference for an artistic scar.

He pronounced her condition "good" and had nothing further to say about scars. His client was not so reticent.

"I do hope I got what I ordered," she said, fingering the bandage through her nightgown. "I have always believed that the ordinary appendectomy scars mars a girl, and though nobody sees but herself, she's always conscious of it."

"That's why I shopped around for scars. I learned that they come in all shapes and sizes—square, long, round, jagged and even V-shaped. The crescent shape appealed most to me and that's what I insisted upon."

When Miss Sothorn announced her desire last week for a beautiful incision, which she could admire in the privacy of her boudoir, she put herself on a photographic spot. Newspaper and magazine art editors have been bombarding her with requests for closeups of the scar. Photographers have been camping on her doorstep, arguing that a photo of the scar, on a background of Miss Sothorn, would be more interesting than an amusee.

To all demands for art of the artistic cut, no matter how handsomely photographed, Miss Sothorn said "No go."

Her principal worry was the nightgown situation. When she went into the hospital yesterday she took with her two dozen of what she called her sexiest gowns. They are in shades of blue, flesh and black, lacy, slinky, and otherwise. When she woke from the ether she was clad in a standard white wrap.

"And I think that is the one great drawback to operations," she said. "A girl likes to look her best at all times, and particularly when she's in a hospital, with all her friends coming to stare at her. And what do they do?"

"They put her in a white gown, with no more shape than an unfolded parachute, and then they add insult to injury by putting a ribbon on her hair. I never have understood why hospitals want tie ribbons to their patients."

If Dr. Branch made a scar along old-fashioned lines, she'll have a relapse. She said she was sure of it.

NEW GOVERNMENT FORMED IN TOKYO

Premier Yonai Is Expected To Direct a Pro-American Policy.

By RELMAN MORIN.

TOKYO, Jan. 17.—(Tuesday).—(AP) A new government, considered by Japanese and foreign observers alike to be of stop-gap caliber, was formed last night by Japan's new premier, Admiral Mitsumasa Yonai. It was expected to be sworn in today.

A striking feature of the new cabinet, expected to carry on negotiations with the United States for a new trade agreement to replace the one expiring January 26, is the greatest representation given political parties than has been the case in the immediate past.

Yonai is known to be an advocate of closer co-operation with the United States and is expected to direct a pro-American policy, although his foreign minister, Hachiro Arita, a veteran diplomat, is known as the foreign minister under whom Japan signed the anti-Comintern pact with Italy and Germany.

Sole holdovers from the outgoing cabinet of General Nobuyuki Abe were Shunroku Hata and Vice Admiral Zengo Yoshida, retained in their old posts, the war and navy ministries, respectively.

A century ago, in 1840, Froebel first used the name kindergarten to describe his German school for the young children.

LEGISLATORS FAVOR BIG BATTLESHIPS

Pressure Threatens Navy's Program To Build Craft Smaller But Faster.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—(P)—Congressional pressure for bigger battleships threatened today to interfere with navy plans for construction of a high-speed unit of four 45,000-ton capital ships. It was learned authoritatively that the house naval appropriations subcommittee had served notice that funds for the ships would be withheld until the navy showed why they should not be abandoned in favor of larger, more powerful craft.

The committee recently asked the Navy Department to furnish cost data on 65,000-ton super-battleships. Since then, however, Admiral Harold R. Stark, chief of naval operations, told the house naval committee that current studies on the subject "indicated" that 50,000 or 52,000-ton battleships would be recommended.

At that time Stark said the navy wanted first to get the four 45,000-ton ships and disclosed they would have speeds of 33 knots. The bigger ships would be somewhat slower, he said, possibly capable of 27 knots.

Members of the appropriations subcommittee have been critical of the navy's policy of "matching" the construction of foreign powers instead of taking the lead. It was understood the committee members felt that to go ahead with the 45,000-ton ships would be just a continuation of the "matching" policy.

SYNOPSIS.

Claire Dutton, private secretary to William Cameron, American diplomatic liaison official, rushes from the French liner St. Croix at La Havre as the gangplank is being lowered, after sending for her four bags. Cameron has been delayed in Paris and Claire knows she can't return home without him—she's a secret agent. Returning to Paris, she discovers there are five bags, one an exact duplicate of her overnight bag. At the American embassy, Welles Sanford phones the Bureau generale. Pierre Bonnet responds and finds in the bag a highly inflammable chemical capable of destroying the St. Croix. While Bonnet is searching Cameron's hotel rooms, Claire finds a slip of paper on which Bill had written her first name three times—and he had never called her anything but Miss Dutton. Musing happily, she goes to her own room. To find her overnight bag gone. As she goes to meet Danny Brooks, newspaperman, an American stranger enters her taxi, tells her Cameron is alive and gives her her vanity case from her stolen bag. In it she finds a card reading "Z. Y. Danny introduces her to Maria Herczek who takes to Claire. Claire meets Martin and the Rolands to her flat. Noel Yorke, a painter, calls there. He proves to be the Sanford she told her Bill is dead, but "Z. Y." says he was kidnapped by Nazis because he knows the plans and will to Germany and instruct Bill to pretend to divulge the plans but to make the zero hour. Rene Martin is her pilot and lands on a crude field near Berlin.

INSTALLMENT XVII.

What could she do? She didn't know where Bill Cameron was being held or she might have desperately started out alone to attempt to reach him. Try as she would she could think of no way she could help, and finally she gave up, worn out by the strain.

She suddenly remembered Bill's note, and read and reread it several times. It wasn't much, but it was something—it was proof that he was still alive and well, and while he was alive there must be hope. She prudently decided to destroy the note to avoid any danger of its being found in her possession, and after burning it in an ash tray, washed the ashes down the kitchen sink drain. Lili Weber finally came home and in spite of her protests, Claire insisted upon helping her prepare the evening meal. It helped to keep busy. Lili, of course, had heard nothing. She hadn't even come through her mother's shop. She had come around through the alleyway. The best she could do was to console Claire.

"We've helped many people out of just as desperate situations," she said. "I'll admit it may look pretty hopeless to you, but my dear, and her friends are accomplishing miracles at times. We must hope that they're successful again."

"It will take a miracle," Claire commented, despondently.

The American girl's spirits were tremendously lifted. Frau Weber finally came up the stairs, and she had run to her to hear if there was any further news of Cameron.

"Don't be tearing yourself to pieces with worry," the chided. "The wheels are turning—we have things under way. If they work, you shall see your sweetheart before you expect it." Claire was too excited to even blush at the German woman's assumption that she and Bill Cameron were sweethearts. She demanded to know exactly what was being done.

"I can't tell you, child," Frau Weber said, "because I don't know all the details myself. It's always best never to know too much about anything when you're doing the sort of work I do. So I didn't ask."

"But there is a chance!" Claire demanded, her eyes shining with renewed hope.

"A chance, yes. A good chance, I believe. I know the plan is to get Herr Cameron out of the old palace tonight. If things go right, he should be here about seven o'clock and we must be ready to hide him in the little room. I got hold of some more supplies—a few tins of sardines and other things."

She picked up the small basket she had carried in with her and took it through her bedroom and into the secret room behind the wall panel. Claire followed and helped her place the things on the shelf.

"Both of you may have to stay here for several days," Frau Weber went on. Claire was fairly dancing with excitement. She took it as an accomplished fact, already, that Bill somehow would be rescued and brought to the flat in a little more than an hour.

"Don't get your hopes too high, child," the woman warned. "It's risky business, you know, and many things may happen. All we can do is hope that everything goes all right. Both of you will have to stay here until a plane arrives from France to take you back."

"You've done this before, Frau Weber—many times?" Claire asked, watching the woman as she methodically prepared the room for an extra guest.

"Yes, my dear, I have. I know you distrusted me when you first came here—I could see it in your eyes. I can't blame you. After all, why should I, a German woman, be working against my own people this way?"

Her tone of self-accusation was so sharp that Claire had a sudden feeling of fear, which dissolved as Frau Weber continued.

"I'll tell you why. I know you must have wondered about it. They murdered my man." Her voice, ordinarily soft, was harsh now with an undertone of hate that revealed the depth of her feelings.

"Murdered him?"

"Just that. They called it a purge, but it was plain murder. Franz was a Nazi, a loyal one almost from the very start. He saw that something desperate was needed to arouse Germany after the ruin of the World War, and when this man Hitler came along, while not agreeing with him in all particulars, he embraced his philosophy and worked hard to help build up a new Germany. Not a brutal, swaggering, bullying Germany, but a nation of which we all could be proud, which once again could hold up its head in the world and become a place where people could live once more in happiness and peace. That was my man's goal, and he thought it was the goal of the Nazi leaders."

"She saw what sort of man he really is," Franz hated to believe it at first, but evidence piled up so overwhelmingly that he couldn't believe anything but that the man was crazed by a distorted ambition for power and a determination to take a terrible revenge on the world for Germany's defeat in the World War. Franz went along with the party for a time—he was high in its councils then—hoping to bring about reform from within.

son of the late humorist, and lan McClelland, hunter, are co-authors of "Babies for Sale" in which Edward G. Robinson will star in his "Big Town" program over WGST at 7 o'clock tonight. In the story, Robinson, as managing editor Steve Wilson, of the "Illustrated Press," exposed racketeers who deal in adoption and sale of babies. Wilson is aided by one Munson in the role of Lorelie Kilbourne. Leith Stevens' orchestra supplies the music.

INFORMATION—One of the world's great war, the famous Oliver St. John Gogarty, of Dublin, will make a radio appearance as guest expert on the "Information Please" program during its broadcast to be heard over WAG at 7:30 o'clock tonight.

The individualistic Irishman will be heard with Deems Taylor, music critic, who has made several appearances on the program; the two veterans, John Kieran, sports writer and authority on everything, and Franklin P. Adams, famous columnist. Clifton Fadiman will be in his regular role of quizmaster.

MILLER MELODIES—The lovely old tune "Sweet and Low" dressed up in modern musical style by Glenn Miller and his orchestra, will be played as the feature of their program over WGST at 9 o'clock tonight.

The program also includes:

"Johnny Rag,"
"Indian Summer,"
"Tiger Rag,"
"Baby Face."

JOHNNEY—The "Undercover

Squad," silent workers in America's relentless pursuit of criminal activities, will be dramatized during the "Johnny Presents" program over WSB at 7 o'clock tonight. Jack Johnstone will produce and direct the drama.

On the musical side of the half-hour variety show will be Johnny Green, and his own orchestral arrangements; Genevieve Rowe, soprano; Glenn Cross, baritone; Floyd Snerman, tenor; Frances Adair, contralto; Beverly, and the Swing Fourteen.

Packing Off to 'Paradise'

UTOPIA AHoy! R. C. Irvine, the wife and kids packed their stuff in Pasadena yesterday, and today they're shoving off with a party of 21 to start blissful life anew in the Bahamas.

SWEETISH And Swedish, too. She's Ingrid Bergman, another Stockholm gift to Hollywood, as she slew the boys with charm on landing in New York from the Italian liner SS. Rex. (Acme Photo.)

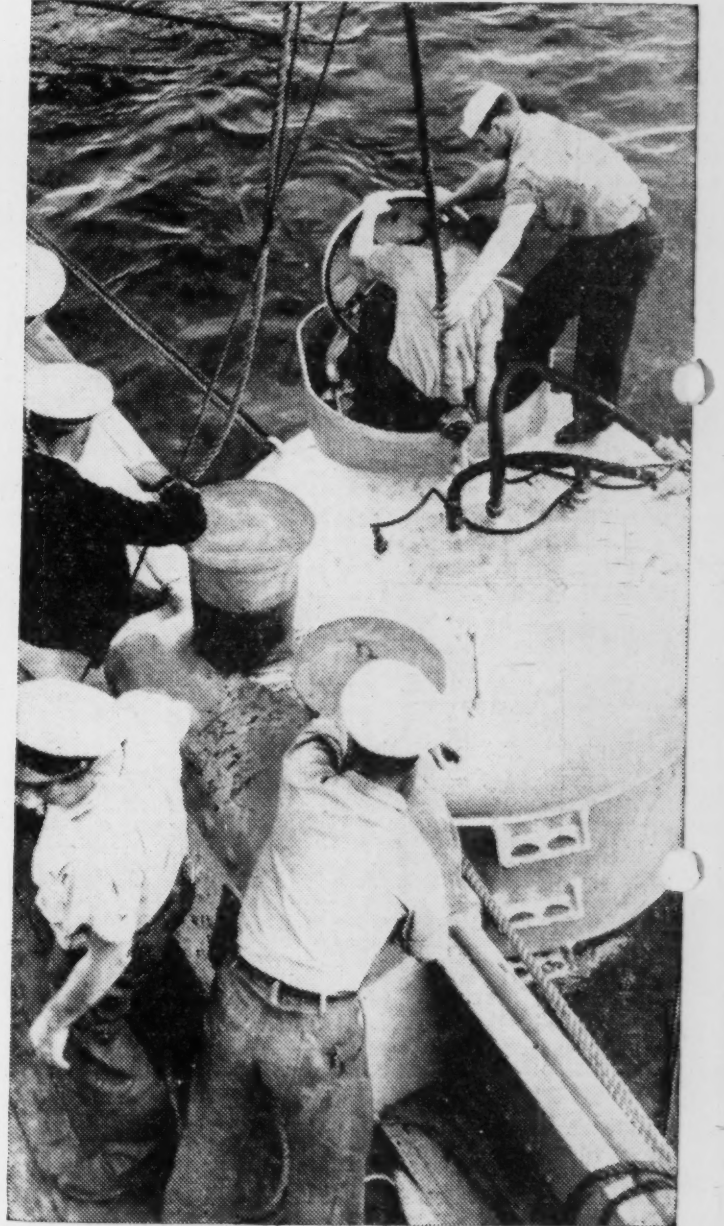

NO MORE SQUALUS It's a workout of the Navy's submarine rescue ship, the Ortolan, on her toes now lest there be another Squalus-like disaster. Here the crew is in the air chamber, getting used to 90-pound pressure before going below for the make-believe mission of mercy off San Diego. Their job is to fasten the bell's downhaul cable to the sunken sub. (See photo at right.) (Acme Photo.)

DEATH FOR 3 The truck apparently stalled on the track. Along came a train. Three men—two whites and a negro—met death in this crash on the outskirts of Hapeville yesterday. Force of the

SO HERE'S OURS Few days ago the white-blanketed New York World's Fair sent out a picture of Florida's display, all snowed under. The Constitution kicked—all in fun, of course: "Why not a picture of Georgia's building?" So here—by air mail rush—comes a shot of our own edifice in the Court of States, duly embellished with some Long Island lassies in a bit of snowball belligerence.

HONEYCHILE Everything you see is made of sugar—the basket, flowers, ribbon—and sweet Dorothy Farrand held it thus at an industrial sugar exhibit in Washington yesterday.

COMING UP! They made it, and here comes the big bulb, breaking surface into daylight again. Successful contact was made three times during the workout. (Acme Photo.)
